Hacks Promote Dairy Industry And Guernseys

BY HELEN KELCHNER
Columbia Co. Correspondent

BERWICK (Columbia Co.) — Each year nearly a hundred young children in Columbia County get their first hands-on experience with a dairy cow, compliments of Albert and Miriam Hack.

As a way to acquaint children with the source of milk and give some of them a once-in-a-lifetime experience of reaching out to a cow, Albert and Miriam Hack have entertained hundreds of youngsters from Head Start and Easter Seals over the years.

Recently the Hacks hosted 30 preschool Head Start children at the Columbia County farm. Many of the young people had never been closer to a cow than their television set, but on the Hacks' farm they were treated to a romp through the straw in a pen where small Guernsey calves were stabled. The calves provided a 'real' hands-on experience.

Guiding them through the long stable, Albert explained the feeding process of the milking herd and

Bob Lange checks the soybean seed level in his planter. Lange, concerned about the future of the family farm, met with Rep. Dick Schulze to discuss the federal estate tax. The outcome was a bill that would cut or eliminate estate tax on family farms within 50 miles of a metropolitan area.

Chester County Farmer Inspires Federal Estate Tax Bill

BY LISA RISSER

MALVERN (Chester Co.) — "Save the family farm" is Bob Lange's battle cry. Struggling to save his family's farm and his livelihood, Lange persuaded Rep. Dick Schulze, R-Chester Co., to propose federal legislation that would ease estate tax payments on farms.

"My family would have to sell between 25 and 75 percent of the farm in order to pay estate taxes depending on the assessed value," Lange predicted. "We don't want to sell any ground. We want it to stay as it is."

Schulze very much agrees with Lange. "There are people who genuinely want to farm. It seemed to me somehow wrong that we say to farmers that they have to sell off parts of their farm to pay for taxes. We should have a device to enable them to continue farming."

House Bill 2336 has been introduced to the House of Representatives in an effort to help save family farms. The bill would cut the federal estate tax by 20 percent on any family farm owned and operated for 10 years. Qualifying farms must be located within 50 miles of a metropolitan area.

After each subsequent five-year period, the tax payment would drop another 20 percent. After 30 years of owning and operating the farm, the family would not have to pay any tax. The moment the farm is sold or changes hands or is not an operating farm, the estate tax would have to be paid.

Currently up to 55 percent of the assessed value of an estate is taxed when its ownership is transferred through death or as a gift.

The bill, introduced May 11, has already attracted 11 other sponsors. Co-sponsoring the bill with Schulze as Lancaster Farming went to press were Helen Bentley, R-Maryland; Sherwood Boehlert,

Special Dairy Issue Next Week

By next Saturday, June 3, the annual dairy month festivities will be underway. And Lancaster Farming's annual dairy issue will add to the celebration. Along with many advertisers who have special messages for the dairy industry, you'll find a milk pail full of dairy recipes that came in response to the drawing for one of a herd of cows (the model type you sit on the shelf). And you will find a story about a young couple who started farming last year. They tell why they did.

Since good dairymen want to produce a quality product, farms that have been recognized for low somatic cell counts are visited. And since BST could revolutionize the dairy industry, several farmers will tell the practical aspects they experienced in on-farm trials sponsored by the companies who want to get the new biotech product approved for commercial use.

And the champion alfalfa grower in the state will tell how he manages the crop.

These are only a few of the features you'll find next week as a tribute to the dairy farmers who provide wholesome dairy products.

National Cooking Contest Sizzles With Flavor

BY LOU ANN GOOD

HERSHEY (DAUPHIN) — The aroma of 51 chicken dishes drifted throughout the Hershey Convention Center on Thursday. It was the site of the nation's largest chicken cooking contest sponsored by the National Broiler Council, The Pennsylvania Poultry Federation and trade associations.

Melissa Mathie, a personable young farm wife from Michigan won $10,000 for her "Summer Italian Stuffed Chicken," boneless chicken breast halves stuffed with a combination of basil and thinly sliced plum tomatoes, then coated with a mixture of Parmesan cheese and Italian breadcrumbs.

Four other state champions shared an additional $10,000 in prize money.

June Holley, Cincinnati, Ohio, captured second prize of $4,000 for her recipe, "Chicken Santa Fe," a zesty combination of roasted red peppers and jalapeno jelly with ACRES CORN UPDATE: Corn futures continued to slide today ending the session from 3 lower on the spot July to 5-3/4 lower on the March, May and July '90 options. Fresh contract lows were set in the new crop months with losses tempered by late session buying in response to a short-lived rally in beans. Firm cash basis levels propped old crop months along with slack farmer sales. Further support was provided by news South Korea purchased 100,000 metric tonnes overnite rather than the 50,000 tendered in addition to ideas the USSR was ready to re-enter the market. December ended today's session at $2.39-1/4 after trading in a range from $2.38 to $2.44-1/2.

ACRES SOYBEAN UPDATE: Soybean futures prices closed out the day lower from 2 to 8 cents after a wild ride with trading on both sides of yesterday's close. November beans opened at $6.39, traded to a high of $6.58 and closed 7 cents lower at $6.47-1/2. Reports of overnight rainfall and forecasts for more on the way in Iowa pressured the opening with buying midsession linked to news reports that Brazilian dockworkers would strike on June 13th. That news digested, selling re-entered the market in the form of profit-taking and continued caution in the face of weather news. July lost 2-1/4 cents and settled at $6.97-1/4 after trading in a range from $6.88-3/4 to $7.07.

ACRES WHEAT UPDATE: Wheat futures closed today higher from 1-3/4 to 3-3/4 cents on buying in response to rumors of export interest from China and Egypt. Prices were propped early in the day by news that Egypt had bought 300,000 metric tonnes of soft red and soft white overnight. Forecasts for rain in the northern and central plains pressured the opening along with spillover from sharp losses in the neighboring soybean pit. Short covering late in the session boosted prices along with ongoing rumors of export interest. The USDA confirmed a purchase by Egypt of 120,000 metric tonnes of soft red after the close. July settled today at $3.98-3/4, up 3-3/4 after trading in

Wednesday, May 24, 1989

Prices were higher than prior week. Trade sentiment was unsettled. Offers for light-type fowl from producers were very light and short of buyer needs; however, supplies of heavy fowl were generally adequate for immediate pick up. Processors operated part time schedules this week and have only 3 - 4 days scheduled for next week. Demand for canner pack product was in balance with supplies at steady prices.

OPINION

The Family Depends On It

The bill to help keep future generations from the need to sell the family farm for estate taxes was introduced in the US Congress last week by Representative Dick Schulze (R Chester Co.). The federal estate tax is levied on a farm when its ownership is transfered due to death or through a gift.

"The tradition of family farming in America is being threatened by the spiralling value of farmland in proximity to urban areas," Schulze said in a statement. "As the value of land rises with increased development, the ability of families to pass their farm on to succeeding generations is being eliminated by enormous estate tax burdens."

Of special note is that one individual with a real desire to protect his family's farm provided the impetus for Representative Schulze's bill. Bob Lange in Malvern proposed the federal legislation to Schulze so that he and other farmers would not need to sell 25 to 75 percent of their land to pay the federal estate taxes. Lange farms a 207 acre farm that has been in the family since 1896.

The bill would cut the federal estate tax by 20 percent on any family farm owned and operated for 10 years. Qualifying farms must be located within 50 miles of a city. After each subsequent five year period, the tax payment would drop another 20 percent. After 30 years of owning and operating the farm, the family would not need to pay any federal estate tax. So the Lange farm would be exempt. And that's the way the family wants it.

"We don't want to sell any ground," Lange said. "We want it to stay as it is."

So we have a perfect example of how one person with a sincere desire to protect family farms can influence national policy. The bill has already attracted at least 11 other sponsors across the nation. And we believe this bill should be passed by both the house and senate. The family farm depends on it.

To Prevent Fly Problems

There is considerable increase in fly population in many of our operations this spring. Keep in mind that one of the best ways to prevent fly problems is to eliminate fly breeding opportunities. Flies are almost impossible to control with the use of chemicals only. However, chemicals are helpful if combined with other management practices. To help prevent flies from breeding, clean-up accumulations of manure and spilled feed along feed bunks and at the edge of feed lots. Design lots and alleys so they can be scraped thoroughly and frequently. When manure is hauled to the field, incorporate it before flies have a chance to hatch.

Your fly control program should integrate several different control techniques and insecticides, if you are going to be successful. Flies will become resistant to a particular insecticide if exposed to the same material several times in succession. For best results, use a wide variety of insecticide formulations (space sprays, mist sprays, baits, residual sprays, etc.) and different classes of insecticides.

Always follow label directions when using any pesticide.

To Be Alert For Corn Pests

We are into the season for cutworm damage and this includes the black cutworm. Just a reminder to keep a close check on all corn fields for the next few weeks. Damage symptoms will be plants cut off just above the ground level. The culprit will be hiding in the soil a few inches from the cut plant. We suggest a rescue treatment if 2-3% of the plants are cut and you can find more than 5 larvae in 100 plants. Remember the black cutworm is the one with the granular skin. The control materials, listed in the 1989-90 Agronomy Guide include Sevin, or Lorsban, or Pydrin, or Ambush, or Penncap, or Dylox. Be sure to follow all label directions.

To Clip Pastures

Mowing permanent pastures at this time of year is a very good idea. Many of the plants will be heading out and some will go to seed; this meas that the plants should be mowed. This practice will help control weeds and encourage new growth of grass.

Livestock will consume the dry clippings. Pastures should be clipped several times during the season. In addition, the clipped area will look much better to the general public as they travel through the county.

To Reduce Rural Crime

Rural crime has become a sad fact of life. Most facts and figures that we read indicate an increase in rural crime. There are many things you can do to "make crime more trouble than it's worth." That would include installing and using locks, bringing your equipment inside, or putting it in a well-lighted area at night. Also, do not keep loading chutes near gates. One of the most important things you can do is to establish "crime watch" with your neighbors.

You also may be able to borrow an engraving tool from your local police department to mark your equipment with your driver's license number. Do not use your social security number because it is not retrievable.

SUBJECT TO ONE ANOTHER
May 28, 1989

Background Scripture:
Ephesians 5:21 through 6:4.
Devotional Reading:
1 John 4:7-12.

Today, Paul takes a lot of heat for his view of the family. In a time when Christians have struggled to rid themselves and the church of male chauvinism, some of Paul's advice, particularly his admonition to wives to "be subject to your husbands" (5:22), seems out-of-date at the very least.

I think, however, that Paul is getting a bum rap. For one thing, we must keep in mind the nature and state of the family in the day in which he wrote this letter. Except in Christian homes, the man was the undisputed head of the family — a virtual dictator and tyrant. Women had virtually no rights and children were often regarded as justified targets of adult prejudices and vices. Fathers did not worry about not provoking their children. Husbands didn't have to be concerned with loving their wives, because basically they owned them. Wives had to take whatever consideration and kindness they could get.

SUBJECT TO ONE ANOTHER

So, Paul's letter was revolutionary. To Christian men, Paul counseled loving their wives "as Christ loved the church and gave himself up for her..." (5:25). Paul also asked a different standard of treatment for children: "Fathers, do not provoke your children to anger..." (5:4). Following the attitude in secular society, Paul could have called the wives to obey their husbands. Instead, he counsels them to "be subject to your husbands, as to the Lord" (5:22). And note that, when he asks of the wives, he asks of both husbands and wives: "Be subject to one another out of reverence for Christ" (5:21).

I rather imagine that when men read these admonitions in the letters of Paul, some of them were incensed. Paul's picture of the Christian family was quite different from the usual family model. Some of them probably had trouble understanding what being a Christian had to do with such radical views. Those who felt this way had time and tradition on their side. This is the way it had been as long as people could remember. Why should there be any changes in an institution, which, as far as they were concerned, had worked well just the way it was?

THE PROFOUND MYSTERY

But Paul knew that, when people took Christ into their lives, nothing could ever stay the same. The old models were no longer good enough. The only model worthy is the model presented by Christ in his love for the church — a relationship of self-giving, self-sacrificing love. Since Calvary, nothing else would ever be good enough to define the relationships between husbands and wives, parents and children.

So let us be subject to one another as Christ willingly bore his cross for us.

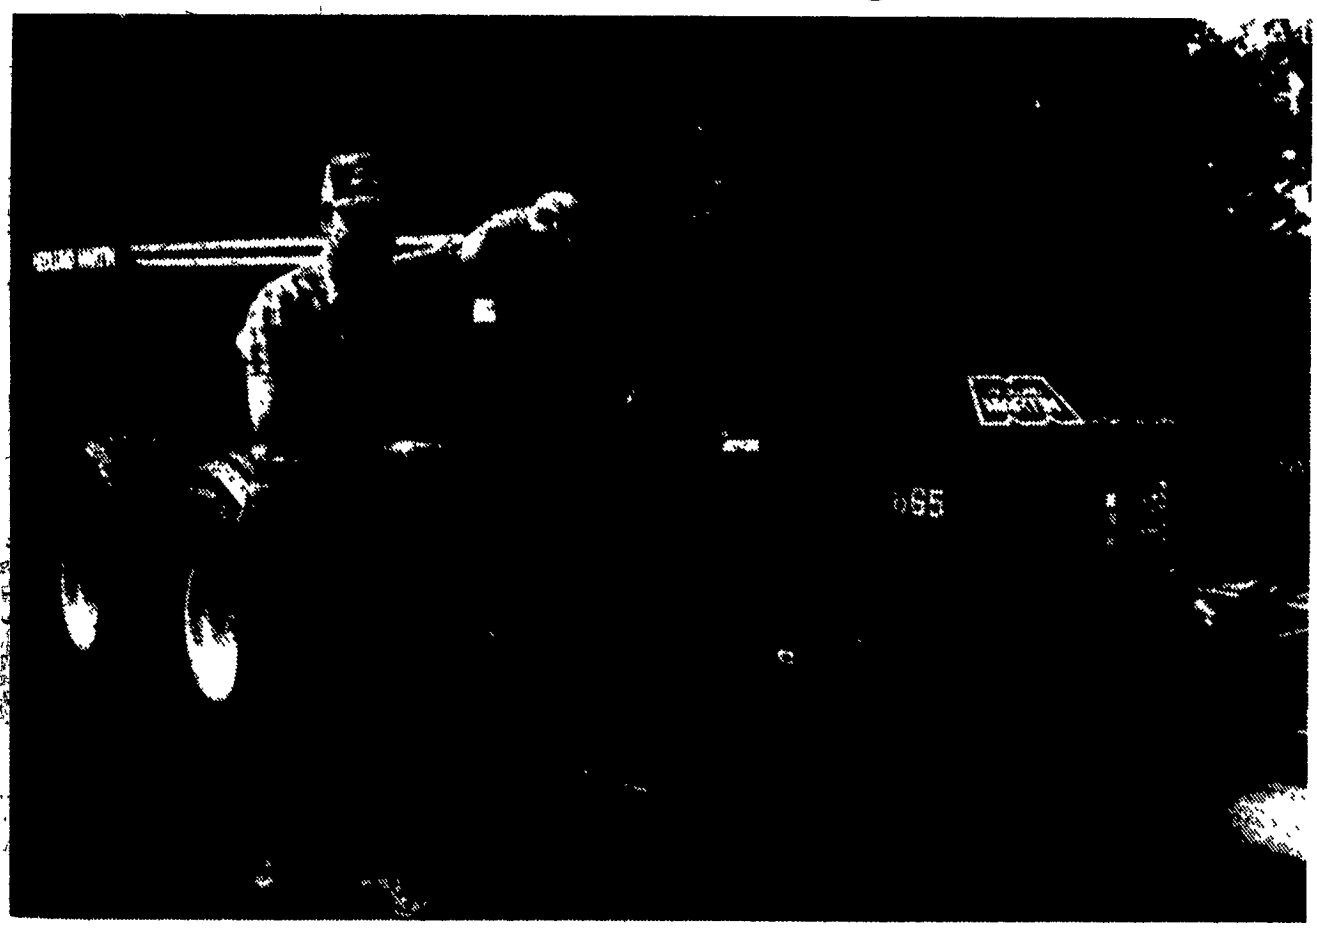
No spreader on the market can match the versatility of Scavenger.™



A new look in spreader design.

More than 7 years ago, Hedlund/Martin introduced the Scavenger—a manure spreader based on an entirely new technology.

Gone were unreliable apron chains and "rooster comb" beaters. Gone were leaky endgates. Gone were the old-fashioned boxy shape. In their place—a unique patented square auger and side-discharge expeller reel. And with its welded Unibody construction, Scavenger looked like nothing before.

But even though it looked unusual, Scavenger worked. Scavenger proved itself where it counts—in the fields of farmers all across America.

And like all successful advances in technology, Scavenger invited a slew of competitiors. Today, a wide variety of farm equipment manufacturers sell a Scavenger-like machine.

Unmatched performance.

While some of these look-alike units are perfectly adequate for certain manure-spreading application, none can match Scavenger's overall versatility. Scavenger spreads all kinds of manure—liquid, semi-solid, pen pack (even frozen)—all year 'round. In even spread patterns up to 50 feet. All in one machine.

So when you find it's time to purchase a new spreader, take a hard look at your choices. Don't be misled by spreaders that claim to do it all. Compare actual capabilities. We think you'll find your choice obvious. You'll choose the spreader with unmatched performance—Scavenger.

See for yourself.

For a firsthand look at Scavenger, see your local Hedlund/Martin dealer. Or write: Hedlund/Martin, Inc., A Gehl Company, 741 Kutztown Road, Myerstown, PA 17067. Telephone: 717-933-4151.

A Gehl Company®

Scavenger's design and technology is covered by one or more of the following patents: U.S. 4,362,272; 4,467,967; 4,473,184; 4,478,606; Canadian 2,362,876; 1,161,468; 1,167,078.

ACRES CATTLE UPDATE: Feeder and live cattle prices erased yesterday's gains with fats losing from 10 points to 110 points while feeders settled from 35 to 65 lower. Selling pressure was attributed to expectations for lower dressed beef and cut-out values along with light demand and slow movement. Additional selling was linked to a weaker tone in the fed cattle cash and beef markets. Feeders mirrored live cattle activity with further pressure linked to a slight slippage in the cash index.

CME FEEDER CATTLE SETTLEMENT PRICE - 5/22/89 - $77.00 dn $ .10.

ACRES NEXT DAY OUTLOOK: CASH - steady to weak FUTURES - steady to lower.

ACRES HOG UPDATE: Live hog futures closed out today's session lower from 15 to 62 points after enduring session long pressure exerted by larger kill figures and weakening cash prices. Losses were compounded by weaker midday product quotes and spillover from sharply lower bellies. Short-covering late in the session boosted prices off session lows with today's closes at or near session highs. Losses in the July option were pared by the rolling forward of long June positions. Bellies closed from 117 to limit down under pressure from bearish fundamentals.

Penn State Sponsors Landisville Crops Day

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The Penn State Crops Day at Landisville will be held June 21 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. The event will be held at the Southeast Field Research Laboratory on Auction Road in Lancaster County, two miles northwest of Landisville.

This year's Crops Day will feature research and educational programs related to small grains and forage crops. Penn State Professor of Agronomy Dr. Elwood Hatley will chair the event.

The small grains programs will include a session on recently released and upcoming grain varieties such as Hercules and Pennuda spring oats and Pennco winter barley. Another section will focus on managing diseases like mildew, leaf rust and net blotch. There also will be sessions on nitrogen management for winter grains and the response of winter wheat varieties to row spacing and seeding rates.

Programs on forages will include discussions of alfalfa disease, alfalfa weed control, annual forages, nitrogen management and forage-ruining insects.

For more information on the Crops Day in Landisville, contact Elwood Hatley at (814) 863-1012.

Ireland, U.S. Dairy Industries

Editor's Note: Here's Part 2 of a comprehensive article about the comparisons of production, processing and promotion between the Irish and the United States dairy industries.

The American Dairy Assn. and Dairy Council sponsored a dairy tour to Ireland in April. That provides the background for this article.

Promotion That Works

Dairy Promotion in Ireland, as in the U.S., stresses refreshment and health. While the U.S. advertising theme is "Milk...America's Health Kick," in Ireland a glass of milk is "A Healthy Handful." Both have advertising campaigns aimed at women of all ages about the importance of calcium in dairy products to prevent osteoporosis.

The cheese campaign in Ireland features a cartoon character called "The Big Cheese" who appears in TV promotions for cheese as a versatile, tasty and nutritious food -- "Cheese, Make More of It." In the U.S., 1988's fall and winter campaign featured TV celebrity Willard Scott in point-of-sale material; the spring promotion is now "Cheeseburger Days."

The Irish TV and campaign for butter calls it "The everyday miracle, fresh from nature--pure delicious goodness with a unique taste--nothing else tastes like it," and ends with the line "Easier to spread." The U.S. butter ad stresses that butter has no more calories than margarine and says, "Give them all a little pat of butter."

The Irish dairy industry has been very dependent on butter for years. Now consumption has fallen for two reasons: 1) preference for a refrigerator-spreadable product and 2) health concerns about cholesterol, the same reasons that have eroded butter consumption in the U.S. While Ireland's butter consumption is just over 16 lbs., U.S. butter (4.7 lbs.) and margarine (12 lbs.) combined intake is also about 16 lbs.

Ireland's per capita milk consumption is the second highest in Europe at 399 lbs. U.S. fluid consumption is about two-thirds of Ireland's with a per capita consumption of 244 lbs./year.

U.S. cheese consumption (23.9 lbs.) tops Ireland's (8.1 lbs.) by almost three times and UDIA forecasts a rise in the U.S. cheese consumption over the next five years of 4.24%, bringing per capita consumption to as high as 28.31 pounds/year by 1992. Italian cheese varieties will lead American and other types of cheese in consumption gains.

Dairy promotion in Ireland is organized by the National Dairy Council. According to Aidan McCarthy, Chief Executive, "NDC's function is the generic promotion of milk and dairy products on the Irish market." Their objective is to maintain or improve the image of milk, butter, cheese, yogurt and cream as perceived by consumers. He explained, "NDC's generic measures are a support, not a substitute for branded products." They are the Irish equivalent of ADADC. Their medium to long-term strategy is two-fold: 1) directly through advertising and promotion, and 2) indirectly through influencing opinion formers within the medical profession and the media. "The key," McCarthy stressed, "is health, as we project a positive image for dairy products and counter misinformation."

Funding for Irish promotion is from producers through a co-responsibility levy of 2% established by the EC to promote dairy products and to dispose of the surplus. A portion returns to Ireland. The Irish advertising budget is $1.88 million divided approximately into thirds: 35% for milk advertising, 33% for cheese, and 32% for butter. The U.S. puts about the same proportion of advertising into cheese, with more for milk and less for butter.

Alternative Farming Ideas

Because of the cap on the amount of milk Irish dairy farmers are allowed to produce, many farmers are seeking ways to maximize the value of their milk or alternative ways to add to their on-farm income. One example is the Cooleeney Farmhouse Cheese operation started three years ago by Breda and Jim Maher near Thurles in County Tipperary. They milk 80 cows with about half of their milk quota going into their 220-gallon tank twice each day to make Camembert cheese.

Cheesemaking is a very precise skill; temperatures have to be conformed to and of course hygiene is paramount. Breda started her cheesemaking in her kitchen, but having won awards and a market for her cheese, has since built a separate facility and hired three employees. To make her cheese, she first heats it slowly, starting from cold milk; then adds lactic acid to sour the milk; next rennet to form a curd. After the curds form, she places them into round tile containers. When the whey is drained off, curds are placed in a ripening room for two weeks. Each cheese is turned every second day and kept at 20 degrees C at night. When ripening is complete, the Camembert cheese is wrapped in foil and stored about a week until a wholesaler takes it to market.

Breda Maher is one of about 30 to 35 farmhouse cheesemakers in Ireland compared with 420 in Holland. Her husband Jim, who milks the cows for the cheese, says they have "more satisfaction, more control" since they started their cheese business. They hope eventually to use all their milk for cheese, not just half. If they can't make more milk because of their quota, their goal is to make that milk more valuable.

Deer farming is another alternative farming idea that some farmers are turning to. The ADADC group visited the Red Deer farm of Seamus and Frances O'Donnell near Limerick, one of 75 in the country accounting for 3000 farming deer. The Shannon Development Corporation helped with start-up costs and training for deer farming. First thing was to build a 6'6" fence. The goal is to establish a gourmet market for venison at home but primarily for export. About 1500 New Zealand Red Deer are being flown in this June in a specially fitted-out Jumbo Jet to add to the total Irish deer population in this alternative farming choice.

Another alternative business is agri-tourism, with many farmhouses becoming Bed and Breakfast homes and stops for a planned agri-tourism industry in Ireland. Sponsorship in part for this concept comes from Magna na Feirme, the Irish Young Farmers Organization which operates Community Tours, excellent hosts and tour guides for the ADADC tour.

In addition to the dairy highlights of the trip, the group toured the largest crystal factory of its type in the world, Waterford Crystal. Craftsmen must start as intern glass blowers or cutters and work for seven years to become masters. Here crystal is born in white hot fire, created by craftsmen who shape it into life with their breath and then, by skillful hand cutting, transmute this almost invisible substance into glittering masterpieces.

Padraig Walshe, Irish dairy farmer, (right), hosted Brian Ward, executive vice president of the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council (left) and Wally Willig (center), milk marketing manager for Hershey Foods on a recent dairy tour of Ireland organized by ADADC. Walshe, president of the Irish Young Farmers Organization, explained that many Irish farmers, including himself, will pay a "super levy" or penalty for overproduction of milk allowed under quota system. The super levy can be 75% of the value of the milk -- or more.

A totally different factory tour was the peat plant in Ballinonty, one of four in Ireland. Peat is made from turf, a natural fuel found in abundance in the middle of Ireland, residue of ancient forests. The plant produces 144,000 tons/year. To make one ton of peat briquettes, it takes 2½ tons of sod to be crushed, screened, sorted and pressed in a series of highly mechanized operations. Peat is prized as a clean-burning, available fuel, used in home and commercial furnaces.

The group visited the capital city, Dublin (population 1,000,000) which observed its one-thousand-year anniversary during 1988. They toured Trinity College to see the 8th century manuscripts of the gospels, the Book of Kells; and St. Patrick's Cathedral, built in the 13th century.

The historic nature of the country was most evident in its ancient castles. The group toured the magnificent Rock of Cashel in County Tipperary, the palace of Irish kings from the third to the 11th century.

At the famed Blarney Castle, members of the group climbed 120 spiral stairs to the top of the castle parapet to kiss the Blarney Stone, said to confer the gift of eloquence to those who kiss it.

The final evening of the trip provided a step back in history to enjoy the timeless atmosphere of medieval Ireland with a tour of Bunratty Folk Park followed by a feast in Bunratty Castle. Guests ate a three-course dinner without benefit of forks. The folk park has reconstructed typical thatched farmhouses and fisherman's and laborer's cottages. One farmhouse demonstration was of hand-churned buttermaking. As the eight-day tour ended, group members were already making plans to return to the Emerald Isle or to participate in the fourth annual ADADC tour in the spring of 1990.

The sale average of $2,066 on 35 lots exceeded expectations of the AGA sale organizers. While the national convention sales average between $2,000 to $3,000, the East Coast sales generally run lower. Guernsey breeders anticipated excellent quality and were prepared to make those animals part of their herd.

AGA Crowns . . .

Heidi Knapp of Knapp Enterprise in Wisconsin was crowned the National Guernsey Queen and Angelique Eileen McDonald of Green Slopes Farm, Imler, Pa., was crowned the 1989 National Guernsey Princess. The distinction of Best Presentation went to Rebecca Klingel of Indiana.

Winner in the National Outstanding Guernsey Youth competition was: Roger Hunker of Ohio. Runners-ups were: Michael Hurst of Indiana; Mark Calvin of Missouri; Trent Jensen of Wisconsin and Mark Fritsch of Minnesota.

The Outstanding Young Guernsey honor went to Walter A. Kessler of Bay Meadow Farms in Galt, California. Runners-up were: John Schnebly of Maryland; David Anderson of Minnesota; Tim and David Haynes of Indiana and C. Wayne Blades of Indiana.

George Fowler, Sr. of South Carolina was selected as the 1989 Master Guernsey Breeder. Myron Erdman of Illinois was honored with the Distinguished Service Award.

The Quiz Bowl Team from Indiana won the competition and the Pennsylvania team captured second place.

New Officers, New Directors

A Guernsey breeder from Minnesota, Phil Tennis moved into the AGA's presidency. Ralph Turley of Ohio, past president, became the first vice-president and Lee Riggs of Indiana is the second vice-president.

New directors to serve three -year terms are E. Cline Brubaker of Virginia and Truman Weaver of Indiana. Brubaker owns and operates Blackwater Valley Farm in Rocky Mount, VA with his wife Mary Lee and daughter Amanda. He has served as past president of the Virginia GBA.

Weaver and his family were named the Indiana State Dairy Association Dairy Farm Family of the Year in 1988. He and his wife Elnora, own and operate the Yellow Creek Farm in Goshen.

Dairy Association Finalizes Schedule

WILLIAMSPORT (Lycoming Co.) — The American Dairy Association and Dairy Council (ADADC) has finalized its media plan for the second half of 1989. The plan focuses on milk and cheese using a media mix of television, radio and outdoor billboards.

FLUID MILK

The fluid milk campaign has been repositioned in order to reach an expanded target audience of 18-49 year olds. This new target audience represents 48 percent of the population, and a high percentage of milk drinkers. This audience strategy relfects the changes taking place in the milk consumption market, concentrating on the aging "baby boom" population segment. The commercial theme will continue as "Milk, America's Health Kick."

Historically, milk has been perceived as a beverage for children. ADADC's latest television campaign hopes to broaden milk's image, communicating the message that milk is nutritionally beneficial for adults. The tongue in cheek message states, "Everybody knows that milk's for babies. And baby, milk's for you."

Television, radio and outdoor billboards will be used to promote milk during 1989. The television buy will take place during prime time and prime access programming using 30-second commercials.

HISPANIC EXTENSION -

Fluid milk advertising has been developed to reach the important Hispanic market in New York City, promoting milk as "La Moda De Hoy," (The Style of Today). Television and radio advertising has been developed to be placed on the Spanish broadcast stations throughout the New York City area.

CHEESE -

Pennsylvania and New York are primary producers of the nation's cheese supply; particularly cheddar and Italian cheeses. Cheese advertising will be placed this fall as part of a special cheese promotion being run through supermarkets.

Willard Scott serves as spokesperson for ADADC's cheese promotion. Network television and radio ads featuring Scott will be placed during the month of October. The ads will promote the sale of real, domestic cheeses during the fall season.

MARKETS

Television and radio commercials for milk will be placed primarily in the New York metropolitan area as well as major markets in Upstate New York and Northern Pennsylvania. A billboard campaign will extend the broadcast message throughout Northern New Jersey and Pennsylvania as well as Watertown, New York. The cheese campaign will take place through a national network buy.

The American Dairy Association and Dairy Council is a dairy promotion association funded by dairy producers from New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Third place and $3,000 went to Pricilla Yee of Concord, California, for "Chicken with Pineapple Salsa.

Christine Tomasiewicz of Omaha, Nebraska, won $2,000 for the fourth place winner titled "Heart Smart Baked Chicken."

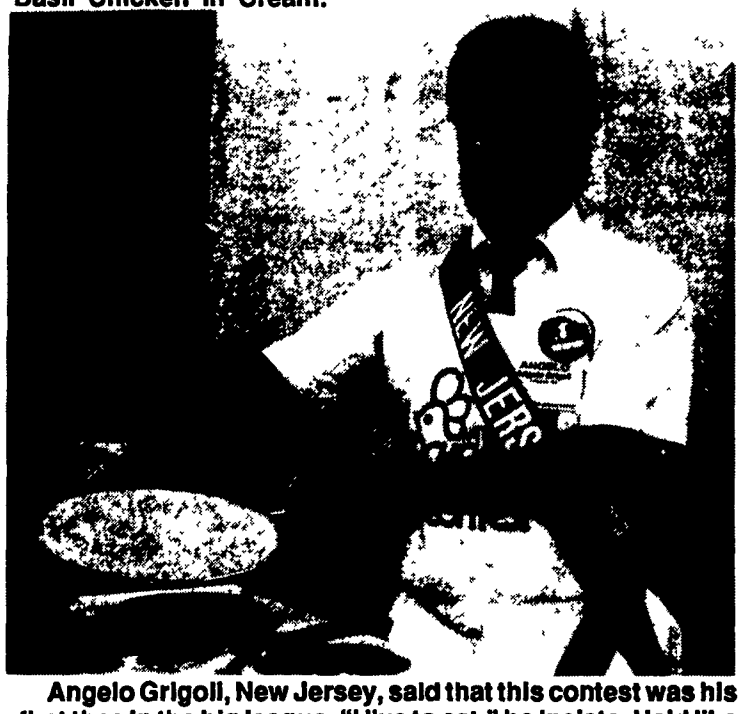
Fifth place was won by Janice Elder of Charlotte, North Carolina, for "Chicken with Carrot Chutney."

The cook-off finals included state cooking champions from all 50 states plus the District of Columbia. Six out of the 51 contestants were male. All 51 contestants prepared their recipes for judging by 15 food writers representing major newspaper and consumer magazines.

The first prize winner is an artist specializing in sculputred clay puppets. She lives on an 85-acre farm near Morrice, Michigan with her husband, Michael, and their two children aged three and two. Her husband is an owner, trainer and rider of harness race horses.

Both first and second place winners developed their interest in cooking from favorite aunts. Mathie's 71-year-old aunt has an extensive collection of cookbooks which the champion uses for inspiration.

One of six male entries, Steven Kessler, New York, proved he could cook with the best of them when he presented his Basil Chicken in Cream.



Angelo Grigoli, New Jersey, said that this contest was his first time in the big league. "I live to eat," he insists. He'd like to publish a cookbook with both his mother's and his recipes featuring northern and southern Italian recipes.

Citrus-Mint Chicken, Edith Johnson's entry for Delaware, proves how much her cooking has improved since preparing her first meal as a bride. Then, she had mistaken a fine soap in a brown bag for flour and made meatballs with soapy gravy. She inherited a mint garden when she moved recently and likes to experiment with chicken because it's her favorite food and "it's good for you."

Holley, a pharmacist, was taught to cook by an aunt who was a professional cook and baker.

In creating their contest entries, this year's finalists used 30 different vegetables, 15 fruits, and 40 spices. To add more flavor and appeal, the recipes included 11 different cheeses and five kinds of nuts. A number of recipes were inspired by ethnic backgrounds and regional influences, adding twists of uniqueness. A wide variety of herbs and spices were used to accent the flavor of each dish. Garlic was he favorite—used in 19 recipes—followed closely by oils and vinegars.

Unusual combinations paired chicken with red beets, grapefruits, raisins, oranges and bananas, coffee, pinto beans and watercress.

The Chicken Cookbook contains all of the 51 recipes prepared by finalists from each state and the District of Columbia at the National Cook-Off, including the $10,000 chicken recipe. Also included are winning recipes from previous contests and some favorites from the host state.

In addition to recipes, the 127-page cookbook contains nutritional charts and a step-by-step diagram for carving a roast chicken. There is also information on how to enter the 39th Cook-Off, to be held in May 1991 in Little Rock, Arkansas. A prize of $25,000 will be awarded to the winning recipe in that contest.

The cookbook may be ordered at the special price of $1.75 (including postage) by sending a check or money order (no cash) to: Chicken Cookbook, Department NBC, Box 307, Coventry, CT. 06238.

In speaking with contestants from the states that Lancaster Farming covered, Marlene McCall, Pennsylvania's finalist, remarked that she likes to travel and what better way than to win a contest and have "them" pay her way across the country.

She said, "I'm a chemist so I naturally like to throw things together and see what happens."

From Mars, near Pittsburgh, McCall said it took her one and a half years to perfect her recipe "Stuffed Yogurt-Lime Chicken."

While she prepared her entry, editors and newscasters bombarded her with questions. Her hands never paused as she shot back answers. "I don't have trouble concentrating because I teach and I'm used to noise," she said.

For Genevieve Lehman of Rockville, Maryland, the contest was the first time she entered competition. Her entry was birthed one night when she needed to make dinner within one hour. She said,

Second prize and $4,000 dollars went to June Holley, Ohio, for "Chicken Sante Fe."

Pennsylvania's entry was presented by Marlene McCall, a chemist who likes to throw things together and see what happens.

Only Farm Credit Has Loan Officers Who Were Trained In The Field.

While you were growing up on the farm going to 4-H, FFA, maybe even AG school, do you know what your Farm Credit loan officer was doing?

Same thing.

Not many bankers can say that.

True, they can make loans nine ways to Sunday. But, now your Farm Credit loan officer can, too. Over the last few years our people have gone through extensive training at making every kind of farm loan imaginable. Now a Farm Credit loan officer can give you the lowdown on rates, options and creative financing as well as any city banker can.

And around here, our Farm Credit loan officers have the power of approval that's equal to most bank presidents.

So the next time you need to get a farm loan, think about this for just a moment.

Then let one of our Farm Credit loan officers prove to you what we've been saying all along.

That bankers can't be farmers.

But farmers can be bankers.

Hack Promotes Dairy

Miriam gave them a hand-milking demonstration. The crowd of wide-eyed kids had their visit topped off with popsicles and art supplies promoting milk.

Promoting the dairy industry is an important part of being a dairy farm family for Albert and Miriam. Albert also serves on the Pennsylvania Promotion Board. When he's not promoting milk, he's promoting his second love, the Guernsey breed.

With only two Guernsey herds in Columbia County, Albert takes lots of kidding from Holstein dairymen at county meetings for his minority standing. But he maintains that quality is more important than quantity especially with milk surpluses and the Guernsey's characteristic of producing higher butterfat, which translates into a better price.

The Hacks have a total of 140 Guernseys, 85 registered, with 60 in the milking herd. Albert chose Guernseys because he grew up on a farm which raised the breed and he wanted to continue in the same line. The herd average is 10,400 pounds with 417 pounds of butterfat with a 4.8 percent test. His highest producer, Alfa Mar Admiral Ada, averages 17,741 pounds, 4.3 percent test, with 761 pounds of butterfat. Admiral semen is used quite heavily in the Hacks' herd and Albert also uses young sires in the proving program from ABS.

The Hacks' Grandview Farm consists of 400 acres which includes 150 acres in alfalfa, 125 in corn, 25 in wheat, 26 in barley and the balance in soybeans as a cash crop. Barley is used as a substitute for high moisture corn in short supply due to drought.

The Hacks took over the farm which was Miriam's homestead in 1963. They razed the old conventional barn and replaced it with modern facilities to accomodate a large dairy herd and purchased their Guernseys in 1966. Bucket milkers are used with a dumping station.

Comfort stalls range in three widths, 4 feet, 4½ feet, 5 feet, all are six feet long. Even though these stalls run somewhat larger than average, Albert feels the comfort for larger cows must be considered. Manure is hauled and spread daily except Sundays. Hacks use straw bedding.

The Hacks started with a 40-by-112 barn. This building has since been enlarged to 100 feet giving the stable area 212 feet. A quonset hut shelters baled hay and machinery. Two Harvestores, 20 by 60 feet and 20 by 35 feet handle alfalfa haylage and high moisture corn.

The herd is fed alfalfa, haylage, alfalfa hay, high moisture corn, minerals, salt, selenium and bicarb. Albert has found the large bales very pleasant to work with. He uses a power saw to divide a bale into four parcels in the feed area. A couple of power carts distribute corn product and haylage.

Miriam handles the milking and some of the feeding including ten bucket-fed calves in an open stall. Albert is the crop man and gives a hand with feeding. Wayne Benjamin, a full-time hand eases the work load for both.

Keep Milk Natural and Wholesome

Promoting the dairy industry begins by keeping the share of the consumer market which dairy products already have. The introduction of BST, bovine somatotrophin, Albert feels might change that.

Albert is greatly concerned with the proposed hormone injection, BST, which promotes an estimated 15 percent milk production increase. He does not feel the beverage which the public has come to believe as natural, wholesome and nutritious should be tampered or experimented with.

Albert agrees with Penn State's Dairy Specialist, Mike O'Connor, who recently spoke in Columbia County. O'Connor said there was no guarantee that some of the hormone injection would not pass through the milk if the cow was given more than prescribed. These injections will be administered by non-professionals and human nature being what it is there will always be those individuals who think that more is better.

Albert believes there is a need to make some important decisions about this product which may come into use by next year. Also, Albert pointed out, the treatment requires daily injections with a clean needle for each cow. O'Connor cautioned that the temptation to reuse a needle could be disastrous if just one cow in the herd carried an infection. A sizable number of cows could be at risk.

BST is not effective on first calf heifers or second calf heifers. It's purpose is to increase performance of older cows. But Albert feels the program could backfire. With the public becoming evermore cautious of foods containing additives, especially those used by children, dairy products suspect of carrying hormones may see reduction in sales. Parents are looking 20 years down the road at how today's food may affect their child's long-term health and well being.

And what of the farmers who do not use BST and the others who chose to use it. Ultimately, the milk all ends up in the same storage silo, untreated milk being mixed with milk from BST treated herds.

Albert referred to a statement made by Adri Boudewyn, director of communication for the California Milk Advisory Board, on the survey made on the BST issue. Boudewyn said, supermarkets don't want it, consumers don't want it and farmers don't want it. Boudewyn stressed that if farmers lose their market share, they are in trouble.

Dairy Herd Magazine carried Boudewyn's statements in the April issue. He sees a potential 10 percent market share loss due to public perception and Boudewyn feels those consumers will be lost forever because they will replace milk in their diet with some alternative. When related products are considered, the public will have the last say, too. Ice cream, yogurt, cheeses, puddings and other items which carry milk as an ingredient are all at risk.

Albert adds that the theory of BST just doesn't strike him as being good sense. Surplus milk has been the bane of dairymen's profits for years. There has recently been some encouraging signs with the herd sell-off and an increase in milk prices. Albert feels BST counters any small gains made in production decreases.

At a recent meeting in Columbia County, area farmers echoed the California survey report that only laboratories and pharmaceutical companies would be benefit by the promotion and sale of the injection and hypodermic needles.

Albert cited Penn State studies which have shown cows being treated with BST have increased their feed intake from five to ten percent. The feed increase doesn't occur immediately, but within a matter of weeks. O'Connor warns that period must be recognized and proper nutrition supplied to get the desirable effect and maintain the health of the cow.

Albert contends that the ultimate question of healthy milk production remains. Will the dairyman using BST actually reduce his herd as an economic move to compensate for the increased production or will he maintain his herd and add to the milk glut already at hand?

Albert is completing his term on the Pennsylvania Promotion Board. He belongs to the Pennsylvania Guernsey Association, Pennsylvania Grassland Council and Columbia-Luzerne Dairy Princess Committee.

Miriam Hack demonstrates the fascinating art of hand milking to some wide-eyed children.

The calf stall on the Hack Farm presently has a population of ten. The docile and friendly Guernsey calves provided the youngsters with an unforgetable hands-on experience with the calves. Miriam supervised the visit.

Dairymen Buy Kraft's Tennessee Cheese Plant

Greeneville, Tenn. — Kraft USA and Dairymen, Inc. announced that they have reached an agreement for Dairymen to purchase Kraft's Greeneville, Tenn., cheese plant as an ongoing operation. Kraft plans to continue buying cheese produced at the plant.

Terms of the transaction were not disclosed. As part of the arrangement, Dairymen will offer jobs to Kraft employees at the facility. In addition, Dairymen will continue to purchase milk from producers currently supplying the plant. This will provide a continued local market for milk produced in east Tennessee.

"The arrangement will be beneficial for all those involved," said Chuck Woolley, Kraft vice president of production. "With Dairymen's milk suppliers and those from Kraft, the point will operate at greater efficiency."

"While this plant will play a role in balancing the marketing needs of the Southeast," said James W. McDowell Jr., Dairymen's chief executive officer, "we look at it as a way of putting added dollars in Dairymen's member milk checks. It is a part of Dairymen's total marketing program."

The Greeneville plant makes natural cheese.

Kraft USA, based in Glenview, Ill., produces and markets refrigerated and dry grocery food products.

Dairymen, Inc. is a regional milk and dairy products marketing cooperative owned by 5,500 member-farmers in 17 mid-Atlantic, southeastern and midwestern states. The cooperative is headquartered in Louisville, Ky.

National Dairy Board To Continue Programs

BY KARL BERGER
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Dairy Promotion and Research Board -- which boasts a new chief executive, nine new members and a new committee structure -- is an organization in transition.

Despite the changes, however, it was pretty much business as usual for the 36 dairy farmers who comprise the board as they gathered in Washington D.C., May 16-18 for their fifth annual meeting.

The meeting provided more of a review of past accomplishments than a development of new ones. As a result of prior decisions, the board's multi-million dollar advertising and promotion campaigns will continue with few changes for the coming year.

Cynthia Carson, the board's new chief executive officer, helped preside over her first annual meeting. In January, Carson, former chief executive of the Dairy Council of California, succeeded the retiring Joe Westwater, who had held the post since the board's inception.

Several senior staff members at the board, including Edith Hogan, a vice president for nutrition programs, also have left recently. Along with the staff changes have come changes in the structure and focus of the board's committees.

Under Carson's direction, the board also has taken a new approach to the thorny issue of coordinating activities between the various farmer-funded promotion groups. A committee of representatives from the board, the United Dairy Industry Association and regional promotion units is trying to agree on a long-term stategic plan that hopefully will mean greater cooperation in the future.

In reviewing the past year's activities, Louis Hinders, the past chairman of the board's advertising and sales promotion committee, said the board's revised cheese campaign helped account for a "startling upturn" in the at-home consumption of cheese.

"Since the inception of the 'Cheese Riddle' campaign, we have seen the in-home use of cheese go up every month," said Hinders, a Canyon, Texas, farmer whose last three-year term on the board expired in April.

Hinders also noted that "It Does a Body Good" -- the board's fluid milk campaign aimed at youths between the ages of 6 and 16 -- was recognized as one of the 25 best campaigns of 1988 by colleagues in the advertising industry.

The board funds network television advertising for cheese, butter, fluid milk and ice cream. It also funds a nationwide print campaign that promotes the benefit of calcium from dairy products. All five campaigns will continue in basically their current form during the fiscal year that began May 1, according to board spokesmen. Advertising has been allocated $61.6 million of the year's $79 million budget.

In his report, Carl Butler of Pine Plains, N.Y., former chairman of the nutrition education and research committee, noted that board funds helped to open a nutrition center at a California university that will examine the relationship between dairy fat and heart disease. Research, he said, is the key to the industry's varied nutrition education programs.

Fred Cockram of Baker, Ore., who also left the board in April, noted that the last of the six product research centers supported by board funds was opened in March at New York's Cornell University and the University of Vermont. Cockram headed the product research and development committee.

Board chairman Ivan Strickler of Iola, Kan., said the board has a lot to be proud of in his address to members.

"We've established a strong foundation from which this board can move forward," he said. "We've proven we can do a good job. We can be confident that America's farmers are getting a sound return on their investment."

Strickler also praised the so-called "Bridge Project," which has brought together representatives of various industry groups to try to develop a plan for dealing with the issue of fat and cholesterol. And he urged his fellow board members to work toward removing artificial barriers to world dairy trade.

The members re-elected Strickler chairman during a reorganization session. William Underwood of Tully, N.Y., was elected vice chairman; Ruth Robinson of Jonesborough, Tenn., secretary; and Daniel Rodenkirch of Kewaskum, Wisc., treasurer.

They also consolidated the committee structure, forming just one committee to oversee both nutrition and product research and one committee to handle finances and administration.

Ernest Miller, a farmer from Hamburg, Pa., was elected chairman of the new public and industry communications committee, whose domain now includes nutrition education. Miller is one of three board members from Region 11, which covers the Mid-Atlantic area. The others are Walter Martz of Frederick, Md., and Horace Waybright of Gettysburg, Pa.

Sanford Receives National Jersey Award

REYNOLDSBURG, OH — Neal W. Sanford, Parma, Mich., has been awarded The American Dairy Jersey Cattle Club's 1989 Young Jersey Dairyman Award. Sanford is among seven winners from across the United States who have excelled in dairy farming and Jersey cattle breeding. They have also been very active in AJCC programs and Jersey functions. The winners will be honored at an awards breakfast June 17 at the AJCC-NAJ Annual Meeting in Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Five generations of Sanfords have farmed Jerseyland Farm in Parma, Mich., where the motto has been "Where Production and Type Harmonize." That is exactly how it works at Jerseyland today with Neal Sanford running the show. Neal owns and operates 381 acres of land which supports 200 Jerseys. He currently milks 101 cows with a rolling herd average of 13,900 lbs. milk, 710 lbs. fat and 418 lbs. protein.

Sanford participates in many AJCC programs. The herd is currently enrolled in TPE, he has consigned animals to numerous national sales, been an Equity supporter and regular advertiser in the Jersey Journal. Sanford also makes use of the Jersey Mating Program and uses young Jersey sire sampling programs.

Through the help of various programs Sanford has been able to choose sires that produce offspring to go on to meet Jerseyland's motto. Sanford has shown his Jerseys at the local shows for many years and has been Premier Exhibitor at the Michigan State Fair and the Michigan State Show.

What This Rain, Rain, Rain Means To Your Crops

Rain Damaged Ryelage-To Harvest Or Not To Harvest?

There have been reports of rye that was cut ten days ago but not harvested because of the rain. Is it now worth harvesting this material? This is not easy to answer depending on the state of damage to the rye. However, if a particular farm is in dire need of forage, it may be worth the risk of ensiling. The big question is whether rain damaged rye will ferment properly or not.

There are three requirements for good fermentation during the ensiling process; 1) an oxygen-free environment, 2) adequate numbers of lactic acid producing bacteria, and 3) adequate amounts of soluble sugars for the bacteria to grow. With the amount of moisture we've had, there should be an adequate population of natural occurring Lactobacillus organisms. The most limiting factor would be the source of soluble sugars. With the amounts of rainfall we've had, much of the soluble nutrients in the rye is most likely leached out.

If rain damaged rye is stored in the silo, it may be worth adding some ground corn in to assure a readable source of soluble sugar. For wilted rye, I would suggest adding about 2% ground corn by net weight. In other words, for each ton of 60% moisture content rye, add 50 lbs. of ground corn.

Nitrogen Loss From Heavy Rains

Two years in a row we have had heavy rains in May resulting in high potential nitrogen fertilizer losses. This is a classic example of why sidedressing is recommended. For farmers who were planning on sidedressing, their nitrogen is still in the bag or in the bin or in the tank. For those who put their nitrogen on preplant it is hard to say where their nitrogen is now. The big question is not whether some of the nitrogen has been lost but how much! For farmers who are planning on sidedressing their nitrogen no adjustments need to be made at this time. However, if planting continues to be delayed by the wet weather yield potentials may be reduced and thus nitrogen fertilizer rates may need to be adjusted accordingly. This is another advantage to sidedressing nitrogen, it allows the farmer to wait longer and gather more information before making a final nitrogen fertilizer decision.

Farmers who have already applied their nitrogen have fewer options. It is difficult to predict how much of the nitrogen has been lost. We would expect losses to be greatest on soils at the extremes of drainage, i.e., in the excessively well drained soils and on the very poorly drained soils. Plant color can be used as a crude indicator of lack of nitrogen. Yellow plants, where the yellow is greatest on the lower leaves, usually indicates nitrogen deficiency. If the corn is yellow at the 10 to 20 inch tall stage some additional sidedress nitrogen (30-60 lbs./A) should probably be applied.

This year for the first time it will be possible to test the soil for nitrate nitrogen just before sidedressing to determine if there is enough nitrogen to grow the crop or if additional nitrogen fertilizer is needed. This test will provide additional information to help the farmer who is planning to sidedress make a sound nitrogen management decision and it may provide some help to the farmer who has already applied his nitrogen but has lost some of it. Since, the test is primarily designed for use where little nitrogen has been applied prior to sidedressing, its use where large amounts of nitrogen have been applied preplant has not been thoroughly evaluated. This test will be available as a quick test on a limited trial basis through the extension office this year. However, nitrate nitrogen analysis is available routinely through Merkle Soil Testing Lab at Penn State and through most commercial labs. There are very specific sampling and sample handling requirements for this test. The details of this test and the interpretation of the results and recommendations are covered in Agronomy Facts #17 Nitrogen Soil Test for Corn in Pennsylvania, or by calling the office at 248-9618. The testing will be free. You pull the sample, I'll do the test, and give you results within 10 minutes if you wait. Sampling procedures are critical. Call the office for details.

Early Replant Decisions With Corn

The past three weeks of rain and cool weather may result in poor corn stands in fields planted in late April. It is still early enough in the season that fields requiring replanting can be planted to corn and maintain a relatively high yield potential.

Making a decision whether to replant is always difficult. The major issue is, would the farmer be better off with the reduced stand from the original planting, or would he be better off replanting and accepting the yield penalty associated with the later planting date? Information from the following table should help in these decisions. The data is from Iowa State University, but the response of corn to planting dates and populations should be fairly similar. Information in the table is based on relatively uniform stands. In the real world, lower stands are often somewhat uneven and decisions need to be made as to how much to subtract due to unevenness of stand. An Illinois study indicated yields are reduced about 2% if the stand includes several small gaps of 1.5-3 feet. Numerous 4-6 ft gaps reduced yields by about 5-6%. Thus in some cases, you may have to reduce the percentages given in the table according to your best judgement. An added complication can be the variation in height of plants due to uneven emergence. Recent studies indicate a "mixture" of plant heights can result in significant yield reductions - especially if plant to plant emergence varies by 2-3 weeks.

To use the table, first consider the "percent of maximum yields for the May 10 planting date for your reduced stand. For example, if you ended up with a final stand of 14,000, it means that the yield potential is approximately 82 % of what a full stand would produce. If you replant to a full stand (22,000-26,000) on the 20th of May, yields in the range of 91-92% would be possible. In this example, the extra yield (about 10%) may cover the cost of replanting.

Replant decisions are rarely easy. Before making decisions, accurately determine populations and uniformity of stand. Certain hybrids may have the ability to form multiple ears at low populations and partially compensate for stand loss. Finally, determine the cost of replanting (tillable, seed, additional chemicals, labor, etc.) and estimate the likelihood of the increased yield potential covering these costs.

Influence of Planting Date and Plant Populations on Yield Potential.

Population (plants/A)	Planting Date 5-10	5-20	6-1	6-10
	----------Percent----------
26,000	100	92	84	71
22,000	98	91	83	70
18,000	93	85	78	66
14,000	82	76	69	58
10,000	67	62	56	47

Wet Weather vs. Good Weed Control.

What will happen to the pre-emergence herbicides that were applied prior to the heavy rains over the past two weeks?

Rainfall is needed following application of pre-emergence herbicides to move the material to the depth at which weed seeds germinate. With most materials, a half inch of rain is adequate. The more rain that occurs, the deeper the herbicide will be moved into the soil profile. Since the majority of weeds germinate within the upper 0.5 inch of soil, if much of the herbicide is moved significantly below this depth, poor weed control might occur.

Several factors influence the rate of herbicide movement in the soil profile, including chemical properties of the herbicide, soil properties, and quantity of rainfall. Herbicides vary widely in their potential for movement; a relative mobility ranking of corn herbicides would be: Lasso = Dual = Bladex > atrazine > Princep > Prowl. Lasso and Dual are more susceptible to failure during wet years than some other products because they are absorbed primarily through the shoots of grasses. If Lasso or Dual are leached below the weed seeds where they only contact roots of seedlings, they will not provide adequate control. The triazine herbicides are absorbed by plant roots, and Prowl is active on roots, so these herbicides can still be effective if leached below the depth of shoot emergence.

How deep will the herbicide be leached? We are concerned about the detection of herbicides in the groundwater. These heavy rains will increase the potential for movement deep into the soil profile. However, when I say that herbicide activity may be diminished due to leaching, I am referring to the herbicide being moved 3 - 4 inches into the profile. Although this is still very shallow, it is deep enough to reduce the herbicide's activity.

Another factor that may reduce control is a decrease in herbicide persistence. The length of persistence of a chemical may be reduced under very wet conditions, resulting in a shorter period of weed control. The combination of greater leaching and shorter persistence may result in late season weed escapes in those fields that had herbicides applied in late April prior to the rain. Fortunately, those weeds that emerge 4-6 weeks after crop emergence are at a competitive disadvantage with the crop. In most competition studies, late emerging weeds have not caused significant yield losses.

A second problem that might be associated with the recent wet, cool weather is an increased

Feed Grains Representatives Seek Clarification Of GATT Agreement

WASHINGTON, DC — Members of the Trade Policy Coordinating Committee, which coordinates trade policy among organizations in the feed grains sector, last week met with representatives of the Department of Agriculture and U.S. Trade Representative's office to seek clarification of the GATT framework agreement signed last weekend in Geneva.

The TPCC membership is drawn from the U.S. Feed Grains Council, the National Corn Growers Association, the National Barley Growers Association and the National Grain Sorghum Producers Association. They held separate meetings with Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter and with Deputy Trade Representative-desisgnate Julius Katz and Deputy Assistant Trade Representative Suzanne Early.

Members of the TPCC raised concerns about the GATT framework agreement, including the apparent removal of the goal of eliminating trade-distorting subsidies, and statements by European Community (EC) negotiators that its rebalancing proposal remains under consideration and that its Common Agriculture Policy (CAP) is not negotiable.

Secretary Yeutter told the group that the Bush Administration remains steadfastly opposed to the EC's proposal to rebalance its levels of protection, and said the proposal has no international support outside the EC. He assured the group that substantial reform of world agricultural trade remains a top U.S. priority in the Uruguay Round.

At USTR, Early said the language of the agreement contains commitments to include all elements of the CAP in the negotiations. She said the goal of eliminating trade-distorting subsidies also is included in language reading "correcting and preventing restrictions and distortions in world agricultural markets." This goal cannot be met, she explained, without the elimination of domestic and international policies that create distortions.

Allen Terhaar, the Council's director of planning and trade policy, said the group was reassured that Administration officials understand the goals and policies of the feed grains sector and remain committed to substantial agricultural trade reform. He also pointed out that progress will be measured by the results of the tough negotiations that are ahead, and that the officials promised to work closely with the TPCC members during those negotiations.

The meetings also included discussions of such bilateral trade issues as the EC's export subsidies and variable levies on feed grains and Japan's restrictive feed grains policies. The group also asked for support of a waiver of the Jackson-Vanik amendment to allow Most-Favored-Nation trading status to be extended to the Soviet Union.

Hansen Receives National Jersey Award

REYNOLDSBURG, OH — Lloyd Hansen, Canby, Ore., has been awarded The American Jersey Cattle Club's 1989 Young Jersey Dairyman Award. Hansen is among seven winners from across the United States who have excelled in dairy farming and Jersey cattle breeding. They have also been very active in AJCC programs and Jersey functions. The winners will be honored at an awards breakfast June 17 at the AJCC-NAJ Annual Meeting in Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

One year after garduating from college, Lloyd Hansen formed a partnership with his father and mother in 1975. Lloyd gradually became responsible for management of herd nutrition, sire selection, herd health and general herd management. Hansen now shares these duties with his brother, Garry, who joined the partnership in 1987.

Hansen is a ⅓ owner of 90 Registered Jersey cows at Cascadia Farm. The 90 head have a rolling herd average of 14,957 lbs. milk, 733 lbs. fat and 567 lbs. protein. One of Lloyd's hardest working cows has been a product of the Genetic Recovery Program: GR Earls Majestic Erma, VG-85%, with a best record of 5-10 305 20,925 4.7% 978 3.6% 749.

Cascadia Farm has consigned cattle to many of the sales in the West. They also like to exhibit their cattle at the fairs. In 1988 they were Premier Exhibitor at the Western National Show.

occurrence of herbicide injury. The heavy rains will have moved the herbicide into contact with germinating corn seedlings. In addition, since the young plants are under stress due to the cool weather, they may be unable to completely detoxify the herbicide. These two conditions may result in visible signs of herbicide injury. In most instances, plants showing signs of early season herbicide injury recover with little impact on the yield potential. Stand counts should be taken and fields monitored closely to determine if plants have the ability to recover. If significant stand losses are incurred, a decision regarding replanting will be necessary.

Some growers may wonder if there is anything that should be done at this time to avoid potential weed problems. We do not have the ability to predict how much of the herbicide has been degraded or moved out of the active zone. Thus, it would be foolish to try and boost the activity of a pre-emergence herbicide applied prior to the rain by making a second application when the fields dry out. The best option is to actively scout the fields early in the season for weed escapes. If problems develop, the use of cultivation or a post-emergence herbicide may be warranted to avoid significant yield losses due to weed competition.

Lord Honored With AJCC Award

REYNOLDSBURG, OH — The American Jersey Cattle Club (AJCC) recently announced that Robert Lord, Woodstock, Vt., Manager of The Billings farm, will be honored as recipient of the AJCC Distinguished Service Award. The award will be presented to Lord during the organization's 121st Annual Meeting in Cedar Rapids, Iowa on June 16.

This prestigious award is made by the Board of Directors to a member of the Club who has rendered unselfish service for many years and thereby made a notable contribution to the advancement of the Jersey breed in the United States.

Bob Lord began his career with Jerseys in 1942 when he was hired as herdsman at Dorbrook Farm. Along with his first job as herdsman at Dorbrook, Lord served as manager for Harmony Hollow, Fontenelle, and Tymor Farms, and he is presently manager of The Billings Farm in Woodstock, Vt.

The Billings Farm is a unique dairy farm with a museum of agriculture. The Jerseys at The Billings Farm had a DHIR average in 1988 of 15,669 lbs. milk, 766 lbs. fat and 586 lbs. protein.

The Billings farm and Bob Lord were the breeders of Billings Top Rosanne, the reigning National Champion.

Lord has served in many capacities and on many committees in a distinguished manner for as long as he has been involved with Jerseys. He has been president of the Connecticut Jersey Cattle Club, president of the Vermont Jersey Breeders Association and president of the New England Jersey Breeders Association. In addition to his active participation in the New England area, Lord has offered his ideas as a member of the Board of Directors of the Capitol District (N.Y.) Jersey Cattle Club and the Board of Directors of The American Jersey Cattle Club. Lord served two three-year terms on the AJCC Board of Directors from 1979 to 1985.

Bob has been one of the biggest supporters of the All American activities. He has been instrumental in encouraging participation of new breeders in the shows and sales. He has also served as chairman of the All American Sale Committee. In addition to his leadership roles with the All American, he has been a ringman for the All American Sale, National Heifer Sale and Pot O'Gold sales for many years.

Lord has always been a supporter of Jersey sales with consignments of quality cattle to the Vermont Jersey Breeders Sale, New England Jersey Breeders Spring Sale, the All American Sale and the National Heifer Sale. Lord not only consigns to these sales but is usually in the audience to buy one or two.

Bob Lord believes in the future of dairying and the Jersey cow. In 1988 through Bob's personal efforts The Billings Farm Fund of the AJCC Research Foundation was established by Mr. and Mrs. Lawrance Rockefeller, Woodstock, Vt. Bob also works with Jersey youth as a 4-H Dairy Club leader with 14 young members who he encourages to be involved with the Jersey cow. During his years of service Bob has encouraged many projects to help the Jersey cause, hosting sales, selecting cattle, providing awards, setting up workshops. The list goes on and on.

Bob and his wife Dorothy were married in 1943 and have two grown children and five grandchildren. Bob is a lifetime member of the Dairy Shrine and he and his wife are members of the Grace Congregational Church.

Bok Receives National Jersey Award

REYNOLDSBURG, OH — Samuel A. Bok, Defiance, Ohio, will be awarded The American Jersey Cattle Club's 1989 Young Jersey Dairyman Award. Bok is among seven winners from across the United States who have excelled in dairy farming and Jersey cattle breeding. They have also been very active in AJCC programs and Jersey functions. the winners will be honored at an awards breakfast June 17 at the AJCC-NAJ Annual Meeting in Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Samuel Bok was given his first Jersey as a birthday present on his ninth birthday. Now, at 26, Bok is one of the Ohio Jersey Breeders Association's youngest directors. Bok currently owns 140 Registered Jerseys, 65 of which are milking with a rolling herd average of 13,946 lbs. milk, 656 lbs. fat and 518 lbs. protein. When he is asked why he milks Jerseys instead of other breeds he says, "I tell them that there is more profitability, easier handling, and that they are the best-looking of the breeds." In 1988 he received a Superior Production Award from COBA/Select Sires.

Bok has put AJCC programs to work at his farm. He is especially happy with the TPE program and says he thinks the program will help him succeed as he continues to breed to improve productivity, type and longevity in his herd.

He currently uses those bulls with the highest PD value for milk and cheese yield. "I cannot emphasize enough the importance of increasing production in the Jersey breed to make her more profitable," states Bok. He has also been using some young sires for the last two years through the PGA program at COBA/Select Sires. Bok believes, "As more breeders begin to use young sires the reliability of the proofs will be more accurate."

Bok regularly invests in Equity to help promote a stronger market for Jersey milk. According to Bok in his home town of Defiance, high protein breeds are "few and far between" and marketing of milk is one of his biggest concerns. He says, "Equity has been there to open new markets for high protein milk."

Bok has supported Jersey sales with top consignments in the Ohio Jersey Breeders Spring and Fall Sales where a couple of times he has had the second-high priced animals. He also consigned to the 1987 Jersey Protein Sale.

Samuel and his wife Julie have two children, Wendy Marie, 3, and Andy, seven months old.

Brigham Brothers Receive National Jersey Award

REYNOLDSBURG, OH — John and Heather Brigham, along with Brent and Diane Brigham, St. Albans, Vt., have been awarded The American Jersey Cattle Club's 1989 Young Jersey Dairyman Award. The Brighams are among seven winners from across the United States who have excelled in dairy farming and Jersey cattle breeding. They have also been very active in AJCC programs and Jersey functions. The winners will be honored at an awards breakfast June 17 at the AJCC-NAJ Annual Meeting in Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

John and Brent Brigham started raising calves while finishing college in 1975. After college they began building a dairy operation. The Holyoke farmland has been in their family for many generations. But, John and Brent had to build the dairy operation from the ground up. They built a freestall barn in 1976 and progressively added to the operation. In 1982 the brothers built a herringbone parlor and modified it in 1987. A computer was added in 1984.

The Brighams are always willing to try the latest and most profitable methods of feeding. In 1986 they sold their feed equipment and started rotational grazing and purchased all other feeds. Cows are fed corn silage, haylage, and alfalfa hay. A loose grain mix is used in the parlor through the computerized feeders.

The Brighams have used the TPE program for the past three years and have invested in Equity for the past five years. John has been active in efforts to improve their protein premium received from the St. Albans Cooperative Creamery and to form a Franklin County Association.

Animal Nutritionists Discuss New Research Data

NEW YORK, NY — The latest research data in animal nutrition and disease research were presented to several hundred scientists, nutritionists and feed industry representatives at the 37th Annual Pfizer Research Conference recently in Kansas City, Mo. A highlight of the conference was CBS anchorman Charles Kuralt.

Five university experts presented new research information. The speaker were: Dr. Steve Leeson, University of Guelph; Dr. James Pettigrew, Jr., University of Minnesota; Dr. George Fahey, Jr., University of Illinois; Dr. Elliot Block, McGill University; and Dr. Duane Ullrey, Michigan State University.

Their topics were, respectively: maximizing egg production by monitoring diet in poultry; the relationship of diet and reproductive performance in swine; factors affecting fiber digestion by ruminants; strategic deworming of dairy cattle; and how to determine nutritional requirements of zoo animals.

Feeding for egg production

The first conference speaker, poultry nutrition expert Dr. Steve Leeson, reported that to maximize egg production, today's producers must carefully monitor their birds' nutritional condition long before the egg-laying stage.

In Leeson's estimation, the key to successful egg production is "ensuring adequate availability of nutrients." He warns, "With modern strains of chickens and turkeys, such nutrients come from body reserves as well as feed."

For that reason, Leeson said rearing programs must be tailored to provide body reserves in proportion to the expected deficit between voluntary feed intake and egg mass output.

With broiler breeders, Leeson explained, the major cause of failure to reach peak production is inadequate supply of total nutrients from the feed and body reserves. With leghorn birds, stimulating feed intake during early egg production becomes critical. For breeder hens, nutritional programs must consider both egg production and composition of the egg in relation to successful incubation.

"Feeding for optimum egg production has become a little more complicated than simply formulating laying diets," Leeson concluded.

Hog diets and reproduction

Long-term effects of diet are also being studied in the swine industry. Dr. James Pettigrew, Jr., an expert in swine nutrition, unveiled a mathematical model that is being used to determine the connection between diet and reproductive performance.

The mathematical model of lactating sow metabolism estimates body weight and composition, milk yield and composition, and metabolite concentrations under various sets of conditions.

"This model is not intended for field use, but is a tool to help nutritionists understand the biological system and clarify questions to be addressed by animal studies," Pettigrew said.

"There is increasing evidence that energy and protein nutrition of the sow during her first lactation may affect the interval between weaning and estrus after the first litter and the size of the second litter," Pettigrew said.

Research of this type is proving that common reproductive problems in commercial pork production may be related to improper nutrition.

Fiber digestion in cows

Like the mathematical model Pettigrew uses, new research methods also are helping answer questions in the area of ruminant nutrition. According to Dr. George Fahey Jr., ruminant researchers are attempting to identify and examine factors affecting fiber digestion by using new techniques that quantify plant fiber components.

"It is likely that several factors, acting in concert, may affect fiber digestibility," Fahey said. "It is also important to recognize that constraints to digestion are likely to involve differences in cell wall organization as well as differences in composition and structure of the individual cell wall components.

"This is why some researchers are now advocating a holistic approach to the study of plant cell-wall degradation," he explained. "The isolation of individual components of the cell wall can alter their nature and change the inhibitory effects."

Fahey identified several plant cell-wall characteristics that affect fiber digestion -- lignification of the cell wall, covalent bonding of phenolic acids to cell wall carbohydrates, the crystalline structure of the plant cellulose, a limited fibrolytic enzyme accessible space, the proportion of fiber that is resistant to ruminal digestion and the rate of digestion and passage of the potentially digestible fiber.

Deworming controls

Other ruminant research presented at the conference addressed the problem of parasites -- particularly in dairy cattle.

"Parasites cost the North American dairy industry an estimated $350 million a year. Recent New England research shows 98 percent of dairy herds are subclinically infested," Dr. Elliot Block told conference attendees.

This costly and widespread problem can be controlled with the use of broad-spectrum anthelmintics. However, Block warned that the timing of deworming is extremely important.

"It appears that the most effective strategy is to deworm just prior to pasture turnout," Block said. "Thie reduces the number of new eggs deposited onto pastures. In 30 days, a second deworming will help eliminate new infections acquired from the pasture.

"Single-dose treatment at improper times will not accomplish control," Block continued. "A one-time treatment at calving will eliminate gastrointestinal worms, but does not control pasture larvae. As soon as the cows return to pasture, new infections are acquired."

Block's research has shown that addressing the pasture parasite problem, with timely strategic deworming, is the most effective means of obtaining long-term parasite control.

Feeding wild animals in captivity

In addition to domestic animals, this year's Pfizer conference also reviewed nutrition research dealing with wild animals, as Dr. Duane Ullrey addressed the challenge of feeding wild animals in captivity.

"There are hundreds of animal species to consider representing millions of years of evolutionary adaption to particular ecological niches," Ullrey said. "However, very little controlled research has been done on the dietary needs of wild animals."

Ullrey has found that diets for wild animals should be formulated by:

1) considering the animals' natural eating patterns in the wild;

2) recognizing the animals' unique physical characteristics;

3) reviewing the needs of similar species whose requirements are known;

4) evaluating the environmental features that influence energy and nutrient need.

"The space, shelter, temperature and humidity in the environment in which animals are confined will also influence their energy requirements. And food items growing in that environment will affect the need for supplemental food," Ullrey concluded.

Kuralt keynote

Printed Proceedings of the conference were presented to all in attendance. Included in the Proceedings is a review of research, conducted this past year, relating to each speaker's topic area.

In addition to the university speakers, the conference was highlighted by an address from Charles Kuralt. Kuralt, anchorman of CBS News' "Sunday Morning" and explorer/reporter for "On The Road" news segments, spoke about his 30-year career and travels throughout the United States.

Pfizer is a worldwide research-based company with businesses in health care, agriculture, specialty chemicals, materials science and consumer products. The company reported sales of approximately $5.3 billion in 1988.

Greathouse Receives National Jersey Award

REYNOLDSBURG, OH — David Greathouse, Parkersburg, Ill., has been awarded The American Jersey Cattle Club's 1989 Young Jersey Dairyman Award. Greathouse is among seven winners from across the United States who have excelled in dairy farming and Jersey cattle breeding. They have also been very active in AJCC programs and Jersey functions. The winners will be honored at an awards breakfast June 17 at the AJCC-NAJ Annual Meeting in Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

From the time David Greathouse started with Jerseys, his main objective has been to improve them. Greathouse's first rolling herd average was 7,827 lbs. milk and 366 lbs. fat. Today with 24 milking cows his rolling herd average is 13,418 lbs. milk, 596 lbs. fat and 516 lbs. protein.

Two cows partially responsible for the increase in production for Greathouse are Samson Sleeping Goldie and Maple Glen Top Brass Fun. "Goldie" has a projected actual record of 17,560 lbs. milk and 825 lbs. fat with a projected m.e. of 19,919. "Fun," calving as a yearling, has a projected actual record of 13,210 lbs. milk and 659 lbs. fat with an m.e. of 20,574.

Owens Receives National Jersey Award

REYNOLDSBURG. OH — Walter Owens, Frederic, Wis., has been awarded The American Jersey Cattle Club's 1989 Young Jersey Dairyman Award. Owens is among seven winners from across the United States who have excelled in dairy farming and Jersey cattle breeding. They have also been very active in AJCC programs and Jersey functions. The winners will be honored at an awards breakfast June 17 at the AJCC-NAJ Annual Meeting in Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Owens Farm's 287-cow herd maintains a rolling herd average of 11,742 lbs. milk, 603 lbs. fat and 479 lbs. protein. One of the outstanding producers in the herd has been O.F. Fascinator Charity. "Charity" has completed a best record of 5-6 305 17,070 4.5% 767 3.9% 657.

Owens and his family enjoy showing their Jerseys at local and national shows. Sunny Slope Designers Ladygirl, E-92%, has done well in the show ring. She has been Grand Champion at the Wisconsin State Junior Fair and placed as high as third in the All American Junior and Open shows.

Owens has been personally responsible for starting several other young farmers in the Jersey business. He has also been very active in promoting Jerseys and the dairy industry to 4-H youth, FFA and college students.

Fruit Researcher Celebrates 25 Years At Penn State

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The fruit industry has always been a part of Robert Peters' life. Twenty-five years ago, he acepted a position as a technician at the Penn State Fruit Research Laboratory at Biglerville. This year he celebrates a quarter-century of Penn State service.

Peters began working in orchards for M.E. Knouse after graduating from high school. He later worked for Penn Dairies for five years but soon returned to orchard work. When his career with Penn State began, the Fruit Research Lab was located in Arendtsville, under the direction of horticulture professor Dr. Frank Hewetson.

Peters has seen numerous changes in the areas of fruit research and in the Fruit Research Laboratory. One of the most notable changes has been the growth of the lab itself. In 1971, he moved with the lab from a small house in Arendtsville to its present-day facilities near Biglerville. Today, working under Dr. George Greene, Peters is one of two technicians who work with three part-time workers and a summer crew of college students.

Peters notes the changes in the lab's research. "The main projects used to involve cork spots on Yorks," he remembers.

Peters also has witnessed the computerization of fruit research. "We used to keep all of our records using pencils and paper. Now, when we do counts, we use hand-held records in the orchards and the data can be transferred right into the computer in the lab."

Peters says the best part about his job has been its variety. "One day I am working inside and the next day outside," he says. His job responsibilities are varied and include keeping all spray and field records for the horticulture program, pruning, spraying and helping to conduct detailed laboratory experiments.

When he is not working, Peters enjoys fishing and hunting and also maintains a woodworking shop in the basement of his home in northern Adams County. He and his wife, Gertrude, are the parents of two children, Robert Jr. and Kathy. They have one granddaughter. Peters also is on the church council of Trinity United Church of Christ in Biglerville and is a member of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks in Gettysburg and the Adams County Fish and Game Association. In Cameron County, he belongs to the Sinnamahoning Sportsmen's Association and the Wycoff Run Campers Association.

Reicherts Receive 1989 Master Breeder Title

REYNOLDSBURG, OH — Ralph and Betty Reichert of The Jersey Nook, Riley, Kans., will receive the 1989 Master Breeder Award of The American Jersey Cattle Club on June 16, during the organization's 121st Annual Meeting in Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

The Master Breeder Award is bestowed annually to a living member of The American Jersey Cattle Club, who, in the opinion of the Board of Directors, has bred outstanding animals for many years and thereby made a notable contribution to the advancement of the Jersey breed in the United States.

Ralph and Betty Reichert represent the Jersey sector that has made it "on their own." Their herd, The Jersey Nook, was started in 1959 with one grade Jersey cow. In 1973, the grades were sold and the Reicherts started buying "good cows," like Generators Janie Pet, Stardust PF Prestige Blonde and Quck Joy Model, all Excellent, at the All American Sale, select individuals from John Rhodes, Beatrice, Neb., and several from the Texas Blue Bonnet Sale. In 1978, Larry Schirm, and his wife Nancy Reichert Schirm, joined The Jersey Nook operation with their Buttergold Jerseys. From all these acquisitions, the best genetics were kept.

With these tools of the AJCC at hand:

* TPE and Equity Investors (since introduction of the programs in 1976);
* Type evaluation (for two decades); and
* Jersey Journal contract advertising (since 1977);

The Jersey Nook has grown into one of the major herds in the breed today.

The Jersey Nook's 1988 DHIR lactation average of 19,718 lbs. milk and 698 lbs. protein astonished breed watchers world wide. Even Ralph Reichert didn't expect the record-breaking performance of his herd last year, especially with the summer in which several cows died from heat stress.

By his own admission, Ralph Reichert has always selected for milk yield. "when milk goes up, total pounds of protein and fat are going to go up too," he recently commented. "I'm not concerned about what a cow tests as long as she gives 'x' pounds of fat. I've never been hung up on percentages."

"If we're really going to impress Holstein dairymen, we've got to have more milk," Reichert added. "This is where the profit comes from. It's nice to say you're getting $19.00 a hundred for milk, but it doesn't mean much if you're not selling much milk."

This philosophy has taken the Reicherts to profitability with a small (just 41 cows) herd of Jerseys. Consider the record:

* The National Protein Champion and 1985 President's Trophy Winner, Jersey Nooks Saint X, Excellent-94%, was bred by the Reicherts, as was her dam, another Excellent, Hall of Fame producer;
* Over 60 Hall of Fame records have been completed in the herd, by homebred cows 80% of the time;
* Cows from the Jersey Nook hold 22 places on the National Class Leader List, 90% of them were bred by the Reicherts;
* Over 50 cows have been scored Excellent.

Such performance rightfully attracts AI attention. To date, 15 Jersey Nook bulls have been proven in AI, 90% of them plus. The first of these were sired by "Revival", "Celias Master", "Master C", "Saint" and "Quicksilver Noble." In Reichert's opinion, the resulting sons — among them, Jim Dandy, Jersey Nooks Master Magician, Imps Reputation-ET and Jersey Nooks Mr X — were outstanding type bulls, but only moderate for production, as were their sires.

The truly exciting youngsters, from the production standpoint, are "on deck" with three due for proofs in the next year or so. These will be the first Jersey Nook bulls with competitive sires such as Quicksilvers Magic of Ogston, Ruperts Gallant Ruler, Schultz Performing Legend and Highland Magic Duncan.

Dairy-related activities of the Reicherts span the local, county, state and national levels. Both have been supportive 4-H leaders for many years. They have been extensively involved in the Kansas Jersey Cattle Club, with Ralph serving as Director, Vice President and President. He has also served on the committees for the Great Plains Classic and the All American Sale. Ralph was the sparkplug for adoption of herdmate deviation as a primary selection criterion for the Great Plains standard, which is now commonplace in progressive sales across the country.

The Jersey Nook has been featured in numerous articles and roundtables in Hoard's Dairyman, Progressive Farmer, Farmland News, Ag Press and other news publications. The publicity has attracted inquiries from commercial milk producers in the Midwest to the point where Jersey Nook bull calves more often go to Holstein herds for calving ease than they go to the sale yard. The resulting success with crossbred Jerseys has encouraged these dairymen to add or convert to Jerseys.

The story of The Jersey Nook would not be complete without mention of Ralph and Betty's seven children. All were active in 4-H and Jersey youth work with numerous local, state and national achievements. Several won awards in the National Jersey Youth Production Contest as well as a Top 10 placing in the National Youth Achievement Contest.

In sum, The Jersey Nook has achieved "trademark" status in the Jersey breed, an accomplishment befitting the Master Breeders of 1989, Ralph and Betty Reichert.

June Dairy Month Begins In Lancaster

HARRISBURG (Dauphin) — PA Dairy Promotion Program celebrations of "June Dairy Month" will begin Saturday, June 3, when "Lancaster Dairy Day" is held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Long's Park, on the Harrisburg Pike.

With a grant from Pfizer Chemical, the PDPP and the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Promotion Services, Inc. will be introducing a new interactive dairy exhibit consisting of five "stations" dealing with the dairy industry and the production of fluid milk and manufactured dairy products.

"Life on a Farm" will feature a dairy farmer and dairy farm equipment; "Milk — From Cow to You" explains the process by which milk moves from the farm to the consumer; "Fishing for Nutrition" uses food model game cards provided by the Dairy Council, Inc. in a children's game designed to explain the nutritional value of dairy products; and in the fourth station, Dairy Princesses will be performing their imaginative and entertaining skits that highlight various aspects of dairy production — which comprises the largest segment of Pennsylvania agriculture, the state's largest industry.

Participants will be encouraged to go through at least three of the four stations before they go to the fifth station — where free samples of ice cream and other dairy items will be offered.

"June Dairy Month" will continue to be observed by the PDPP statewide throughout the month.

Among the additional events scheduled is "Dairy Day in Pittsburgh," which will be held June 7 in Market Square following a news conference by Carl Herbein, executive director of the Dairy Industry Association of Western Pennsylvania. Included in the day's festivities, which will continue until 2 p.m., will be dairy product give-aways, live band music, Dairy Princess skits, and live remote radio coverage.

From 12 noon to 4 p.m. on June 10, "Dairy Day at Bland Park" in the Blair County town of Tipton, will feature a dairy theme miniature golf course, a "Bossie Toss" bean bag game for the tots, free snacks of milk punch and "cheese-a-butter" spread on crackers, prizes for redemption of REAL seals, cheese-guessing and coloring contests, and hand butter-churning alongside an antique butter churner exhibit.

On June 24, the Erie Zoo, dairy promotion committees of Erie, Crawford and Warren counties, and the MidEast UDIA will team up with PDPP to present "Dairy Day at Erie Zoo," from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. The event will feature soft-serve frozen yogurt samples, children's games and pedal pull races, a dairy petting zoo, a giant sundae, live band music, food preparation demonstrations and REAL seal redemptions.

Milk Market News

BY TOM JURCHAK
Lackawanna Extension

What Goes Down

SCRANTON (Lackawanna) — The Minnesota-Wisconsin Price Series, that had dropped $1.29 in three months from $12.27 to $10.98 responded to the 50 cent change in the support price on April 1 with an increase of 11 cents to $11.09 for April. That's not 50 cents but it's more than most forecasters had predicted. Remember, this is only a three month increase in the support price during the Spring flush and will drop back 50 cents on June 30. With inventories generally adequate, buyers of storable dairy products might have been expected to wait it out rather than bid up the price now. That didn't happen and all during April and into May, began improving especially on barrel cheese. That price in early April was $1.14 a pound and now has advanced five cents to $1.19 well over $1.16 the new support price. Block cheese prices were much slower to start increasing and didn't make their best gains until May but are expected to exceed the $1.20 support price this month.

Powder prices also advanced last month from 79 to 81 cents but larger increases are expected this month to match the world prices that now range from 81 to 90 cents. The new support price for powder is 79 cents but the market was never below that level since last September. Butter is still going nowhere with the market price one cent under the $1.32 support price. Even so, the April M-W at $11.09 is 26 cents above the new support price of $10.83 and 76 cents better than last April.

Cheer Up

So, there's the bright situation you were hoping for to cheer you up after all that rain that kept you out of the fields for most of May. It's no substitute for Spring plowing and planting but enjoy it while you can. You may be disappointed that the M-W increased only 11 cents in April but all the market signs seem to be pointing to better prices in May and June. And when was the last time you saw product prices increasing in the Spring? Not since 1980, the last year you were enjoying a support price of 80 percent of Parity with adjustments going up every six months in October and April.

More Disappointment

If you were disappointed with the 11 cent increase in the M-W you'll be even more disappointed with the 36 cent drop in the Uniform Price in Order 2 in April. Here again, however, the estimates were much lower than the $11.59 you got mainly on the strength of the higher M-W that gave you a seven cent increase in Class II milk which was over 62 percent of the pool in April. Your Louisville Plan take out increased 10 cents this month so the change in the market price was only 26 cents less.

You also have to understand the lag between wholesale market prices of butter, powder and cheese has to be reflected to the M-W price before setting the Class prices handlers pay in Federal Orders. Even then there's an additional two month lag on Class I prices so the increases you find in your milk check will come some time after an increase in the support price or the market price and will continue after the decrease. I keep referring to market changes in the product prices each month so you'll know what to expect in the future -- whether it's good or bad news. This month the future outlook -- for a few months, at least -- is good even though you won't see it in your milk check this month.

Cheer Up, Again

What you will see in your milk check this month is a price that is 67 cents higher than last April. The difference had been dropping each month from 92 cents in January to 66 cents in March. Now it will start back up for the rest of the Spring and Summer months. And that in spite of the fact that milk production continues to increase over last year's record high even with higher feed costs. Production was higher nationally in March by two percent; higher in Order 2 by nearly four percent and higher in Pennsylvania by five percent. How long this will last is hard to predict without knowing what the weather will be this summer, but from last year's experiences feed prices will have to go higher or milk prices lower to slow down production.

Thank Cheeses

According to USDA's Outlook and Situation report, increasing demand for cheese may be able to absorb the increasing milk production but that's assuming the increase will stay at two percent. What appears to be more encouraging each month is the world demand for powder that has maintained a steady increase for eight months but no one wants to predict how long this will last. Until last Fall we've never been able to compete in world dairy markets because of our high support prices. Even now the world price of butter is 81 to 88 cents compared to our support price of $1.32 a pound. Even cheddar cheese sells internationally for 79 to 88 cents while our support price is $1.16 a pound for 500 pound barrels.

Because we have import quotas on dairy products to protect our domestic markets, you are insulated from these low priced foreign products. But it does make you wonder where is all that cheaper powder if someone is selling butter for 81 to 88 cents? If you could make powder without making butter we could solve some of our own surplus butter problems as long as the world powder price stays between 81 and 90 cents.

Watch GATT

Now there's talk of removing all farm subsidies and import quotas as part of the negotiations of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade to facilitate world trade in all farm products. Our wheat and feed grains producers have depended on exports for over half of their sales for many years. Dairymen, on the other hand, have been priced out of world markets and been protected from imports by Section 22 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act. So, the idea of removing farm subsidies and increasing world trade sounds like a good idea but the impact may not be the same on all farm products.

Generally, milk producer organizations have not favored, or at least were skeptical about, the effect of the changes being considered by the GATT negotiators. However, that was before the mandatory milk quotas in Europe that eliminated their surpluses and opened the door for nine months of exporting our own milk powder. Now dairymen have become world traders too and even the National Dairy Board -- all dairymen who run the milk promotion program -- think that "internation-

Pennsylvania Farmers May Harvest 24% More Winter Wheat

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania's winter wheat harvest this summer may surpass last year's production by 24 percent, according to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service.

Based on May 1 conditions, production is forecast at 11,130,000 bushels, compared with the 9,010,000 bushels harvested in the state last year.

PASS estimated that acreage harvested will total 210,000 and forecast the average yield at 53 bushels per acre.

The expected rise in the state's winter wheat crop, which was planted last fall, is in sharp contrast to the national forecast.

As of May 1, U.S. production was forecast at 1.43 billion bushels, 8 percent below the 1988 crop and the lower production since 1978. Extended drought in wheat-producing areas of the Midwest is one factor in 4.3 bushel per acre drop in yield.

Pennsylvania's 1988 tobacco production totaled 18,175,000 pounds. PASS reported.

The state's growers harvested 6,475,000 pounds from 3,500 acres of Southern-Maryland, Type 32 tobacco with an average yield of 1,850 pounds per acre. Value of the Type 32 crop was set at $8.6 million.

Harvest acreage of Pennsylvania, Type 41 tobacco was 6,000, with an average yield of 1,950 pounds per acre. Total production of Type 41 production was placed at 11,700,000 pounds, valued at $11.9 million, PASS reported.

Nationally, tobacco production was 1.37 billion pounds, 15 percent more than in 1987.

Hay stocks on Pennsylvania farms on May 1 totaled 896,000 tons, 92,000 tons below last year's level. U.S. hay stocks as of May 1 were 17.63 million tons, 36 percent below a year earlier.

Loose Smut Turns Barley Heads Black

YORK — Several barley growers have seen a black sooty growth on their barley where the head that contains the seeds would normally be. The barley is infected with a disease commonly referred to as loose smut. "The cases which I have worked with involve seed that the grower used from his own fields last year," according to County Agricultural Agent John Rowehl. "The problem is one of seed treatment, not the fact that it was the farmers' own seed," he adds. The disease begins with the seed becoming infected. Treating the seed with the systemic fungicide carboxin (Vitavax) would have prevented the disease from developing in the barley plant. Yield loss is directly related to the percentage of diseases heads.

U.S. Dairy Outlook

BY BLAIR SMITH
PSU Dept. of Ag Economics

This year promises to have a fairly large surplus of milkfat--but the smallest surplus of skim solids since the early seventies. During January-March, Government purchases of butter totaled 195 million pounds, up more than a fourth from last year. Meanwhile, no nonfat dry milk was bought and cheese removals were almost negligible. Although cheese will be purchased during April-June, 1989 purchases will be very heavily butter. If the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) buys any nonfat dry milk, quantities likely will be very small.

Growing milk production will provide large supplies of both cream and skim milk. Strong growth in commercial use of cheese will absorb much of the increase in the milk supply. The largest changes from recent years are related to sales of butter and nonfat dry milk. Early 1989 commercial use of butter fell from 1988's weak level, even though sales of other cream-based products had recovered. Weakness in butter sales prevented the increase in commercial use of milkfat from matching the increase in production. Market conditions for nonfat dry milk were dramatically different. Increased commercial exports and strong domestic use easily absorbed any available supplies and caused milk to be shifted into butter-nonfat dry milk production. Markets for nonfat dry milk and similar products probably will be tight throughout 1989.

January-March milk production grew 2 percent from a year earlier, despite sharply higher feed costs. High-quality forage has helped sustain growth in output per cow, even though concentrate feeding was little changed from a year earlier. Cow numbers have slipped only slowly, as expansion by some products has largely offset heavier cow slaughter by others. These patterns may persist during the rest of 1989, with annual production rising about 2 percent from 1988's 145.5 billion pounds.

Farm milk prices and wholesale prices of most dairy products dropped from the high seasonal peaks of late 1988 but generally remained above the January-March support levels. On April 1, the support purchase price for nonfat dry milk and cheese were raised to implement a 3-month increase of 50 cents per cwt in the support price for milk as mandated by the Disaster Assistance Act of 1988. Prices probably will be near support levels during the flush season. Although seasonal increases during the second half of 1989 are not likely to match those of the previous year, 1989 farm milk prices probably will average 10-30 cents higher than 1988's $12.21 per cwt.

Early 1989 retail dairy prices rose about as much from a year ago as did rthe indices of prices of all food or of all consumer items. Retail dairy prices may ease in coming months, but the 1989 average increase probably will be 3-5 percent.

Larger milk production has swollen supplies for manufacturing in early 1989. Strong nonfat dry milk prices pulled most of the added supply into butter-nonfat dry milk production. The remainder of the extra supplies basically went into cheese varieties other than American in order to meet growing use. During the rest of 1989, nonfat dry milk and cheese probably will compete actively for milk supplies.

Commercial use (milk equivalent, fat basis) was up slightly in early 1989, mostly becuase of brisk cheese sales. A 2-percent gain in commercial use of milk and dairy products is expected for this year, partially in response to continued economic growth. Sales in 1988 reached 137.2 billion pounds, up 1 percent from 1987.

On March 1, commercial stocks of dairy products stood at 5.0 billion pounds, milk equivalent, similar to a year earlier. While stocks of most products were larger, commercial inventories of American cheese remained low. CCC held sizable stocks of butter but almost no cheese or nonfat dry milk.

Efforts by the European Community and the United States to reduce milk surpluses and accumulated stocks dramatically tightened international markets for nonfat dry milk and other dairy products. International prices of nonfat dry milk probably will remain strong during 1989 because import demand shows no sign of weakening. The high prices have lowered U.S. imports of products using skim solids and created an export market. Conditions also have tightened substantially in international butter markets. However, butter price prospects are not as bright as for nonfat dry milk because import demand probably will soften.

Dairy Bowl 4-H Winners Named

C. Lester Dudrow (center) of Clover Hill was honored as an Extension Pioneer during statewide 75th anniversary celebration of the Cooperative Extension Service, held May 11 in Greenbelt. This picture depicts Dudrow in a familiar situation--posing with a state champion 4-H dairy cattle judging team from Frederick County which he coached. He's shown here with the 1988 state champion senior 4-H team. Team members are (left to right): Stacey Guyton, 17, of Arnoldstown; Teresa Summers, 20, of Country Club Heights; Andrea Raber, 18, of Woodsboro, and Jack Kahler, 19, of Johnsville. Dudrow also was senior coach and Andrea Raber, a member of Frederick County's 1989 State champion senior 4-H dairy bowl team.

Booth Receives National Jersey Award

REYNOLDSBURG, OH — Clifton (Jay) and Laura Booth, have been awarded The American Jersey Cattle Club's 1989 Young Jersey Dairyman Award. The Booths are among seven winners from across the United States who have excelled in dairy farming and Jersey cattle breeding. They have been very active in AJCC programs and Jersey functions. The winners will be honored at an awards breakfast June 17 at the AJCC-NAJ Annual Meeting in Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Jay Booth and his wife Laura own quite a large herd of Jerseys which they register under the prefix Sweet Grass Jerseys. They have a total of 189 cows and 181 heifers. Currently milking are 173 head with a rolling herd average of 13,738 lbs. milk, 655 lbs. fat and 530 lbs. protein. Jay has been a great supporter of Equity and is a benefactor of Multiple Component Pricing in the Great Basin FMMO.

alization" may provide an opportunity to develop foreign markets particularly in the middle and far east countries. The price for these new markets may be the loss of dairy import quotas but it's hard to estimate the bottom line effect of such a tradeoff. Perhaps we'll find a market for our surplus butter.

The decision may be made on what is "the greatest good for the greatest number" of farmers but even in that group dairymen are a definite minority. Hopefully your interests will be well represented but you should closely follow the developments of these GATT negotiations because the decisions will have a very long term effect on your business.

Chester County Farmer

Lange and his family live and operate the 207-acre farm owned by the family matriarch, Jane Gordon Fletcher, an octegenarian. The farm has been in the family since 1896 and provides a living for Lange and his wife, Carla, and his parents, Joan and Warren Hopkins. His sister Ann also works on the farm, while her twin, Sarah, works in Philadelphia but still contributes to the farm operation.

In an effort to protect what they have, Lange and his- family devised a strategy to make the land less desirable to developers. Almost all of the acreage has deed restrictions limiting the number of houses on the land. They also are part of an ag preserve.

Lange looked into selling ag preservation, but found it wouldn't work for him.

"We were told that (Chester County ag preservation board members) couldn't justify going for land here because the difference in land valued for farming versus real estate was too high," Lange said. "They said their dollar would buy more in the western part of the county."

Lange doesn't agree with the ag preservation board's decision. He feels the board would get more social value for their dollar by purchasing farms in suburban areas.

"My theory is that people would benefit more for the space in the suburbs versus land out in western townships," he explained. "The people who would benefit in the western part of the county would be just the farmers. In this area all the people would benefit."

Schulze agrees philosophically with Lange. "Society benefits from having farms in metropolitan areas. The ecological benefits are multitudinous. Society would also benefit from the aesthetics.

"We have to give those who wish to farm in close urban areas and who would otherwise be precluded because of the tax burden a chance to be able to farm."

Lange invites those wishing to discuss this bill to call him at 215/647-0711.

Improve Sales By Knowing Your Customers

ALLENTOWN (Lehigh) — Make more profitable decisions this year by knowing more about the people who buy fruits and vegetables at your roadside stand, farm store or pick-your-own fields. Use customer opinion cards based on master copies you can obtain from the Lehigh County Cooperative Extension office, Room 604-Courthouse, Allentown, PA 18101. It's easy and low-cost.

Customer opinion cards, slipped into the grocery bag at checkout, can help answer these burning (or smoldering) questions:

- Who is attracted to your market?
- How can you compete better?
- What other products could you sell?
- Where should you advertise?

We'll send you free photocopy-ready masters of customer opinion cards at your request. Simply pick the front and back you want and take them to a photocopy service for printing and cutting. Typical cost: six cents a card.

No doubt you look at the obvious customer report card -- the daily or weekly sales receipts from your retail farm market. Receipts give you only a little of what you need to make more profitable decisions. You know if you're on target or not. With the cards, you can find out why people are satisfied and how to keep them coming back for more.

Consumer opinion cards are a good part of the on-going task of researching your market. Contact Jeff Patton, Extension Agent - Marketing, if you would like a more complete picture of market research for your farm business.

National Chicken Cooking

"I can't remember when I did not enjoy cooking." She entered the contest because her boss encouraged her to try it.

Stephen Kessler of New York said he found a recipe using tarragon with chicken. "I hate tarragon so I substituted basil." Although a seasoned cook, Kessler said this was the first time he entered a contest. An attorney in New York City, Kessler said the $10,000 prize money enticed him to try his recipe for Basil Chicken In Cream, which his family and friends enjoy. He added, "It's a no work recipe and tastes excellent—something everyone is looking for."

Betsy Cook of Huntington, West Virginia, competed in the national chicken contest two years ago. She entered her first contest through her local newspaper. "I won and after that I became addicted." Now, she's been contesting for 10 years.

She predicted that judges are looking for something healthy, quick, and easy to prepare. "This (Stir Fry Lemon Chicken) fits the bill," she said.

The last time that the national chicken contest with held in the state was in 1976, in Philadelphia.

The winning recipe follows:

Summer Italian Stuffed Chicken

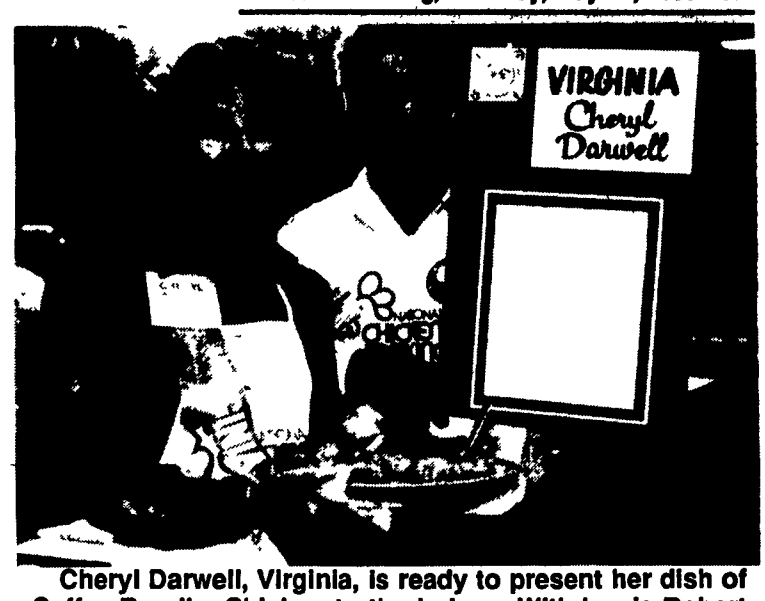
4 broiler-fryer chicken breast halves, boned, skinned
½ cup, plus ⅓ cup bottled oil-vinegar dressing
1 small head radicchio, torn into bite-size pieces
1 small bunch watercress, cut into bite-size pieces
¼ cup fresh basil
2 plum tomatoes, thinly sliced
1 tablespoon water
1 egg
⅔ cup Italian seasoned breadcrumbs
½ cup Parmesan cheese
4 tablespoons olive oil
Tomato rosettes

On hard surface with meat mallet or similar flattening utensil, pound chicken to ¼ -inch thickness; place in large baking pan. Add ½ cup of the oil-vinegar dressing and turn to coat. Cover and refrigerate 30 minutes.

In medium bowl, place radicchio and watercress; add remaining ⅓ cup oil-vinegar dressing and toss to mix. Arrange radicchio mixture on platter; refrigerate.

Remove chicken from oil-vinegar dressing, drain. Cut each chicken breast half in half crosswise. Place an even portion of basil and tomatoes on each of 4 pieces of chicken; with remaining half of breast half and with textured side of meat mallet, pound edges together to seal. In shallow dish, beat water and egg. On wax paper, mix breadcrumbs and Parmesan cheese. Dip chicken, one piece at a time, in egg mixture and then in breadcrumb mixture. In large fry-pan, place oil and heat over medium-high temperature. Add chicken and cook about 10 minutes or until chicken is brown and fork can be inserted with ease. Arrange chicken on top of radicchio mixture. Garnish with tomato rosettes. Makes 4 servings.

Genevieve Lehman of Rockville, Maryland, never entered a contest before. "My boss encouraged me to try," she said.



Cheryl Darwell, Virginia, is ready to present her dish of Coffee Paprika Chicken to the judges. With her is Robert Zimmerman of the Lancaster Poultry Association.

Teen's Life Is A Tribute To Her Mom And Dad

BY MARIANNE WALKER
Centre Co. Correspondent

CENTRE HALL (Centre County) — At this time of year, with the celebration of Mother's Day and Father's Day, those of us who are blessed to be parents are brought face to face with the enormous responsibility with which we've been entrusted. We examine our style of parenting, "Am I pushing her too much?" or, "Am I spending enough time with him?" or, "Does she know how much I care for her?" And then we ponder, "What type of person do I really hope this child becomes?" Recently I met a young woman who embodies those characteristics that I desire for my daughter.

At age 18, Lori Cash demonstrates enthusiasm, ambition, maturity and a caring, "down home" nature. Best of all, Lori attributes the person she's become to her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Erskine Cash.

Lori's dad is a professor of Animal Production at Penn State's main campus. He and his wife raise a herd of 25 Angus cattle on the 40-acre farm they purchased eleven years ago. Lori apparently either inherited from her father or learned by his example the first-rate care for cattle. She and her brother, Chad (now 23), have both shown beef animals since the age of nine.

"Dad has had a big influence on Chad and myself," Lori explains. She quickly added that her father never made her feel compelled to work with their cattle, she said, "I never felt like I had to do it."

But show cattle Lori did, and how she has shown those cattle! Last summer she was the winner of the National Junior Angus Showmanship Contest held in Springfield, Mo. At the same time, Chad was president of the National Junior Angus Association, making 1988 a year for Dr. Cash to be quite proud of his children.

With two representatives from every state, the national competition is a stiff one. This modest "show woman" never dreamed she'd claim the honor. She laughs, "I did not expect to do well. I was the youngest one (competitor). A girl seldom wins it." In fact, Lori was the only female in the top five competitors.

"Through so many years of showing, I have come across so many difficult things that can happen," Lori exclaims.

What is the secret to her showing success? "Dad always told me to be calm," she attests. That placid exterior is a must when a steer you've never laid eyes on is handed to you in the show ring.

To imply that Lori's life centers only on cattle is quite a fallacy, for there is so much more to her than cows. The animal she prefers working with the most is her quarter horse/thoroughbred mare. Lori has shown horses in 4-H for many years, concentrating her efforts on western riding, western pleasure, trail; but most of all, grooming and showmanship. Her show record, here again, is not a shoddy one: in 1985, she was third in the state competition for junior showmanship; in 1987, sixth in the state in the same class. Lori's eyes fill with tears when she says that she will be selling her mare and her two-year old filly in order to start college this year.

Completing her "show string" of farm animals are Lori's crossbred hogs. She has been raising hogs for many years, selling them in the late summer at Centre County's Grange Fair.

For a senior in high school to handle the care and showing of several steers, a horse, and a few pigs is commendable. Lori rises at 5:30 a.m. daily, handling the feeding and barn chores before catching a 7:30 bus. At 4 p.m., her barn duty is repeated. Her weekends are occupied with clipping, preparing the animals for shows, and the inevitable duties of a farm woman.

Horses are Lori's love and with them she has won numerous show awards including third in the state competition for junior showmanship.

Lori's schedule becomes even more astounding to a listener when she gives an account of her high school activities. A member of the National Honor Society, she was vice president of the Student Council at Penns Valley High School this year. She was also president of the Girls' Varsity Club and co-captain of the basketball team.

Basketball has been a real source of accomplishment for Lori, whose team was 22 and 2 this year and made it to finals competition two years in a row. Lori's been a cheerleader since the sixth grade, and this year she won the Poise and Appearance Award in Centre County's Junior Miss pageant. She sings in the school chorus and landed a lead role in her school's annual musical. Lori is also active in her church, singing in the choir and teaching Bible School.

In the '80s we've been deluged with campaigns against the ills of today's youth. but here is a young woman who has resisted those temptations and done so much in her short lifetime. "I like to stay busy," Lori admits with a grin. "I like to keep active and involved and in touch with things."

She explains that her parents required that both she and her brother pay for their college educations. "Mom and Dad said 'you can raise the animals and sell them or get a job,' and I chose this and I'm glad I did. I like it!" she exclaims.

One can only expect the brightest of futures for Lori Cash. She'll be a freshman at Penn State this summer. In keeping with her ambitious attitude she's not waiting to start in the fall! She has strong interests in marketing and communications and she hopes to become active in the Block and Bridle Club and the Equestrian team. "I have no idea where I'll end up or what I'll do," Lori muses. "I do know I'd really like to stay in the country," she adds.

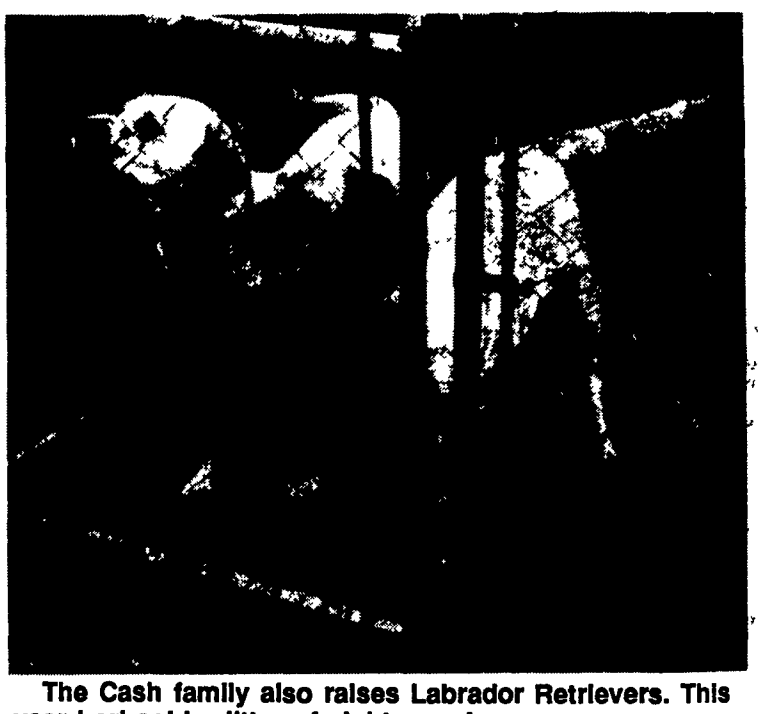
Lori never felt that she missed anything because she was busy at home on the farm. "My best friend shows cattle and pigs," she says. If her other friends want to see her, they visit her at the barn!

By most anyone's standards, Lori's a model young woman. She believes that it's her parents who have molded her into this person who has such a zest for life.

"I attribute it to my mom and dad," Lori says with emotion. "I really feel I owe them a lot. They've inspired and pushed me. When I look back, I'm just thankful they put up with me."

What more could a mother or father ask for?

In addition to caring for her steers, horses, and pigs, Lori is active in high school. She is a member of the National Honor Society, student council, and the basketball team. She also won the Poise and Appearance Award in this year's Centre County Junior Miss pageant.



The Cash family also raises Labrador Retrievers. This year Lori sold a litter of eight puppies.

Lori Cash, an 18-year-old Angus breeder, won the National Junior Angus Showmanship Contest last year in Spring-

MICROWAVE MINUTES

By JOYCE BATTCHER

Surimi seafood microwaves quickly. No, surimi seafood is not a new breed of fish. You may know it as imitation crab meat or lobster tail. Surimi seafood is already cooked and usually frozen, so microwaving is only for heating and thawing.

Surimi seafood is made from Alaskan or Northern Pacific pollock, a mild white-fleshed fish. The word "surimi" is derived from the Japanese term for restructured food. Surimi is prepared under strict control at sea or on shore. Fillets of fresh-caught fish are minced, washed and strained to make a concentrated fish paste. Small amounts of salt, sugar, and/or sorbitol are added to stabilize the protein. The paste is then frozen and transported to a processing plant where it's made into the finished seafood. Binders, such as starch or egg whites, are added. Real shellfish, shellfish extract, or artificial shellfish flavoring is added to make it taste like shellfish. Then it is formed into the shape, texture and color of shellfish, or into flakes or chunks.

Surimi seafood comes in stick or "leg" (as in crab leg) form, lobster tail shape, chunks, or flakes. Surimi is lower on fat and cholesterol (and price) than real crab or lobster. It is higher in sodium. A 4-ounce serving may contain as much as 1,100 milligrams of sodium. (Read package labels -- brands vary.)

Some brands come with microwave thawing directions. I've experimented and found that package directions are often for too much defrosting time. To be safe -- at least the first time -- microwave a minute less than directed on package. About 3 to 4 minutes on Medium Low or Defrost (30 percent power, about 200 watts) is enough for 8 ounces. Package directions usually just give a thawing time. But it's a good idea to turn the package over or separate pieces towards end of thawing time.

When properly thawed, surimi should still be icy cold. Too much thawing recooks and toughens this delicate seafood.

Thawing directions are included with each of today's recipes. Again, be cautious on timing -- timing depends on your microwave's wattage and cooking pattern and on your freezer's temperature. If your microwave has Automatic Defrost by Weight Setting, program in slightly less than actual surimi weight.

Since surimi seafood is already cooked, it can be thawed and used for salads. Drain it on paper towels before using.

If a microwave recipe calls for cooked crab or lobster, surimi seafood can be substituted. There is no difference in microwaving time or technique. Heat pieces, chunks or flakes, covered, on High and stir often. Or double time and heat on Medium (50 percent power, 325-350 watts) -- then less stirring is needed. Heat whole pieces, like crab legs or lobster tail, covered, on Medium for even cooking.

For safety, cook or eat surimi right after thawing and do not refreeze any thawed portions. If used for salads which won't be eaten right away, thaw surimi overnight in the refrigerator, rather than by microwaves.

Try surimi seafood in your favorite microwave recipes or in Speedy and Elegant Seafood on Asparagus (below). I've also included my favorite way to microwave surimi lobster tails. Both recipes are easy to prepare and are ready for eating in minutes. Serve the first with, or on, toasted English muffins. Serve the second with a micro-baked potato (microwave it first, then wrap in foil or cover tightly while cooking surimi) and a tossed salad.

Speedy and Elegant Seafood on Asparagus

1 tablespoon margarine or butter
½ teaspoon dill weed
⅛ teaspoon white pepper
1 package (8 ounces) surimi seafood (imitation crab meat) "legs" or chunks
1 cup low-calorie sour cream
About 12 asparagus spears, cooked and drained

To thaw surimi seafood "legs" or chunks: Follow package directions, allowing 1 minute less than recommended and turning over and rotating package halfway through thawing time. If no directions are given, remove surimi to microwave-safe plate; arrange in dougnut shape and cover with waxed paper. Microwave on Medium Low or Defrost (30 percent power, about 200 watts) 1 minute. Let rest 2 minutes. Continue alternating microwave and rest times until surimi is almost thawed. Pieces should be flexible, but still feel icy cold. (Total microwave time is about 3 to 4 minutes.)

Cut sticks into ½-inch-thick pieces; set aside.

Melt margarine in microwave-safe 1-quart casserole by microwaving (High) about 30 seconds. Stir in dill weed and pepper. Gently stir in surimi seafood. Cover with lid or waxed paper. Microwave (High) 2 to 3 minutes, stirring after 1 minute. Stir in sour cream; re-cover and microwave (High) 2 to 3 minutes or until hot. Pour over hot drained asparagus on individual plates or serving platter. Makes 2 to 3 servings.

Each serving - ⅓ of recipe: 194 calories, 13g protein, 9g fat, 16g carbohydrate, 558-879mg sodium, 36mg cholesterol.

Surimi Lobster Tails in Lemon Butter Sauce

1 package (8 ounces) surimi seafood lobster tails
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon butter
¼ teaspoon onion powder
⅛ teaspoon white pepper
Chopped fresh parsley

To thaw surimi lobster tails: Follow package directions, allowing 1 minute less than package recommends and turning over and rotating halfway through thawing time. If no directions are given, remove surimi to microwave-safe plate; arrange in doughnut shape and cover with waxed paper. Microwave on Medium Low or Defrost (30 percent power, about 200 watts) for 2 minutes. Let rest 2 minutes. Continue microwaving (Medium Low) 2 more minutes. Let stand until thawed. Pieces should be flexible, but still feel icy cold.

Place lemon juice, butter, onion powder and white pepper in microwave-safe pie plate. Microwave (High) 1 minute or until butter melts. Stir well. Add surimi lobster tails, turning to coat both sides with butter mixture. Cover with waxed paper. Microwave on Medium (50 percent power, about 325-350 watts) 1½ minutes; rotate dish and continue microwaving (Medium) 1 to 1½ minutes more or until surimi feels hot. Let stand 2 minutes. Sprinkle with chopped parsley. Makes 2 servings.

Each serving: 164 calories, 14g protein, 6g fat, 14g carbohydrate, 950-1,183mg sodium, 31mg cholesterol.

Dear Golden Pride:

I am a diabetic. I had severe pains in my legs and could hardly touch them. My feet were completely black from sugar diabetes. I had to go to a diabetic clinic in... I was taking 120 units of insulin per day.

I am taking Golden Pride's Formula #1 - one teaspoon each day. When my sugar started coming down, I took off one unit in the morning and one unit at night. Initially, my sugar count went up in the beginning of taking Formula #1. I am down to 80 units now. MY FEET ARE COMPLETELY NORMAL! No more black legs and feet. No more fear of amputation!

I had arthritis so bad I couldn't even put a hand on my wrist watch because of so much pain. Now you can squeeze my hand and no arthritis pain. I am very thankful for Golden Pride!

September 1988

Dear Golden Pride:

I had a bad leg ulcer for a long time. Nothing my medical doctor did helped it. I had many other problems too. A good friend sold Golden Pride products and she stopped into my store to talk to me many times. Finally I started with the Products #1, #2 and #4.

As I started taking the program, I noticed that the open cracks in the corner of my mouth were healing. No more low grade fevers and my drepression is much improved. My leg ulcer started to recede and dry up within one week. At a check-up my medical doctor said, "Whatever you're doing, keep it up." Thanks again Golden Pride.

On being a farm wife -And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Unrest stirred the rural countryside. Where farmers gathered for business and local gossip, the unrest stirred and simmered through ongoing discussion and debate.

Bought goods were costly. Luxuries were almost completely out of reach for much of the rural populace.

Then, the despised possibility of a tax on tea became reality. Under force of the hated tax, the weakening political dam, holding back the churning forces of frustration and rebellion, finally cracked, and then split completely apart.

Angry farmers, hastily organized into a mere resemblance of military militia, but armed with the passion for freedom, fired those first shots that would forever alter history's course.

For freedom.

Our forefathers and mothers forsook that which was close, and comfortable, and familiar for freedom. They bid farewell forever to loved ones and homelands. For freedom.

And, countless have given their lives since that time.

For freedom.

The American Revolution was just the beginning of sacrifice of lives in pursuit of those freedoms which have become synonymous with America. Other bitter conflicts followed — in 1812, the Civil War, Spanish-American fighting, the war to end all wars, World War I, a tragic successor when it didn't, World War II, the Korean conflict, the tragedy of Vietnam.

Among my childhood memories are vivid recollections of clusters of folks, heads bowed, bearing bouquets of spring flowers, gathered in the cemetery of the nearby, small town where we attended church. Large flags fluttered in the late May breeze, while old soldiers stood at attention in uniforms that had seen them through less quiet moments.

Peonies, red and white, almost always bloomed for Memorial Day, along with old-fashioned "blue flags," or iris. They provided bouquets in the traditional patriotic colors for graves of loved ones. "Decoration Day," my mother called it, a term rarely heard any longer for this poignant holiday. And small American flags marked the resting places of those who had made the ultimate sacrifice.

For freedom.

Memorial Day is no longer so widely remembered for its noble intention to honor those who carved out the freedoms we far too often take for granted. To be sure, there are still services in cemeteries, and parades in small hometown communities, where local veterans march and remember. Too frequently, few more than those actively participating in such memorial tributes gather to remember.

What do today's youngsters know of Memorial Day? Picnics and beach visits, a three-day weekend from work and school, ball tournaments, swimming pool openings, holiday flea markets and special sales at shopping areas.

Even now, while we routinely take for granted the rights to assemble, to free speech, to vote on those who will govern, thousands openly struggle for the freedoms we sometimes blatantly ignore, sometimes abuse.

Students raised in communistic regimes rally support from masses eager to throw off political and economic depression. Guerilla warfare erupts in dense jungle terrains in struggles against corrupt dictators.

For freedom.

On this Memorial Day weekend, may we pause to remember, with heartfelt thanks, those who have paid the ultimate price . . . . for freedom.

Flavorful Recipes For The Outdoor Cook

The call of the outdoors makes summertime grilling fun. Grilling offers an opportunity to experiment with meat and vegetables. And, its the perfect time to experiment with marinades and rubs that add unique flavors to meats.

A marinade is a highly seasoned liquid used to impart flavor, and in some cases, tenderize less tender cuts of beef. A rub is a higly concentrated blend of herbs and spices that flavor the exterior of the meat as it grills.

Marinades usually consist of liquid ingredients such as fruit or vegetable juices, wine, water and oil in combination with seasonings and herbs. Meat is allowed to soak in the mariande mixture for several hours or as long as overnight to impart flavor and tenderize. To tenderize, a marinade must contain an acidic ingredient such as lemon juice, wine, vinegar or yogurt; the acid penetrates meat fibers to help tenderize them.

Guidelines for marinating:

•Always marinate meat in refrigerator; never at room temperature.

•Allow ¼ to ½ cup marinade for each one to two pounds of meat.

•Marinades may be cooked or uncooked. Cooked marinades add the most flavor and are preferred when marinating for more than 12 hours.

•Cooked marinades should be completely cooled before adding to beef.

•The tenderizing effect of a marinade is usually about ¼ -inch from the cut surface of the meat.

•A heavy-duty plastic bag is convenient for marinating, a glass utility dish may also be used. Select dishes in which the meat will fit snugly but lie flat.

•Turn beef occasionally during marinating so that all sides are equally exposed to the marinade.

•For tenderization to take place, meat must be marinated at least six hours or as long as overnight. Marinating longer than 24 hours causes the meat fibers on the surface to break down, resulting in a "mushy" texture.

•For flavor, marinate 15 minutes or as long as two hours.

•Remaining marinade may be brushed on meat during grilling. Marinades which have a high sugar content, or contain other ingredients which might burn easily should be brushed on only during the last 20 minutes of grilling.

Rubs:

Rubs are applied to the exterior of the meat just before grilling; they need no standing time. However, for convenience, rubs may be applied several hours in advance; the coated meat should be refrigerated until grilling time. Flavors become more pronounce the longer the rub is on the meat.

Press edges together securely to seal. Broil patties over medium coals, 5 to 6 minutes or until desired doneness. Toast buns on grill one minute, if desired. 3 tablespoons sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon onion salt
1 teaspoon celery seed
2 tablespoon vinegar
6 tablespoons mayonnaise
4 tablespoons salad oil
Medium-sized cabbage, shredded

ANSWER — Ruth Kalwasinski, Hastings, requested recipes for hard salami. Thanks to an anonymous reader who sent one in from "Great Sausage Recipes" by Rytek Kutas.

Dry-Cured Hard Salami for 10 pounds

9 tablespoons salt
1 ounce powdered dextrose
2 level teaspoons Prague Powder No. 2
1 tablespoon white pepper
1 teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon garlic powder, optional
2 ounces corn syrup solids
2½ pounds lean boneless beef
6½ pounds lean pork
1 pound backfat

Be sure that all the meat is chilled around 30-32 degrees. Grind the beef through a ⅛ -inch grinder plate and all the pork through a ⅜ -inch plate. Backfat should be cut or diced into ¾ - to 1-inch squares and frozen. Place all the meat into a mixer, adding remaining ingredients. Mix well. Grind all the meat through a ⅛ -inch plate. Pack all the meat into tubs not over 6 inches high. Be sure that the meat is packed very tightly to eliminate the air pockets. Hold in a cooler at 38-40 degrees for 72 hours.

Remove meat from cooler. Place in stuffer and pack the meat very tightly to eliminate air pockets. The meat should be stuffed into a defatted beef middle about 3 inches in diameter and 20 inches long. If available, you can use a protein-lined fibrous casting. After stuffing the casings full, tie the ends and wrap the salami with a loop about every 2 or 3 inches, to give it that stuffed look.

Salami should be allowed to cure for 3 to 4 days at 70-75 degrees with a relative humidity of 70 to 80 percent. Dry salami need not be smoked; however, if you wish to smoke, be sure that the temperature of the smokehouse never reaches over 90 degrees. It is best to smoke the salami at temperatures of 75-80 degrees with relative humidity of 70 percent. Keep in smokehouse until the desired color is obtained.

The smoked salami should be kept at 50-60 degrees. For salami that is not smoked, keep at 40-50 degrees with a relative humidity of 70-72 percent. This salami is fully dried when it loses 25 percent of its green weight. This takes from 85-90 days.

ANSWER — Kathryn Graby, Annville, requested a recipe for Friendship Fruit. It is a mixture of fruit, brandy and sugar served on top of ice cream, ham or baked in a cake. Thanks to a reader for sending hers in. Brenda Wenger of Ephrata writes that if anyone should want her starter for the recipe, they can have it free by writing her at 460 Sunnyside Rd., Ephrata, Pa., 17522.

Brandied Fruit

For starter, place ¾ cup drained, chopped pineapples; ¾-cup drained, chopped peaches; 6 chopped maraschino cherries; and 1½ tablespoons dry yeast into a 1-quart container with loose-fitting top. Stir 3-4 times the first day.

At the end of two weeks, add 1 cup chopped pineapple and 1 cup sugar. Stir every 2-3 days. After another two weeks, add 1 cup chopped peaches and 1 cup sugar. Stir every 2-3 days. Two weeks later, add 1 cup chopped maraschino cherries and 1 cup sugar. Stir every two or three days and let it work for at least two weeks. To keep the starter going, add more fruit and sugar every two weeks.

At the end of the eighth week, the addition of fruit and sugar in the above order and amounts should be started all over again. You may have to put the starter in a larger jar. Never use citrus fruits or let the starter drop below 3 cups. Apricots can be used. Never refrigerate or seal the jar.

Friendship Cake

1 yellow cake mix
⅔ cup oil
4 eggs
⅓ cup starter juice (drained liquid from starter)
1 small box instant vanilla pudding
2 cups starter fruit
1 cup chopped nuts
Mix all together and bake in greased tube or bundt pan at 350 degrees for 50 to 70 minutes.

CORN ON THE COB

Remove husks from fresh corn. Remove silk with a stiff brush. Place each ear on pieces of aluminum foil. Spread corn liberally with soft butter and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Wrap aluminum foil securely around each ear. Don't seal seam, but fold or twist foil around ends (this allows corn to roast rather than steam).

Place on grill and roast over hot coals for 15 to 20 minutes or until corn is tender, turning ear frequently. Offer extra butter, salt, and pepper or pass a variety of whipped butter flavored with horseradish, anise and herbs.

Horseradish butter:

½ cup butter
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1 teaspoon Horseradish
Salt and pepper
Snipped parsley

Combine butter, mustard, horseradish, salt, and pepper. Cream until light and fluffy. If desired, garnish butter with snipped parsley.

Anise butter:

Soften 1 teaspoon anise seeds in one teaspoon of boiling water for 30 minutes. Add both anise seeds and water to one half cup slightly soften butter. Beat with electric mixer or wooden spoon until fluffy.

1 pound pinquito (pink) beans
Water
2 large onions, chopped
⅓ cup bottled red chili sauce (hot)
2 cloves garlic, minced
2 teaspoons instant beef bouillon granules
1 teaspoon salt

Place beans and 6 cups cold water in Dutch oven. Let stand overnight (at least 6 to 8 hours). Do not refrigerate. Drain and rinse. Add 5 cups water to beans. Bring to a boil. Stir in beef, onions, hot chili sauce, garlic, bouillon and salt. Cover tightly; reduce heat and cook slowly 2½ to 3 hours or until beef shreds easily and beans are tender. Stir mixture occasionally while cooking. Yield: 7 cups.

Question Corner

ANSWER — Edith Moyer, Souderton, requested a recipe for chocolate eclairs. Thanks to Marian Martin, Lebanon, and Belinda Myers, Dallastown, for theirs.

Chocolate Eclairs

½ cup butter
1 cup water
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup flour
4 eggs
¾ cup sugar
¼ cup flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1½ cups milk
6 egg yolks
1½ teaspoons vanilla
2 squares semi sweet chocolate
2 tablespoons butter
1 cup confectioners' sugar
3 tablespoons milk

Grease two large cookie sheets. Beat butter, water, and ¼ teaspoon salt in 4-quart saucepan. Remove from heat. Add 1 cup flour and form ball. Add eggs, one at a time, beating after each addition. Cool mix slightly. Spoon onto cookie sheets. Mound into rectangles. Bake at 375 degrees for 40 minutes. Cut slit in sides. Bake 10 minutes longer. Turn off oven and let remain inside for 10 minutes. Remove from oven.

In a saucepan, mix sugar, flour, and salt. Stir in milk. Over medium heat cook until thickens and boils. Boil 1 minute. In bowl beat egg yolks. Beat in a small amount of the cooked mixture into the yolks. Add to mixture. Cook over heat until mixture thickens and coats spoon, about 8 minutes longer. Don't allow to boil rapidly. Remove from heat. Add vanilla. Chill about 2 hours.

If desired, vanilla pudding mixed with 1½ cups milk and whipped cream can be substituted for above pudding.

ANSWER — Mary Hammond, Wellsboro, requested a recipe for oat bran bread. Thanks to an anonymous reader who sent one in from "The 8-Week Cholesterol Cure" by Robert E. Kowalski.

Oatmeal Bread

¾ cup boiling water
½ cup old-fashioned rolled oats
3 tablespoons margarine
⅓ cup honey
1 teaspoon salt
1 envelope active dry yeast
¼ cup very warm water
½ container egg substitute or 1 egg
½ teaspoon sugar
2 cups all-purpose flour
¾ cup oat bran cereal, milled to flour in blender

Stir together the first five ingredients in a large bowl until well mixed. Let cool to warm. Sprinkle the yeast over the very warm water; add the ½ teaspoon sugar and stir to dissolve the yeast. Let it stand for about 10 minutes or until it bubbles. Next add the yeast mixture, egg substitute, 1½ cups flour, and oat bran to the oatmeal mixture. Beat with an electric mixer at low speed for 2 minutes while gradually adding the rest of the flour. Put the dough into a 9x5x3-inch loaf pan sprayed with non-stick spray. Cover with waxed paper and a towel and put the pan in a warm draft-free place. Let dough double in bulk, about 45 minutes. Bake in preheated oven at 375 degrees for about 1 hour.

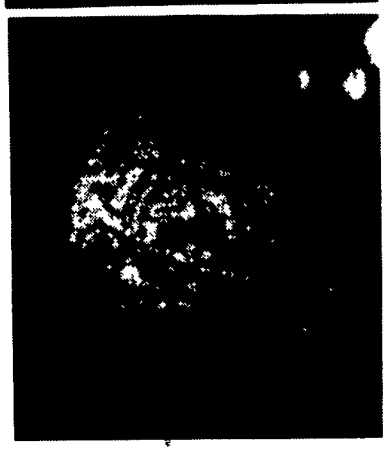
Town Seal Inspired By Dairy Heritage

By Sharon B. Schuster
Maryland Correspondent

UNION BRIDGE — Take a close look at the official town seal of Union Bridge, Maryland. Cleverly included in the design by P. Richard Eichman, is a butter churn. It represents the rich dairy heritage of this Carroll County community.

Back in 1817, almost 175 years ago, Union Bridge was settled by farming families drawn by the fertile land. According to The History of Western Maryland, by J. Thomas Scharf, the dairy business flourished and led to the organization of the first agricultural society in Carroll County, known as the 'Patrons of Husbandry'.



At a time when dairymen had to overcome the inconveniences of areas of swampland and woods with "impenetrable undergrowth," they also had to stand guard against "ravenous wolves constantly prowling the clearings for unguarded stock and unwary passersby." In spite of the dangers and hardships of the time, Scharf reported that the intelligent and hardworking farmers of Union Bridge produced a superior product that was dubbed 'gilt-edged butter'.

Members of the Patrons of Husbandry sought to bypass the middleman. According to Scharf, "the plan of the club . . . was to produce a first-rate article and deliver it directly to the consumer. A person who did not make a good article could not be a member of the club, and they established a first-class reputation."

The 'gilt-edged butter' that was produced commanded 'fancy prices'. The History . . . notes that the club "ran a wagon, which conveyed the produce to the Baltimore market every week. Scharf said the members took turns driving the wagon and each furnished his own horse to pull it. Once at the market, the club member "acted as agent for the association."

With the advent of the railroad the business continued to enjoy success. Scharf wrote that "the rapid transportation furnished by the railroads has enabled [the citizens of Union Bridge] to build up a trade in the products of the dairy unsurpassed probably elsewhere in Maryland." It was reported that butter was handled in such large quantities that "the village became known as 'Buttersburg' ".

Today, Carroll ranks second in the largest milk producing counties of Maryland, as reported by the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Area. And Union Bridge plays an important part in maintaining that rank with the likes of Peace and Plenty Farm, showcase dairy farm of Nona and Joe Schwartzbeck, past president of the Maryland State Holstein Association.

The importance of Union Bridge's dairy industry didn't escape the attention of local artist, P. Richard Eichman. When the Town fathers solicited designs for the first official Town seal since its incorporation in 1983, Eichman's design was chosen unanimously from 19 entries. "A butter churn commemorates the original name of Union Bridge, which was 'Buttersburg'," reported a 1983 account of the adoption of the seal. The design has since been reproduced on colorful plates and a commemorative edition plate in celebration of Carroll County's sesquicentennial in 1987. Eichman won a $40 first prize for his insightful entry.

Jenny is a junior at Coudersport High School where she is a member of FFA, marching band, concert band, chorus, select chorus, honor society, orchestra, basketball cheerleader, football cheerleader, and is a track statistican. Following her graduation from high school, Jenny plans to study environmental law at Penn State University. She lists her hobbies as showing her three dairy animals, promoting milk, singing, playing the piano and violin, reading, riding horseback, sewing, cooking, public speaking, and spending time with her family and friends. Jenny works at the Coudersport Golf Course and teaches piano.

For her presentation, Jenny was a space commander reporting back to base from earth many years into the future. She had found a primitive earth dwelling believed to be an eating area. She was glad to find that there were dairy products back then so she could enjoy a glass of milk.

Also taking part in the program with a presentation was Lorie Angood who will be serving another year as dairy maid. Lorie's presentation was about the Mother Rabbit getting all the Easter baskets filled with dairy products including milk chocolate cows.

Jennifer Brown began her new assignment as Potter County's reigning dairy princess.

Lorie Angood is the daughter of David and Lorraine Angood, Ulysses. She is in tenth grade at Northern Potter High School where she is a member of the chorus. Lorie is currently serving as Potter County 4-H Queen. She is a member of the 4-H County Council, 4-H Exchange Club, and the Dairywide 4-H Club. Lorie enjoys reading and spending time with her friends when she is not helping on the family farm.

Guest speakers for the evening were Karl Kroeck, vice chairman of the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Board and Leo Dunn, Chief of Farm Operations and Agriculture Research for the Department of Agriculture.

Sam Crossley, Potter County Extension Director, served as master of ceremonies of the coronation. Milk punch and dessert followed the coronation.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Yesterday I spent 13 hours registering people to vote in the primary election. It is the one time that I get to see a lot of my neighbors. Long ago there was more small community interaction as people gathered at small country churches and in the summer for Sunday School picnics. Now we seem to jump in our cars and travel to a distant church or find our entertainment across the country somewhere. Then we complain about the congested roads.

This will be a busy week for me as I plan to attend a May luncheon in Lancaster. And, I must decide on a salad to take along to the luncheon. I'm much better at preparing a variety of desserts. Recently I took an "Apple Torte" to a gathering and was complimented quite a bit for my "walnut" cake. Yes, I did put black walnuts in it which I had cracked but I didn't think it was a big deal. The other ladies told me they would not take the trouble to crack hard black walnuts. I agree that it takes time but you can always do it while watching the evening news on television. I simply must get those bags of walnuts, hanging in my cellar, used before they get too old and rancid.

While I was writing this article the phone rang and a local grocery store told me that I had won a "fabulous prize" of ten dollars off my next grocery bill. Now I shall have to decide what to buy that is special and not usually on my list -- maybe apricots or pineapples.

When I was a young girl we called May 30 "Decoration Day" and we took some of our dark red peonies to the cemetery to put on graves of relatives. This year May 29 will be commemorated as "Memorial Day" and I'll try to take some of my pink peonies and large blue iris to the graveyard where my parents and sisters are buried. Ancestors from both sides of my family are buried in the Landis Valley Cemetery. Some of the earliest gravestones are for Shreiners and Landises.

Oriental Dish Wins Beef Cook-Off

ROME, NY — Winner of the first prize in the indoor category at the 1989 New York Beef Cook-Off is Aline Ballentine, a resident of Wawarsing. Her winning dish was Chiang Mai Steaks. The New York contest was held April 29th in Syracuse at the State Fairgrounds.

Aline will join other state Indoor Category winners from across the country at The National Beef Cook-Off to be held in Portland, Oregon from September 17-19th. As the winner of the New York contest Aline takes home $200 plus an additional $500 towards her expenses to compete in Portland, where she'll be vying for the $5,000 top prize in the Conventional category. Plus she'll have a chance at the $10,000 prize for Best Of Beef.

The winner of the Outdoor Barbecue Category in Syracuse was Wally Saglett of Canandaigua. She prepared for the judges Wally's Flank Steak and takes home the $200 top prize in the category. Her recipe along with others from The New England Region will now be prepared for a professional panel of judges by The Meat Board Test Kitchens. The regional winner selected also will compete in Portland for $5,000 plus the chance at The $10,000 Best Of Beef prize.

The New York Beef Cook-Off was sponsored by The New York Cattlewomen in cooperation with The New York Beef Industry Council, Inc.

Learning through Failure

We had an enjoyable day on Mother's day as all of our family gathered together to celebrate May birthdays and Mother's Day. Our extended family of seven children, six and under, made a delightful afternoon. It was fun to watch the four year old try to throw the soft ball into the mini basketball net and the 6 year old try to hit a wiffle ball. The 1 and a half year olds were busily trying to fill a bucket full of sand.

Regardless of age, one thing all the children did that afternoon was fail. They made effort after effort to hit the basket or the ball. But it took the failures to make the accomplishment exciting. We all applauded when the ball finally sunk into the basket and when the wiffle ball connected with the bat and when the bucket was full of sand.

During childhood, boys and girls gain abilities in reading, writing, running, dancing, jumping rope and many many other tasks. These abilities take practice, and are rarely perfected without a great deal of trial and error.

It's important to remember that children may fail at a task or an activity; however, it is not the child who is a failure. A child is not a failure as a person if he cannot hit a softball well or is not a top reader in the classroom. No one is a failure as a person. Each person has dignity, value, and worth.

Children learn through their failures, and they need to learn that it is all right to fail and try again. Even in adult years, life is full of trying and trying again to accomplish a task. For example, how many times will you make an effort to get the lawn mower started? Probably more than just once! It is through failure that we learn what is possible or what does not work. This is an important lesson for children who are discovering the world.

The greatest resource we can give to our children is to help them recognize that they can look to themselves to find answers. It is far easier to "help" a child by providing quick adult answers. But, children develop their own inner abilities when they are given the opportunity to experience and think about life's encounters.

So the next time your child is making an attempt at a new task, be there to encourage them. Reinforce a positive attitude such as the little train who could by saying "I think I can, I think I can!". And remember to recognize their successes. Now, I must get back to that lawn mower and give it another try!

Oat Bran Fever

CHICAGO, IL — Rather than succumbing to "oat bran fever," consumers should learn the facts when it comes to the subject of cholesterol, according to Dr. Donald McNamara. McNamara is conducting cholesterol research, funded by the beef checkoff, at the University of Arizona.

A serum (blood) cholesterol level of less than 200 mg per deciliter is considered optimum by the medical community. McNamara says a common mistake made by the public is equating dietary cholesterol with blood cholesterol. "Most of the information that shows up in popular or even health magazines just broadly talks about lowering your cholesterol. We have to stop and ask if we are talking about lowering dietary or blood cholesterol," McNamara says. "There is a distinct difference. And for most of us, dietary cholesterol does not determine our blood cholesterol level."

Recent studies show that some people automatically regulate cholesterol production in response to dietary cholesterol levels, while others lack this ability to regulate. The good news is, 70-80% of the population has the ability to regulate serum cholesterol production. Almost 90% of blood cholesterol is produced by the body. It's blood cholesterol that really determines heart disease risk.

"Some people consume vast amounts of dietary cholesterol and their blood cholesterol levels will stay at 150, putting them in the very low risk group. Some people can totally cut out dietary cholesterol and their cholesterol levels stay at 300 and they are in a very high risk group," McNamara says. "If someone wants to try to reduce their risk for heart disease, looking at risk factors in order of importance, the major factor is cigarette smoking. The next most important risk factor is an elevated blood pressure, followed by blood cholesterol levels. After that we run into a collection of things including obesity, milk diabetes, lack of exercise and high stress."

McNamara suggests consumers should visit their physician to find out what their cholesterol level is. If cholesterol is a problem, the necessary lifestyle changes need to be made. "If you discover that changes need to be made, don't just go and buy a book in the bookstore, go and see a registered dietitian and spend a little time finding out how to make changes that fit into your lifestyle. After you have given your lifestyle changes a two- or three-month trial, go back and have cholesterol measured again. The follow-up is almost as important a component as getting the initial cholesterol measured in the first place."

About Blanket Care?

It will soon be time to store winter blankets. Woolen blankets need to be cleaned before being stored. CHECK CARE LABEL, and if laundering is recommended consider the following method. Carefully read the following directions to avoid a combination of heat, moisture, and agitation that can cause wool fiber to felt.

Fill your washer with cool water, add detergent and agitate to completely disperse the product. Stop the washer and load the unfolded blanket evenly around the agitator. Soak for 10 to 15 minutes, then agitate on the gentle cycle for one minute. Stop the washer. Advance the timer to the drain cycle and spin for about one minute.

Rinse by filling the washer with cold water for a deep rinse. Add fabric softener and allow washer to complete the rest of the cycle automatically. For dryer drying, set temperature selector to the "high" setting. Place three or four dry bath towels in the dryer and turn the dryer on for a few minutes. Heated towels help to absorb moisture and dry the blanket more quickly. Reset your temperature control to "air" or "fluff" and place the blanket in dryer. Set timer control to 20 minutes.

Check after ten minutes and remove the blanket while still damp. Over-drying and excessive tumbling may cause shrinkage. Place the blanket on a flat surface or stretch over two clothes lines to complete drying. Brush up the nap using a nylon brush. Press the binding with a cool iron, if necessary. To line dry, hang the blanket over two parallel lines and straighten. Then brush up the nap with a nylon brush.

Fine Tune Your Retirement Marriage

If a marriage is to satisfy the needs of both husband and wife in retirement, some fine tuning is probably in order. Perhaps you have been able to do some advance planning. That's a good start, but developing some strategies for everyday living can add smoothness, purpose and variety to each week.

Joint planning helps you maintain a sense of control over your life as a couple. Instead of being propelled by outside forces, you can be the planners for much of your life. You will feel a greater sense of accomplishment and relaxation if you get out the calendar and figure out the right balance of activities for each of you a week or more in advance.

Prior to planning, assess how well you are monitoring two extremely important factors in retirement life satisfaction: HEALTH and FINANCES. Are you assuming responsibility for maintaining the highest level of health fitness as possible? Regular medical checkups? An exercise program in consultation with your physician? Treatment for chronic ailments? Nutritious meals? Weight watching?

What about your FINANCES? Regardless of your income, do you discuss and shop for the best interest on savings? Do you plan expenditures together? Do you have a clear picture of your financial situation? Do you know how much each of you would have to live on if widowed?

As you plan together, ask if you are doing the following: Showing interest in your spouse's abilities and individual activities? Planning some time together each day doing something you both enjoy? Allowing time for personal neatness and grooming? Planning special activities with other people? Planning time to help others in whatever ways you can?

If you and your spouse disagree about use of time or the kitchen, be ready to compromise.

Cedar Crest

Recently the Cedar Crest FFA participated in the Berks, Lebanon, Schuylkill Area Small Gas Engines and Meats Judging Contest held at the Berks County Ag Center.

The Small Gas Engines Contest consists of a written test and repairing a bugged engine so that it will start and run to specifications. There were two different teams that represented Cedar Crest. Tom Camasta and Andy Ill comprised team 1 and Eric Williams and Brian Boyd were team 2. As a team, Camasta and Ill placed seventh and the Williams and Boyd team placed second. Camasta was fifteenth individual, Ill was eleventh, Williams placed second, and Boyd placed fourth. They were the first place Lebanon County team. Williams and Boyd will represent the Berks, Lebanon, Schuylkill area in the State Engine Contest in June.

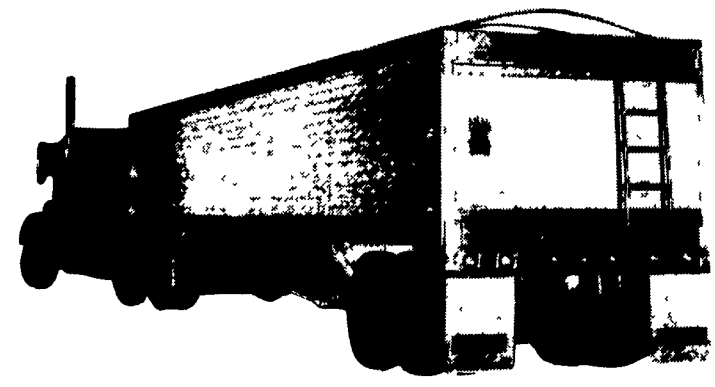
REDESIGNED 1989 TIMPTE GRAIN HOPPER



Got Grain? Then get the trailer that is Timpte tough... the Super Hopper. It's not only built to take it...it's also built to cut fuel costs. The Super Hopper is lightweight and aerodynamically designed to reduce wind drag. When there's grain to be hauled, Timpte does the haulin' best and pulls a lot easier than the rest.

24 foot Ruff Neck trailer on left is Eby's workhorse. Trailer on the right is an economical, 16 foot Wrangler.

Get outstanding value in EVERY Eby trailer.

Whether it's a top-of-the-line Ruff Neck or an economical Wrangler, you know your livestock trailer is built to last if it's from Eby.

Aluminum construction is one of the main reasons these trailers are so durable and reliable. They'll never rust through or need welding. In fact, without ever being painted, an Eby livestock trailer will stay looking new for years.

Standard features make your Eby trailer a profitable investment. Extra-heavy axles, brakes, wheels and tires. Thick aluminum sheet flooring. Sturdy posts and rails. Even an aerodynamically designed front end is standard.

And, while standard features make even the economical Eby Wrangler far more than an average economy-model, we custom-build everything we make. So you tell us what you want. Choose from a long list of options. Select those features you need for your particular operation. Whether it's a Wrangler or deluxe Ruff Neck, the trailer you buy will be the trailer you need.

Call or write for more information.

Entomologist Celebrates 25 Years At Penn State

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — This year Gene Staub celebrates 25 years of service as a technician with the department of entomology at the College of Agriculture's Fruit Research Laboratory at Biglerville. He describes his quarter-century with Penn State as "wonderful!"

Staub has seen many changes at the fruit laboratory. "The work definitely has gotten more technical," he says. "It used to be primarily spraying, mowing and trimming the orchards. Now, we do experimental work year-round." Staub also has become more involved in the lab's research work through the years.

Staub always has worked in the fruit industry. While operating his father's fruit farm, he was hired by entomology professor Dean Asquith to prune trees on a part-time basis. Those duties eventually led to a full-time position. He currently he is one of two technicians working for Dr. Larry Hull, associate professor of entomology.

Until 1971, the Fruit Research Lab was located in a house in Arendtsville. "That facility was adequate at the time," he says. As new technology was developed, however, the lab was moved to its present modern facilities near Biglerville. "The quality of the work has definitely improved at the new facility," Staub says.

Staub remembers that when he started, the entomology department did "mostly mite and codling moth experiments." Now, he notes, "we study all kinds of insects." Staub's job responsibilities include summertime maintenance of the orchards and assisting with spray experiments. In the winter, he prunes trees and assists with experiments in the laboratory.

"The most interesting part of my job has been what I've learned from it all of these years," he says. "I've learned a lot about entomology in 25 years."

After work hours, Staub enjoys working in the large garden which he and his wife, Ida, have at their home in Brysonia, a small community in northern Adams County. In addition to working around the house and hunting, he also keeps busy by staying in touch with the couple's two children, Wesley and Becky, and their two grandchildren. Staub has served on the church council of Trinity Lutheran Church in Arendtsville and was involved with local scouting programs for a number of years.

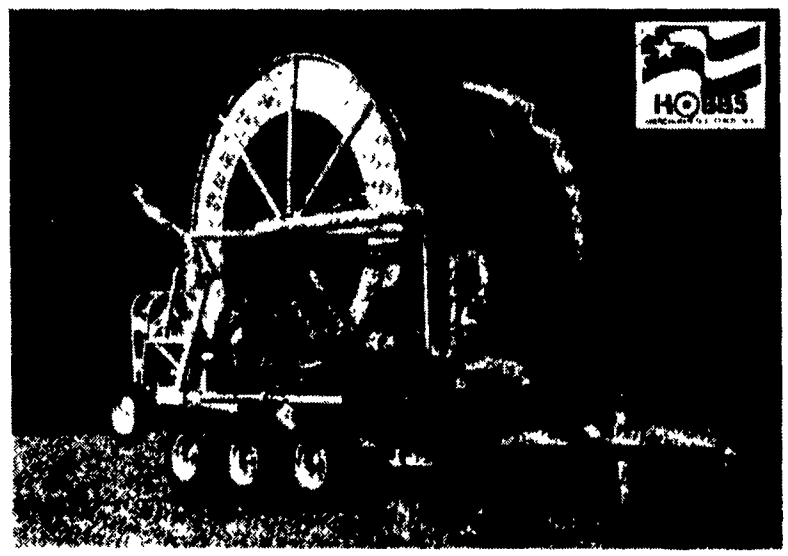
Reel Rain, American Made Quality Irrigation



Imitated but not duplicated. Many imports are copying the proven design of Hobbs Reel Rain Irrigation systems. What they can't copy is the years of experience that have gone into perfecting the Reel Rain design. Today's Reel Rain systems are the best ever. They're stronger, simpler to operate, and more dependable. We offer fourteen models from which to choose depending on the number of acres you intend to irrigate. With the optional engine drive each unit becomes a cost effective solution to removing liquid manure from your holding ponds and lagoons.

COMPARE THESE FEATURES AND OPTIONS

Simple hydraulics allows one valve to operate the lift and stabilizer cylinders. Center plumbing means less hose length and easier coupling.

The basic box is heavy-duty steel welded seams, and reinforced for even more strength.

Standard offset hitch adjusts in 5-inch steps to lengths from 6'3" to 7'11". To allow for different row crop spacings, you can offset either right or left 5, 7½, 10 or 12½ inches.

Rub rails offer more protection to vehicles when approaching, during dumping cycle, and when departing.

Stabilizer cylinders hydraulicly lock on to axle to hold wagon rigid during dump cycle.

Galvanized roof features vent insert for straight-through air flow.

DO YOU FARM HILLS? WE HAVE ONE UNIT IN STOCK WITH BRAKES READY TO GO!

The model 700 dump wagon is designed for years of trouble free service. The hydraulic system with a cable assist is designed to unload large loads of up to 20,000 lbs. quickly and efficiently even if the load is not distributed evenly.

RICHARDTON

Make your operation safer • Use year round • Variety of crops • All field conditions • Operate in wet and muddy

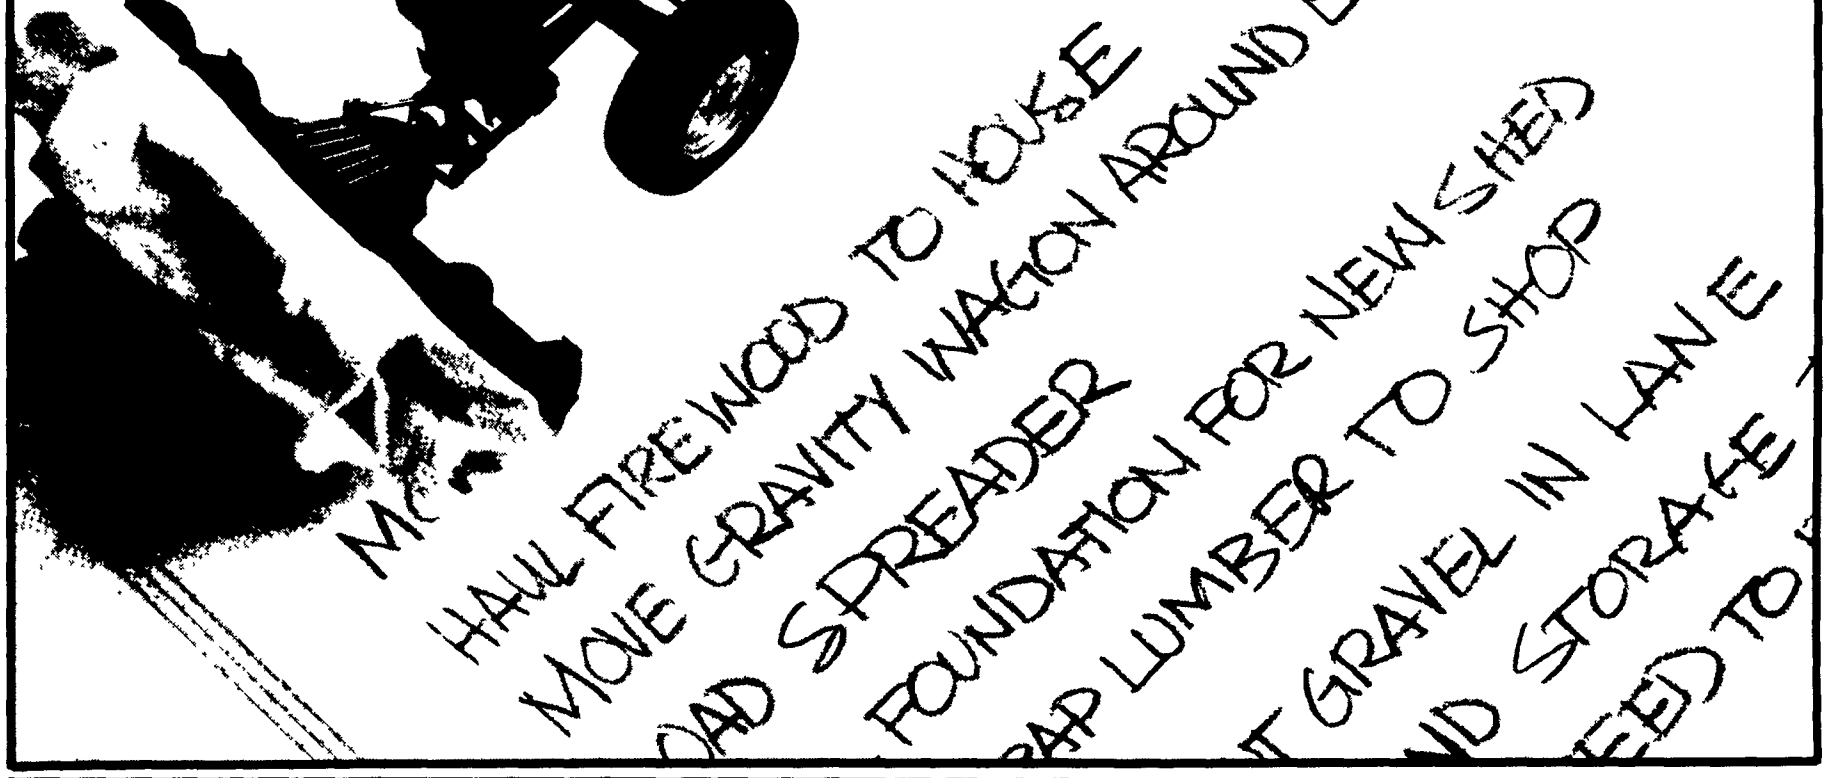
WITH A CASE IH IMPLEMENT, YOUR SMALL MIRACLE IS COMPLETE.

You'll get the most out of your 200 Series tractor when you attach a precision-mated Case IH implement.

We have loaders, snow blowers, front- and rear-mounted blades and front-, mid- and rear-mounted mowing decks for nearly every model.

Of course, the 265 Offset tractor isn't complete without its special 265 one-row cultivator.

And even the hardiest winter warrior will welcome the protection of a 200 Series windbreaker.



TRY ONE OF OURS.

Once you slide behind the wheel of a Case IH 200 Series tractor, that overwhelming job list will simply disappear.

Each of our five small miracles can help you perform some magic of your own around the farm. Suddenly you'll have the perfect partner for all those nagging little chores that a big tractor just can't perform efficiently. And when the tough stuff is finished, you can always take your 200 Series tractor up to the house and cut the grass.

Remember, there's only one line of small tractors that has the power and support of Case IH behind it. And as for miracles? Turn a 200 Series tractor loose on your job list, and it'll make a believer out of you.

Top-of-the line Case IH 275 offers 31 engine hp (23.1 kW). Optional Mechanical Front Drive and quick-attach 72 in. (1.83 m) dozer blade make short work of big jobs.

Simple Design.....Easy Operation

If you're looking for extra-easy operation, the Gehl Models 1310 and 1710 fixed chamber round balers can't be beat. No other balers are as easy to operate. The pickup feeds material directly into the baling chamber, so these balers easily handle all crops and conditions. Incoming material gently tumbles inside the chamber, gradually forming the bale. The operator simply keeps an eye on the pressure gauge; when it reaches the factory recommended psi the bale is complete. Stop by your Gehl dealer today for more information on these easy-to-operate balers from Gehl.

The one spreader for the two spreader farm

Spread liquids, semi-solids, solids, pen-packed, even frozen manure. A Gehl Scavenger® II manure spreader does the work of two spreaders for the price of one. It's built for efficiency, with a heavy-duty square-tube auger that works harder than conventional round augers. The auger powers up and down hydraulically to prevent bridging and cut through winter freeze-ups. Variflo front, right-hand discharge gives you complete application control.

BRAND FEEDING SYSTEM EQUIPMENT

Lancaster BELT FEEDER AND "NEW" Lancaster CONVEYOR. Modern dairy and beef feedlots can be automated with the use of bunk feeders using "belt feeder" units Corn silage, haylage, high moisture corn and other feed material can be distributed quietly, evenly and with no separation. A traveling plow unit places the feed directly to the center of the bunk trough Simple operation and very low horsepower requirements make this Lancaster belt feeder popular with dairy and beef operators. Rubber belt and wooden trough design—keeps silage from contacting or corroding metal

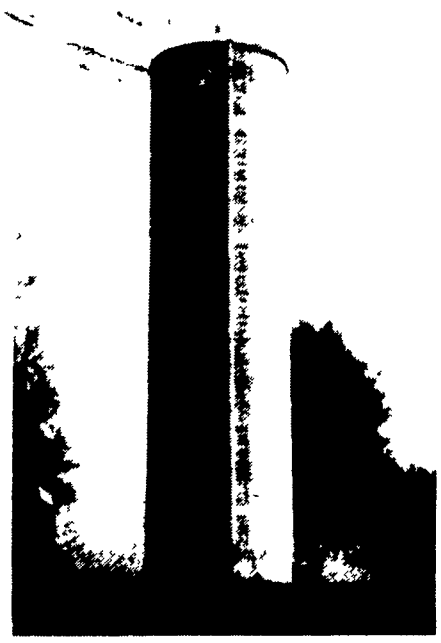
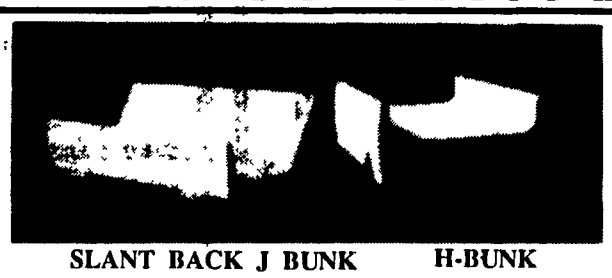
FEEDING SYSTEMS

"Consider The Concrete Advantages"

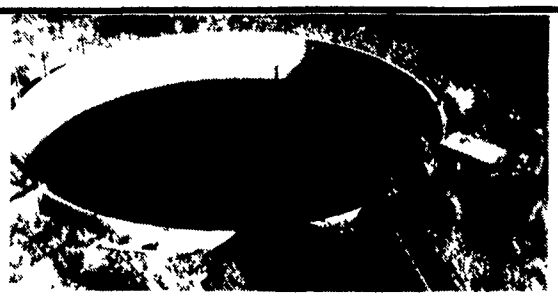


The best storage system for high moisture cob corn is a poured concrete SOLLENBERGER SILO, with bottom unloading. The feed can be safely stored at less than 30% moisture, air is effectively excluded limiting mold growth, the silo is equipped with a distributor to keep separation to a minimum which means more efficient unloading and consistent ration. The 6" solid concrete wall reflects heat meaning that heat damage is minimized and feed is kept cooler. Now Is "Decision Time". Make Plans Now To Have Your Sollenberger Silo Erected In Time To Store Your High Moisture Ground Ear Corn.



SLANT BACK J BUNK H-BUNK

Let Us Know Your Needs. We Can Deliver From Our Large Inventory And Set On Your Prepared Site. OR: We Can Load On Your Truck To Help Save On Freight Costs. We Have Several Sizes And Styles To Choose From, Plus Metal Posts, For Cable, Which Can Be Bolted To The Bunk To Keep Cattle Out.



MANURE STORAGE SYSTEMS

- Manure Storage Systems For The Small Herd - or The 400 Cow Herds And Larger.
- Systems Adaptable To Any Type Equipment
- SCS Approved
- Circular Tanks Poured-In-Place Above Ground - In Ground - Or Uneven Backfill.
- Pre-Cast Concrete panels Delivered And Set On Your Prepared Site.

CONSIDER THE ADVANTAGES OF HIGH MOISTURE EAR CORN

Farmers who use ground shelled corn rather than ground ear corn when putting up high moisture corn (HMC) are not only leaving the cob in the field, but they are leaving at least $150. worth of milk per acre of corn in the field.

These remarks were made by Dr Howard Larson, noted Mid-Western dairy nutritionist and management specialist

Further comments based upon years of research included

* Any amount of cob is better than none
* It is not economically feasible nor best for the cow to feed high moisture shelled corn.
* It is not necessary to feed hay to dairy cows.

When cob is included with the grian, you not only get an extra 10 to 12 percent HMC by weight, but you get better digestibility in your cows. By adding the cob to the ration, you keep a floor of fiber under the total ration and fiber can supply a lot of energy; and you get better rumen action.

PRE-CAST BUNKER SILOS

"THE ECONOMICAL CHOICE"
STORAGE FOR ANY FORAGE
Also Suitable For Grain Storage, And Practically Any Other Bulk Material.

The Sollenberger Pre-Cast Bunker Silo Panel Is Designed To Be Free-Standing. With The Tongue and Groove Edges. It Can Be Coated With Mastic & Bolted Together To Give An Air-Tight Smooth Wall That's Easy To Pack And "Keeps Feed Good." Delivered And Set On Your Prepared Gravel Base.

Parasite Compounds

Every few years we're fortunate to have a few more safe and effective compounds available to help producers control parasites on their operations. In order to help producers compare the characteristics of these compounds, I've compiled a list of the widely used materials.

EXTERNAL PARASITES

Mange Control

Mange is caused by a mite that burrows under the skin, causing itching and restlessness in the pig. Studies show that mange can impair feed efficiency in growing pigs by more than 10 percent, and can decrease baby pig survival by .6 pig/litter. Under field conditions, it's been demonstrated that the annual cost of mange is $80 per sow.

Effective mange control compounds include Permectrin and Ectiban (permethrins, spray), Prolate (organophosphate, spray), Taktic (amitraz, spray) and Ivomec (ivermectin, injectable). Here are some characteristics and approximate costs for each of these compounds:

PERMECTRIN, ECTIBAN No age restrictions. 5 day withdrawal. High pressure required (100 - 200 PSI). 2 applications necessary (7 -10 days apart). $18.00 - 37.00 for 50 gallons.

The $37.00 cost is associated with a high concentration of permethrin that may be needed when sows or pigs are badly infested. For normal control, a 50 gallon batch will cost about $18.00.

PROLATE Can not be used on pigs under 3 months of age. 1 day withdrawal.

High pressure required (100 - 200 PSI). 2 applications necessary (7 -10 days apart). $23.00 for 50 gallons.

TAKTIC No age restrictions. 1 day withdrawal. Partially systemic. Low pressure adequate due to systemic action (minimum 35 PSI). 2 applications necessary (7 -10 days apart). $33.00 for 50 gallons.

While Taktic is more expensive than the other sprays, it has the distinct advantage of being partially systemic. That means the active ingredient is absorbed into the bloodstream of the pig, and also means that lower pressure can be used, and the entire pig does not need to be soaked.

IVOMEC No age restrictions. 18 day withdrawal. Must be injected under the skin. 1 application will provide good control with no further exposure. $.80 per 100 lb pig ($32 for 40 pigs).

The 50 gallons of spray calculated for the previous compounds would be enough to treat at least 100 pigs. Ivomec is clearly the duct on the market, but it does require injection, and it is more expensive. When used as a control measure for both internal and external parasites, the economics get a lot more attractive for Ivomec.

No matter what compound your choose, remember that for good mange control, sows should be treated 10 days before farrowing. Pigs should be treated shortly after weaning.

Lice Control

Lice are insects about an 1/8 of an inch long. They're often found behind the ears, especially in mature swine. Lice cause itching, but they do not make pigs as uncomfortable as mange.

Any product that is effective against mange will also control lice. In addition, one compound that's labeled only for lice is Tiguvon (fenthion, pour on). Here are the characteristics and approximate cost Tiguvon:

TIGUVON Pour on 1/2 oz/100 lbs of body weight. Can be used on lactating sows. 14 day withdrawal. $.10 per 100 lb pig ($32 for 320 pigs).

Tiguvon is very effective against lice. It's systemic and the compound remains in the system long enough that one application is sufficient, provided pigs are not re-exposed.

INTERNAL PARASITES

Worms cost swine producers money by damaging the liver and lungs of pigs, obstructing the digestive tract, competing for nutrients and adding to the pig's discomfort. Infestation of pigs less than 100 pounds causes the greatest economic losses. The worms that affect Pennsylvania include the large roundworm, the nodular worm, the whipworm and the lungworm.

Pigs become infected with large roundworms by consuming eggs in the pen. The eggs hatch in the small intestine. Larvae then cause damage as they migrate through the liver and lungs, and are finally coughed up and swallowed. Once back in the intestinal tract, the larvae grow to adults. The life cycle of the nodular worm and whipworm is similar, except that larvae do not migrate through the liver and lungs. With the lungworm, eggs are eaten by earthworms, which are then consumed by the pig. Larvae eventually pass into the lungs. The lungworm is the only internal parasite that will not be a problem in confinement.

Effective compounds for controlling internal parasites include Atgard (feed grade, dichlorvos), Tramisol (levamisole, feed grade or water), Safeguard (fenbendazole, feed grade), Banminth (pyrantel tartrate, feed grade), and Ivomec (ivermectin, injectable).

Rabbit Conference Planned For June

EBENSBURG (Cambria Co.) — Saturday, June 3, will find many people all over Pennsylvania converging on the Cambria County fairgrounds, Ebensburg. The program, beginning at 8:30 a.m. at the Agricultural Building at the fairgrounds, will be of interest to all who are engaged in or plan to raise rabbits.

Registration fee is $10 for adults, 16 and over, and free for those under 16.

The program in the morning will include a discussion of prevention or control of major health disorders by Dr. David Kradel, Veterinarian, Penn State; a program by Dr. Owen Keene and Herbert Jordan, both of Penn State; and a discussion and demonstration on how to prepare a rabbit for show by Dale Gearhart, rabbit breeder and judge, of Hollidaysburg, Pa.

After lunch there will be a panel of local rabbit 4-H leaders and local rabbit breeders discussing how they manage rabbits in their situation. This will be chaired by Don Shirk, Vintondale, and will include: George Myers, Barnesboro; John Oravec, Nanty Glo; and Roger Clark, Belsano.

Larry Yager of ag economics at Penn State Extension will talk about developing markets, and discuss rabbit breeding.

There will be a brief discussion of the Pennsylvania Rabbit Breeders' Association by Linda Claar of Woodward, president of the group. This is an affiliate of the American Rabbit Breeders' Association.

There will then be an evening meal at the United Methodist Church in Ebensburg, and the day will finish back at the fairgrounds with a "Rare Rabbit Show."

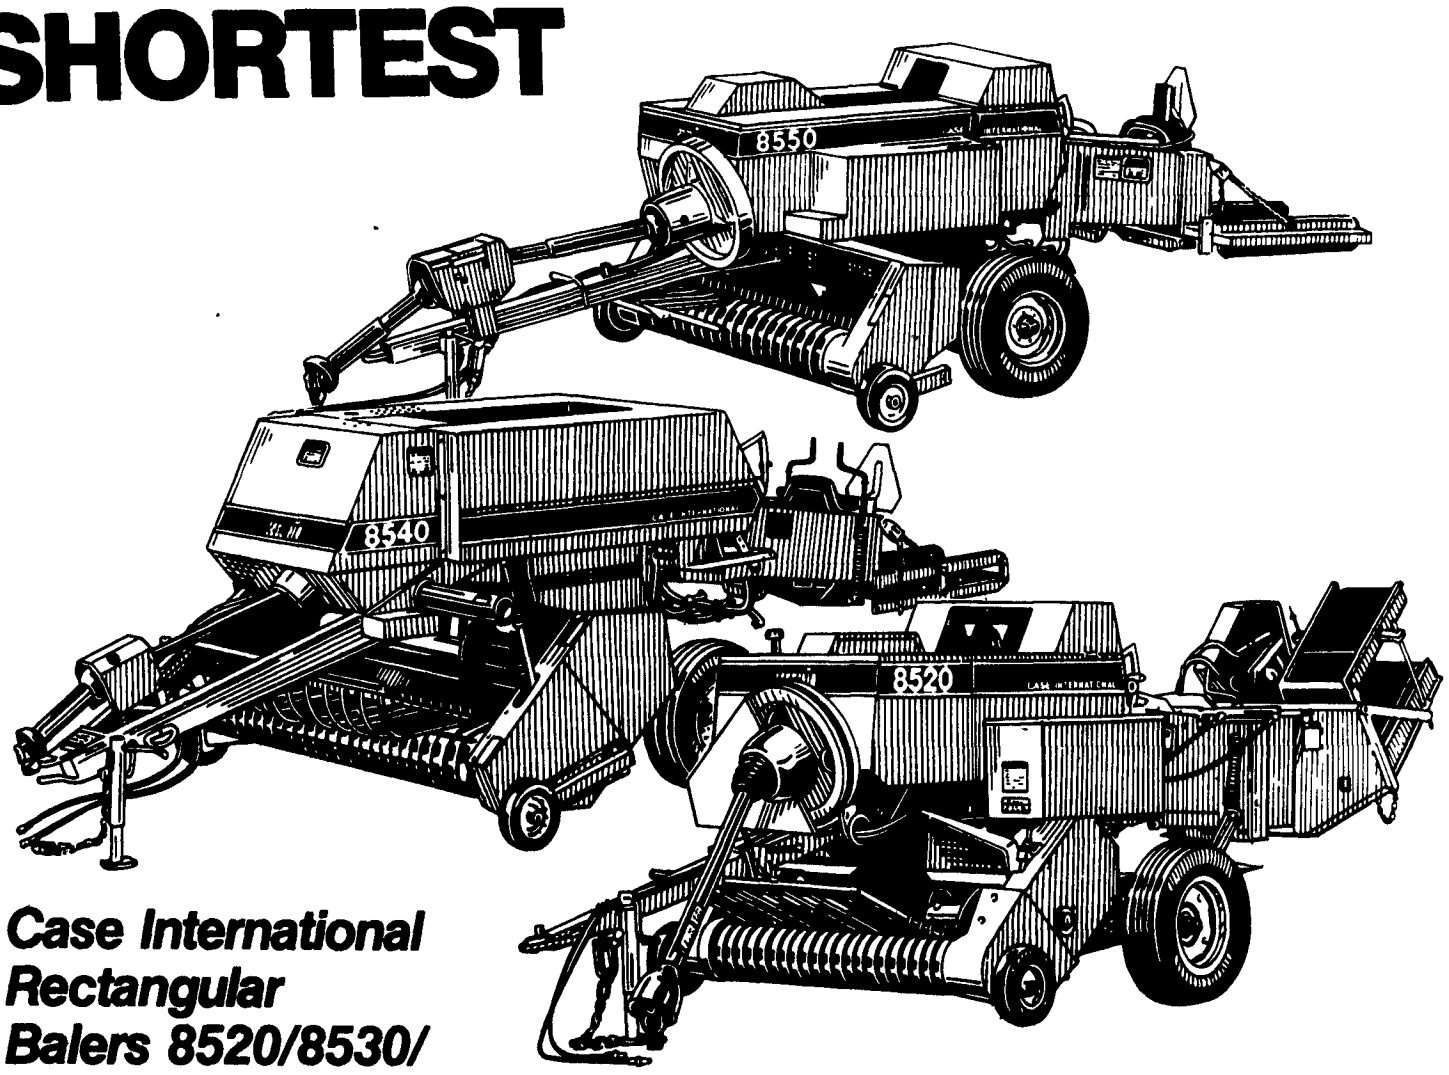
A STRAIGHT LINE IS STILL SHORTEST



Case International Rectangular Balers 8520/8530/ 8540/8550/8580

That's why all five 8500 Series Case IH Rectangular Balers give you center line design. Your hay moves in a straight line from the time it's picked up until it leaves the baler as a tight, uniform bale.

Center line means there are no corners to turn to get crop into the bale chamber as with conventional balers. Nutritious leaves go into the bale, not on the ground. And with the baler directly behind the tractor, it's easy to transport through narrow bridges and gates.

Case IH Rectangular Balers also give you:

- Wide, low-profile pickups collect full, heavy windrows with leaf-saving gentleness because the crop is not lifted as high to get it into the baler
- Prepacker chamber compresses hay into uniform flakes
- Flake size, density and bale size are more uniform
- High-speed, short-stroke plunger to pack bales tighter
- Hydraulic density control (optional on 8540, standard on 8550/8580) to regulate chamber pressure for tighter, square-shouldered bales for easier stacking

Produce tighter, more uniform bales — on schedule.

Farmers Face Wet Weather Woes

NEWARK, DE. — It hasn't been 40 days and nights yet, so you don't need to build an ark for your livestock. But you may have to make some decisions soon about what to do with your fields, whether you've got them planted or are still waiting.

"Corn that is up may have poor color—most likely due to the cold weather," says Dean Belt, University of Delaware New Castle County Extension agent. "Some corn also may be injured by herbicide. But depending on the variety and the extent of the damage, the corn should grow out of it as soon as the weather warms up."

The heavy rains may have diluted herbicide concentrations, says Frank Webb, Extension weed specialist.

"If weeds have escaped, it's important to catch them while they are young," Webb says. "Check for weed breaks early."

Wet weather has created ideal conditions for some pests. Bob Mulrooney, New Castle County Extension agent, warns farmers to be on the lookout for cutworms, particularly in trashy and no-till areas. A 3 percent cut-plant rate would indicate a problem, he says. Mulrooney says that seed corn maggots may also be prevalent and can cause problems for full-season, no-till soybeans.

The agent notes that the wet, cool weather is ideal for slugs and has also increased powdery mildew in wheat. He suggests that farmers continue to scout fields until flowering to assess the need for foliar applications of fungicide to protect yields.

"Cereal leaf beetles on small grains are getting to be a problem," notes Derby Walker, Sussex County Extension agent. "And begin checking barley now for armyworms. As the barley matures, armyworms will move up and start cutting heads. Wheat should be checked soon because the armyworms will move on to that crop. You'll find heavy populations in fields with grain lodging and lush growth."

Compaction is another problem to look for, says Walker. Poor stands with uneven growth are an indication.

"If your corn is planted, but not up, dig up some of the kernels and look for rot before you decide to reseed," says Walker.

He suggests that farmers who are considering reseeding a corn field evaluate the situation carefully before making a decision.

"Wait to see what kind of stand you get," he says. "A less-than-ideal stand can be more economical than reseeding at a late date."

Growers who still haven't planted have the same concerns as those who may reseed.

"It's just about too late to plant corn because yields will suffer if corn is planted after May 20-25 without irrigation," says Walker. "But if you insist on planting corn, be sure to plant a short-season or 100-day hybrid."

Webb says if you've used early preplant herbicide on your field and were planning for corn but couldn't get it into the ground, you still have the option of planting sorghum.

"Sorghum is usually not considered for planting in the northern part of Delaware, because the ground is so well-suited to corn," Belt says. "But with the weather situation at hand, sorghum is a viable alternative. The sandy loam and silt loam soils of northern Delaware are well-suited to sorghum. And since there has already been a shift to plant soybeans, the demand for feed grain this fall will increase. This should be reflected in prices. Switching to sorghum will allow the farmer to take advantage of the feed grain market because sorghum will be in demand as a replacement for corn."

Belt advises growers considering sorghum to have a confirmed market before planting. Northern Delaware producers may have to haul their grain to southern Delaware for sale, he adds.

Sorghum is considered a replacement for corn according to Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) guidelines. A farmer with a 200-acre contract for corn cannot plant 100 acres of sorghum in addition to 200 acres of corn. The two crops must total the feed grain guidelines.

Pork Prose

For the worms that affect Pennsylvania, these anthelmintics provide a varied response:

WORM TREATMENTS

	Rnd	Nod	Whp	Lng	Cost per 100 lb pig
Atgard	Yes	Yes	Yes	No	$.35
Tramisol	Yes	Yes	Yes	Yes	$.35
Safeguard	Yes	Yes	Yes	Yes	$.20
Banminth	Yes	Yes	No	No	$.35
Ivomec	Yes	Yes	No	Yes	$.80

The cost would for worming heavier pigs with Atgard would be the same as that shown for a 100-pound pig, since dosage is same. The cost for including Banminth in the feed continuously for 5 weeks in starter feed is $.70/pig For good worm control, treat sows 10 days before farrowing. Treat pigs shortly after weaning.

SUMMARY A lot of compounds are available for the control of both internal and external parasites. When used properly they all work. The best parasite control program inlcudes treating the sows before they enter the farrowing house, and treating for pigs sometime after weaning. If you can stick to that schedule, and the parasite load in your facilities is not heavy, then treatments for heavier pigs (over 100 pounds) are usually not needed.

NPPC Encouraged By USDA Response To Call For Help

The National Pork Producers Council (NPPC), which last week issued an urgent call to food retailers and the U.S. Department of Agriculture to assist pork producers during the present period of low market hog prices, reports it is encouraged by the quick response.

"A number of the nation's major food retailers have told us they will make additional efforts to increase the promotion of fresh pork immediately," said Don Gingerich, president of NPPC. "We already see more reasonable retail prices being offered for fresh pork in many parts of the nation, and we hope that will continue," Gingerich said. "There are some really good values for consumers in fresh pork at their local grocery store right now," he added.

Last week, in making its appeal, NPPC said retail pork prices around the country did not properly reflect the price producers were getting for their hogs. The average producer has been losing $17 to $18 on every hog sold in recent weeks.

"We know we can't get this situation turned around overnight," said Gingerich, "but we are grateful for the fast reaction and great cooperation we are getting from some of the nation's major food retailers."

The NPPC president also expressed producers' gratitude to U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Clayton Yeutter for announcing that USDA would make additional purchases of pork and pork products during the next several weeks in an effort to assist pork producers during this difficult period.

Pork Producers To Develop Production Guidelines

At Pork Forum '89 in Kansas City, Mo., National Pork Producers Council delegates approved the concept to develop standardized production guidelines, which topped the list of recommendations made to the delegates by NPPC's Animal Welfare Task Force.

"This will involve a review of existing production research and recommendations used in the industry," said Dr. David Meeker, NPPC director of research and education. "The guidelines are not intended to be used for restrictive or regulatory purposes, but rather as a self-regulating educational tool."

Meeker added "Many animal welfare groups are developing guidelines of their own. It's important that the pork industry develop its own guidelines so we'll end up with something that's workable and reasonable."

A working version of the NPPC guidelines is being developed. For a copy, write to Production Guidelines, NPPC, PO Box 10383, Des Moines, IA 50306.

DOYLESTOWN (Bucks Co.) — Four of five riders representing Delaware Valley College at the 16th annual Intercollegiate National Championship Horseshow placed in their respective divisions. The national competition was held at Mount Holyoke College, South Hadley, MA, on May 6 and 7.

The DelVal equestrians who rode in Nationals are: Chris Boyle, class of '87, who won the national championship, Alumni Stock Seat; Jan Egner, Doylestown, Pa., who won the national championship, Intermediate Flat, Hunt Seat; Tony Delise, Doylestown, Pa., who won reserve national championship, Open Flat, Hunt Seat, eighth in Open Fences, Hunt Seat, and eighth, Fitch Cup; Chris Iandola, Philadelphia, Pa., who won fourth, Open Stock Seat; and Alek Zajac, Southampton, Pa., Intermediate Stock Seat.

Approximately 3,000 collegiate riders from 175 colleges in 32 states, which are grouped into 13 Regions, compete during the year at Intercollegiate Horse Show Association shows. Points accumulated throughout the year earn the riders the privilege of riding at the Regional show, held this year at Stepping Stone Farm in Wycombe, Pa., in April. Only riders who won their respective divisions at Regionals were invited to compete at Nationals. Thirteen riders compete in each of 17 divisions, vying for the National Championship.

Delaware Valley College riders have a tradition of excelling nationally in the IHSA competitions. In 1988 DelVal was High Point College in Region 5 and finished sixth out of 12 in the Cartier Cup Team competition at Nationals.

Decholesterolization, Liquid Eggs

Of the two new egg product technologies that belong to Michael Foods Inc., the one that involves decholesterolization, which has most driven the company's stock price and has received the widest public attention, is the one furthest from commercial application. That process, which removes more than 90 percent of the cholesterol from eggs in the powdered form, is still in the research phase, and a company official has termed all the attention "premature."

Michael's other egg technology, which produces Easy Eggs, a liquid ultrapasteurized egg product targeted at mass feeders, has been launched. The company will expand capacity for Easy Eggs from the current 25 million pounds a year to 325 million pounds by July, according to reports.

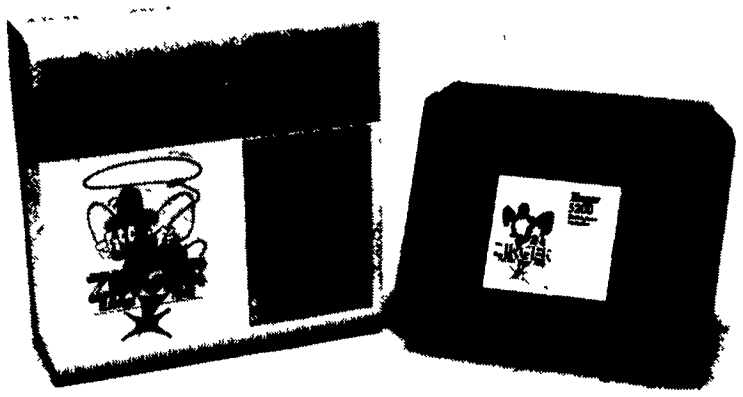
BUSINESS NEWS...



The Zinger 5200 in one of four fence controller models. It can handle up to 75 miles of difficult fencing requirements. Operation is trouble free because the self-cleaning feature causes undergrowth to wilt on contact.

Zinger Offers Low-Cost Fence Controllers

KANSAS CITY, MO — The new Zinger™ Fence Controllers use the latest, low-impedance technology coupled with a built-in "electronic brain." Electronic sensors measure the load on the fence and automatically adjust the output.

Zinger products are designed and built to be reliable and trouble-free. They are still priced lower than other new-generation controllers. Zinger offers a choice of four models and backs each unit with a full two-year warranty.

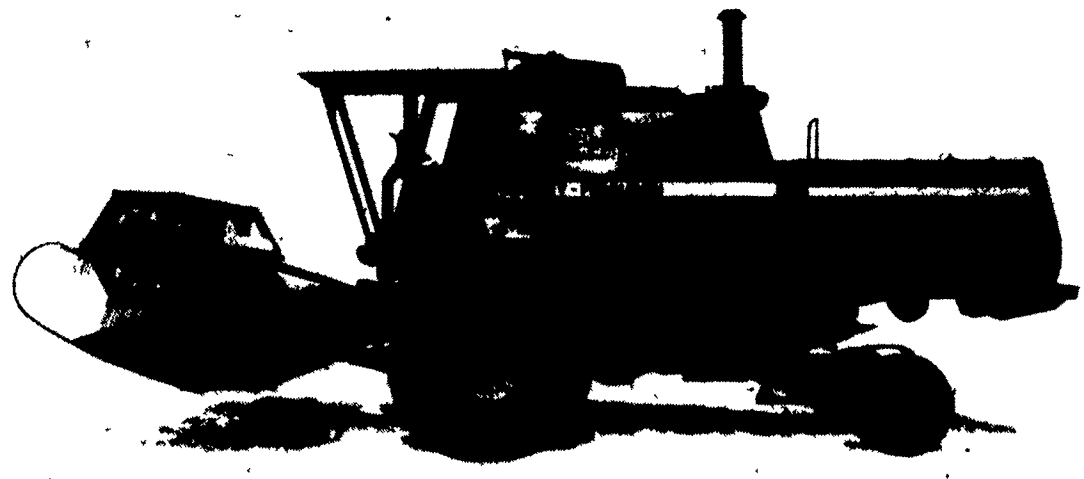
The Zinger 1200 is suited for light fencing requirements where undergrowth is not a problem. This unit delivers a short, sharp shock as an effective deterrent for all short-haired animals. The 1200 economically controls up to 25 miles of light fencing for horses, cows, hogs, etc.

The Zinger 2400 delivers a powerful shock and retains a high pulsed current even in difficult fencing applications. The Zinger 2400 controls up to 50 miles of fence through moderate undergrowth. It can be used in all terrains for horses, cows and hogs, and is suitable for short stretches of sheep fencing.

For use on long stretches of fence, the self-cleaning Zinger 5200 can handle difficult livestock or wildlife fencing requirements. The 5200 effectively charges up to 75 miles of fence. Grass that grows up against the wire wilts on contact. The strong pulsed voltage stays at maximum level, yet is safe for livestock and humans.

The Zinger 1500B uses a regular 12-volt car battery to handle fencing needs where no 110v current is available. This model is rated for up to 25 miles of fence with deterrent voltage adequate for all types of animals. It may also be used with sheep where lower fence wire is more likely to come in contact with grass. As with the other Zinger controllers listed, the 1500B adjusts the power flow for maximum results. A separate AUTO power setting extends battery life up to 60 days under ideal conditions, and a built-in warning light provides ample motice of low battery charge.

The Zinger controllers are enclosed in dark green, ALL-WEATHER cases. Each is equipped with highly visible indicator lights to show whether the unit is receiving power, and when the unit is feeding pulsed shocks to the fence.



Massey-Ferguson introduces its mid-range conventional combine. It features high-inertia cylinder and 136-horsepower Perkins diesel engine.

Massey-Ferguson Announces Combine For Small-Acreage Farms

DES MOINES, IA — Massey-Ferguson, the western world's largest tractor manufacturer, announced the introduction of its new mid-range conventional M-F 5650 Combine.

"This combine continues the Massey-Ferguson tradition of performance, ease of maintenance, reliability, and cost-effectiveness." said Dale Brcka, Product Marketing Manager for combines. "This is the third new combine in our product line, and gives farmers a choice of models to meet their harvesting needs for small, medium, or large acreage farms."

The M-F 5650 delivers more clean grain for increased harvest profits in corn, soybeans, and small grains. Its size and price make it the ideal choice for farmers looking for a mid-range conventional combine.

The clean, simple, rugged design of the M-F 5650 allows it to withstand the toughest field conditions. Servicing of the traction drive is easy, as it is self-tightening, resulting in less slippage, longer belt life and less down time.

The 136-horsepower Perkins turbo diesel engine performs up to the reputation of all Perkins engines. Its flat torque curve delivers the lugging power needed in heavy crop conditions, while it squeezes more work out of every gallon of fuel.

The machine's high-inertia cylinder generates up to three times the threshing force of conventional pressed-steel cylinders to smooth out peak loads for more efficient combining and less grain damage. The variable, two-speed design lets the operator select the right speed for any crop condition plus cylinder speed can be adjusted on-the-go to match crop conditions as they change during the day. All of this adds up to increased machine capacity.

Operator comfort and convenience is built into the M-F 5650 Combine. The cab is air-conditioned, controls are within easy reach, and convenience items include tilt-steering, dual mirrors, hourmeter, ammeter, oil pressure gauge, engine temperature gauge, and cylinder tachometer.

Pioneer Targets End Users Of Corn

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — Developing special corn hybrids for special uses is the goal of field research underway here at a new Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc. research station.

"The market is becoming more sophisticated. Buyers are interested in differentiated grains that are worth more to them in their operations than regular commodity corn. One example is high-oil corn for more energy in livestock feed," said Carrol Bolen, vice president and director of specialty plant products. "Pioneer's high-oil corn breeding program is taking the first steps to develop hybrids with this important characteristic."

Producing better high-oil corn hybrids is just one part of the breeding program. This station will have the responsibility of evaluating grain quality of all Pioneer hybrids for the Corn Belt. Station Manager Dr. Peter Coaldrake is developing yellow food-grade corn for use in the food processing and dry-milling industries. Russell Fox, who is completing his Ph.D. studies at the University of Missouri, will join Coaldrake in late June to take over the high-oil corn and waxy corn breeding effort. Waxy corn is most often used to produce specialty starches for the wet-milling industry and as an animal feed.

The researchers also will test white corn hybrids in conjunction with Pioneer's existing program in Windfall, Indiana and Union City, Tennessee. Pioneer has conducted white corn research since the early 1940s.

Pioneer established the station near Champaign late last summer. The first nursery plots and yield test plots are being planted this spring in and around Champaign County.

Pioneer, a world leader in the development, production and marketing of crop seeds, will offer more hybrid options to farmers who grow specialty corn. "We plan to have more Pioneer corn hybrids on the recommended lists being put out by grain processors. That way the farmers will have a choice," said Coaldrake.

Ford 9N Tractor Celebrates 50 Years

Martin Denlinger Jr., right, and his son, Kenneth, regularly use their 50-year-old Ford 9N on the family farm operation. Ken's sons, Todd, 3, and Nathan, 5, eagerly anticipate their time to help farm with the family 9N, too. The tractor was purchased new in 1939 by Martin Denlinger Sr., now deceased. The Denlinger farm is located in Lancaster County.

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster) — In the hierarchy of mankind's labor-saving devices, the farm tractor reigns supreme. And the Ford 9N, introduced by Henry Ford 50 years ago, has to be considered one of the brightest jewels in the royal crown.

"It's no exaggeration to say that, with the 9N tractor, Ford gave the world a new, immeasurably better way of farming," notes Ford New Holland Chairman Robert F. Moglia. "It provided farmers with more versatility and maneuverability than ever seen in a tractor." The key to the 9N's superiority was its 3-point hitch, a revolutionary new means of connecting the tractor to plows and other field implements.

With the 3-point hitch, the implement weight and draft were transferred to the tractor wheels. This provided better tire traction, which previously was accomplished by adding weights to the tractor. Those weights, of course, increased tractor fuel consumption and made the tractor harder to maneuver. With the 3-point hitch transfer system, the 9N could do the work of tractors nearly twice its weight.

Hydraulic fingertip control of implement depth in the soil also added to improved performance and made tractor driving much easier. Farm wives and youths quickly become expert drivers. Safety was improved, too, because of the 3-point hitch system. When an obstruction was encountered by the implement or plow, wheel traction, was momentarily interrupted so the tractor would not rear up or tip as it might easily do with a pull-type hitch arrangement.

The 9N had a 3-speed transmission and enough power to handle a 2-bottom plow in most soils. With the plow mounted, the tractor was a maneuverable, compact machine that didn't need wide headlands for turning. Even small fields could be farmed very efficiently.

When introducing the 9N, Henry Ford said, "Now we have tackled power farming from a new angle... We have been able to do this by the application of a principle developed by Mr. H. G. Ferguson of Ireland, with whom I've been in touch for a number of years. His system will not only revolutionize agriculture, but will put his name alongside those of Edison, Bell and the Wrights..."

"The 23-horsepower 9N quickly proved that it was as reliable as maneuverable," Moglia says. "It quickly became America's favorite chore-time tractor when it wasn't busy in the fields." Contractors and cities and towns bought them for off-the-farm work. Loaders and backhoes were invented for the tractors for industrial use.

"The 9N established the reliability reputation that Ford tractors still enjoy today. Many of those 9Ns are still working after 50 years," Moglia observes.

No-Till Works Well In Drought Stress Situations

EPHRATA — No-till offers many benefits but it can't cover mistakes, a lesson some farmers learned last year. Those who farmed by the book saw a payoff at harvest, says Dave Schertz, national agronomist for the Soil Conservation Service (SCS).

SCS officials are encouraged by 1988 no-till results that have been analyzed around the county. When some rain finally came last summer, no-till crops did the best job of conserving and utilizing moisture. No-till corn and soybean yields were often 30 percent higher than conventional till, Schertz reports.

Schertz says that under extreme conditions there are problems for any system and mistakes magnify these problems when it's dry. If you haven't yet done so, now's a good time to review last year's results and recheck management practices that ensure no-till success, especially weed control.

Don't make decisions based solely on 1988 experience, he advises. Some experts called it the worst drought in 50 years, while others said it was the worst ever recorded. Schertz says, reports from the field indicate farmers who no-tilled for the first time last season are talking about planting deeper. he suggests watching weather forecasts and making decisions accordingly.

If in doubt, seek advice from local, university extension specialists or other no-till experts. Or, talk to farmers with several years of no-till experience. Last year, says Schertz, "experienced no-tillers generally fared better than first-timers."

Eliminate competition

Extreme heat in 1988 caused some problems that couldn't be corrected, such as "baking of the soil surface," says the SCS agronomist. This could have been avoided by completely controlling vegetation that kept crops from fully using hat little moisture was available.

Schertz says some farmers waited too long before applying herbicides. They sprayed just before planting or prior to crop emergence. In a drought, seeding into cover crops or sod that's not completely burned down can be especially deadly.

On soils with poor water holding capacity, moisture conservation is aided by using a burndown herbicide like Gramoxone Super, about two to three weeks before planting. Another weed control key is to spray when weeds are young and growing actively -- generally no more than six inches tall.

No-till experts constantly stress the importance of using a burndown herbicide in addition to residual herbicides. Failue to follow that advice is a mistake that's magnified by dry weather. A lack of rainfall to properly activate residual compounds lead to weed problems and increased crop competition for limited moisture.

Prior to harvest there were reports the drought had hit no-till the hardest, an observation that changed dramatically. At season's end, there were many reports of success. For instance, a Purdue University project tabulated net returns for 41 Indiana corn and soybean fields under various tillage systems. The most profitable field was no-till soybeans, which averaged nearly 53 bushels and netted $259 an acre.

When weeds were properly controlled and crops were well managed, Schertz says late-season rains sparked a strong surge for no-till. "The majority of our reports were favorable. In a nutshell, no-till fared especially well and did much better at the end of the season that previously thought," he concludes.

Learn About Activists To Help Combat Negative Publicity

BY
DR. RICHARD BARCZEWSKI
Extension Agent
University of Delaware

Earlier this year, I attended an animal rights meeting. I have to be honest; I was impressed with the meeting, even though I didn't agree with all of the opinions that were presented.

First of all, if you think that the initiators of this movement are disorganized, think again. At this meeting, I learned how to get a message across tothe public through the media, writing news releases, holding news conferences, radio and television interviews and talk shows. In addition, other methods of getting the message out were discussed. These included setting up tables, making displays, distributing leaflets and speaking at public meetings.

We also learned how to organize a public meeting, start a local group, organize a demonstration and run a campaign for animals. I learned some good ideas that I could put to use in my own position as an Extension agent, and I had felt fairly knowledgeable in this area!

This group was extremely well-organized and devoted to the cause of animal rights.

In the beginning of the seminar, the participants were introduced to the idea of cruelty-free living. This means that the individual adopts a lifestyle that does not include the "exploitation" of animals. This means that you do not eat animals or products derived from them, wear animals or use products tested on them or containing them. In addition, you should encourage others not to do so either. Items to avoid included wool, leather, fur, down and even silk. We wre told that silk was not O.K. because the skil worms were killed in the process of obtaining the silk.

From a dietary standpoint, participants were told about the vegan lifestyle. This diet excludes any animal products, even dairy products and eggs. The opposition to these products is in the way the animals are raised on "factory farms." We also were encouraged to educate ourselves by reading books written by some of the originators of the movement. Two books highly recommended were "Animal Liberation" by Peter Singer, an Australian philosopher, and "Diet for a New America" by John Robbins, of Baskin-Robbins fame. I currently have both of these books and have been reading them to get a better perspective on this movement.

If anything bothered me during this meeting, it was the occasional inaccurate statement that was suggested by the presenters and the unwillingness to correct an inaccurate statement made by a participant. It seemed the presenters didn't want in any way to correct a mistake if it might look as if they were defending current systems.

We need to keep aware of this movement. The animal rights groups did not spring up because everything was dandy with the use of animals by humans. As far as this group is concerned there is no need to test products on animals, conduct research with animals, wear animals or eat animal products to remain healthy. I honestly believe that consumers will make the right choices in the end, provided we can assure them that the research and testing is needed and beneficial, that animals are not subjected to unnecessary pain and suffering, and that animals are treated humanely in research and on farms.

With all the negatives that these groups express, it's nice to know of a group that has been formed to counter some of the negative publicity of the animal rights movement. The group I'm referring to is the Incurably Ill for Animal Research. I hear that they are extremely effective in countering the animal rights groups.

When it's all said and done, most people realize the importance and necessity of using animals for the benefit of mankind. We still need to make sure we are practicing the best management procedures possible, and never sit back on our laurels and think that there isn't any room for improvement in our systems.

Additional research needs to be done to determine if current facilities and management procedures are best for our livestock. We need to constantly review our systems to insure the best care and housing possible. Only through research and education can we combat the negative impact of animal rightists.

Chesapeake Bay Funding Goes To Northumberland County Farmers

SUNBURY (Northumberland Co.) — The board of directors of the Northumberland County Conservation District has approved Chesapeake Bay funding agreements with three local farmers, according to Robert Pardoe, Jr., district chairman. Approved for funding are John Esenwein, Rush Township; Donald Hauck, Upper Mahanoy Township; and Jacob Boyle, Lower Augusta Township.

Farmers that participate in the Chesapeake Bay Program are entitled to receive up to $30,000 in state funds to install conservation practices to prevent agricultural pollution. Since the program began in 1987, the Northumberland County Conservation District has received $295,000 in Chesapeake Bay grants from the state to cost share the establishment of conservation practices on local farms.

The Northumberland County Conservation District has been accepted into the Pocono-Northeast Resource Conservation and Development Area, according to Richard Morgan, conservation district director. Other counties already in the area include Carbon, Lackawanna, Luzerne, Monroe, Schuylkill, Pike, and Wayne. The purpose of the Resource Conservation and Development program is to accelerate the conservation, development, and utilization of natural resources and strengthen economic activity. Acceptance into the program may result in future funding opportunities for Northumberland County.

A record-breaking 93,500 trees were sold in the conservation district's 19th annual tree seedling sale. Nearly 1,000 people purchased seedlings from the district, according to Robert Jacobs, conservation district manager.

Guy Temple, Penn State Extension community development agent, reported on the status of farmland preservation efforts in Pennsylvania. The state Agricultural Land Preservation Board recently agreed to spend $20 million this year to purchase development rights for farmers. Farmers who participate in the program will give up their rights to sell their farms to developers for at least 25 years. All counties in Pennsylvania are eligible to participate in the program, according to Temple.

The conservation district staff presented 31 environmental education programs in elementary schools throughout the county in March and April. Nearly 1,900 students in grades 3-6 participated in the programs. The conservation district also distributed 14,500 Game Commission seedlings to seven boy scout troops, three girl scout troops, and one 4-H Club. Approximately 235 scouts and 4-H Club members participated in the tree planting projects.

The conservation district will sponsor three demonstration projects this year, according to George Phillips, district soil conservationist. Ronald and Cyril Shaffer, Lower Mahanoy Township, will plant a no-till corn demonstration plot and Irvin Reynolds, Delaware Township, will plant a nutrient demonstration plot in cooperation with the conservation district. Two livestock crossings will be installed on the RMD Shultz Farm, Rush Township.

Forty-one churches in Northumberland County sponsored Soil Stewardship Week observances this year, according to Lorraine Kinder, conservation district director. Soil Stewardship Week, April 30 - May 7, is an annual observance sponsored by the National Association of Conservation Districts.

Pioneer Releases New Alfalfa Inoculant

JOHNSTON, IA — The Microbial Genetics Division of Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc., is announcing the release of a new formulation of its alfalfa hay inoculant.

Pioneer(r) brand 1155 Alfalfa Hay Inoculant is now available in a granular form that is applied directly to the hay.

The bacterial inoculant is developed specifically for alfalfa hay and allows producers to bale up to 25 percent moisture. This allows for reduced weather risks, better looking and more palatable hay. The product contains naturally-occurring bacteria (Bacillus pumilus) which helps inhibit mold growth and retards spoilage.

No harmful fumes are emitted by 1155 and it is non-caustic and environmentally-friendly. The product is easily applied using a Gandy(tm) applicator, which is available from Pioneer representatives.

In addition to being an all-natural product, 1155 is cost effective at approximately $3.20 per ton for treatment.

For more information, call 800/247-6803, ext. 4057.

SLICK CONCRETE CAN BE ROUGHENED

SCABBLING is an effective way to avoid unnecessary losses of cattle. The SCABBLER makes bands about two inches wide approximately 1/8" to 3/16 in. depth. This gives sufficient area for good footing while allowing you to scrape the smooth surface as before. It is near enough to the surface to give your cows full advantage of the roughness and deep enough to remain effective for years. It greatly aids in heat detection.

And the good news is that it is reasonably priced. You have the choice of doing it yourself or having us do it for you. We offer service right to your door. Call us for more details.

3. SPECIALIZATION - Every barn is different but generally it's best to use a high quality mildew resistant product, specially formulated to meet the requirements of this partially weathered wood that was and will be weather stressed.
4. WARNING - The modified oil latex is less effective as a wood preserver and actually increases nail & metal deterioration Deal with home people. At their rates, I could double mine.

Drought Readiness Is Good Management

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Some weather experts are saying that we may be at the beginning of a drought cycle similar to the cycle from the mid-'50s to the mid-'60s. "This may or may not be true," says Dr. Elwood Hatley, Penn State professor of agronomy. "Unfortunately we have no control over the weather, but a little planning can take at least some of the risk out."

It is important to keep in mind the economics of crop management. "Switching crops may reduce risks from a production standpoint, but it is a waste of resources if the alternative crop cannot be sold at a profit or utilized on the farm," says Hatley. "Once the cropping decisions are made, good management of your farm will reduce the risks and ultimately increase profits."

Hatley says the economics of sound management are clear. Four types of information are useful in developing a strategy to minimize the impact of weather-related stress:

- long range weather patterns
- the capacity of various soils to hold water
- the ability of various plants to withstand environmental stress
- management techniques

"All of this information must fit together like a puzzle to form a management plan," says Hatley.

Pennsylvania farmers should monitor long-range forecasts and incorporate appropriate changes into an overall production plan. "You don't have to be a meteorologist to know that from mid-July through August it is going to be hot and probably dry in Pennsylvania," says Hatley. Even though long-range forecasts are not reliable they do indicate general weather patterns for specific areas.

"Manage all of your resources to minimize the impact of drought and environmental stress," he adds. "While drought cannot be predicted or avoided, farmers can take measures to reduce the effects."

Soils vary in ability to hold water for future plant use. Water holding capacity is determined by soil depth and soil texture. Sandy or coarse soil will not retain as much water as clay or fine-textured soil. The depth of soil available for root growth is a major determinant of how much water is available for plant use. A deep, fine-textured soil will have a greater amount of water available for plant use than a shallow coarse-textured soil and will not require rain as often during the growing season. "Field records are an excellent predictor of a soil's water-holding capacity," says Hatley. "These records are the key in determining what to plant and how to manage a specific field."

Plants can be managed to help provide a hedge against environmental stress. The amount of stress a plant can tolerate varies greatly with the stage of growth. Stress is most severe during the reproductive stage of plant growth. This means that damage is less severe if stress happens during germination, vegetation, grain fill or the maturity stage. Farmers can plant some crops so the reproductive stage arrives during the least stressful period or in a field where the effects of drought will not be so severe.

Deciding what species to plant is a management tool to reduce environmental stress. "For example," says Hatley, "in some fields it might be safer to plant sorghum than corn. Sorghum is more drought tolerant than corn. Unlike corn, sorghum has the capability of going dormant if put under stress. Corn will just keep trying to grow, even under extreme drought conditions."

Also, corn has a reproductive period of only about two weeks. If corn is severely stressed during that period, the crop can be lost. Soybeans, on the other hand, have a reproductive period of about five weeks. During that period the plants can adapt to drought conditions. If soybeans are stressed they can abort up to 60 percent of their blossoms and still make a crop.

In some cases it may be possible to select plants with a different root system as another hedge against drought. Sunflowers can survive drought conditions better than corn because they are able to absorb more water from the soil.

Varying plant types is yet another hedge against drought. Cool season grains, such as spring oats and spring barley, will be at their reproductive stage in early to mid-June or about 60 days after emergence. Warm season grasses, such as corn, will reach their reproductive stage from mid-July to early-August. On the other hand, winter grains, such as winter wheat, will reach the reproductive stage as early as mid-May. Hatley says that having crops which reach the sensitive reproductive stage at various times during the growing season provides alternatives. "You're more likely to produce a crop with more than one grain."

Hershey Leads Team For Moving Barn To Museum

KINZERS (Lancaster Co.) — Arthur D. Hershey, state representative from Chester County, has been selected as chairman for the advisory board appointed by Rough and Tumble Museum for its historic barn moving project.

Other advisory board members include: Senator Gibson Armstrong (Lancaster County); Representative Kenneth E. Brandt (Lancaster County); Gene Hemphill, who is in charge of public relations for Ford New Holland; Lancaster County Commissioner James Huber; Christian Kunzlers Jr., president of Kunzler & Co. of Lancaster; Gerald Lestz, owner of Stemgas Publishing; Richard Vanderberg, engineering manager of Cleaver Brooks, Lebanon; Lloyd Wenger, manager of Wengers Farm Machinery of Myerstown; and Wendall Woodbury, editor of "Our Heritage" on WGAL-TV.

Rough and Tumble Museum, located on Route 30 at Kinzers, has accepted the gift of a German-style bank barn built in 1869. The barn, presently located along the Fruitville Pike north of Lancaster, will be disassembled - with each piece marked - and reassembled on the museum's grounds. At Rough and Tumble Museum the barn will become an appropriate display setting for many of the pieces of early farm equipment and machinery, originally built nearby, which the museum has collected in its 40-year history.

The barn, given to Rough and Tumble Museum by Robert and Esther Lafever, has served three generations who farmed the land, but its proximity to Lancaster dictates that the land become a setting for lovely single-family homes. Thus the barn, which sits astride what will become a wide residential street, must be moved to a new location or lost forever.

Construction for the foundation of the relocated barn will begin after the August "Threshermen's Reunion," a living-hostory show that is an annual event of Rough and Tumble Museum and for which it is known nationwide.

Much interest has been demonstrated in a possible "Amish-style" barn raising when the building is reconstructed on the museum's grounds. This event seems likely in the spring of 1990.

Spray a raincoat on your forage crops.

Growers and university research prove Nutri-Shield cuts forage losses and saves you money.

One lesson we all learned in 1988 is that a bale of alfalfa, or any other hay, is valuable enough to be protected. Another thing we learned from foragae growers coast-to-coast is that our product, Nutri-Shield, protects forage crops as well as three years of testing had already convinced us it would. In case you haven't yet tried Nutri-Shield, here's what it will do for you:

1. Form a protective coat over your forage that repels water.
2. Retain more of the protein and TDN that is in your forage when it is harvested.
3. Preserve more of the nutritious alfalfa leaves.
4. Help keep your big round bales firm and round longer.
5. Inhibit mold and rot by shielding your forage crops from moisture.
6. Do the above for less money and labor than other methods.

For more information on Nutri-Shield, including the experience of users from all parts of the country plus research from leading universities, call or write:

— 112 ACRE FARM —

SNYDER COUNTY, PA.

FRIDAY EVE., JUNE 23, 1989
7:00 P.M.

On the premises at Mill Road, R.D. #1, Mt. Pleasant Mills, PA 17853. Take Rt. 11/15 north from Harrisburg to left turn at Rt. 104, and go 3.7 miles on Rt. 104 to left turn onto Mill Rd. at Meiserville Inn, and go ½ mile to farm.

— THE FARM —

Beautiful rolling fields of fertile Weikert-type soil. Approx. 85 acres tillable and 25 woodland. Separate never-failing springs supply the house & barn. The fine trout stream "Mahantango Creek" flows by the pasture. Ideal set-up for crops or livestock.

— THE IMPROVEMENTS —

The home has been extensively remodeled. The exterior has solid cedar clapboard siding and all new windows and doors. Inside, new wiring, plumbing and plaster set the stage for the finest of amenities. A new first-floor wing houses the spacious eat-in kitchen with pointed stone fireplace, all new cabinets and appliances and DuPont Corian countertops. Natural-finish plank floors. 3 immaculate new bedrooms on second floor. All new exquisite bath with double Corian vanity and ceramic tile. Basement stone walls pointed inside and out, and a huge stone fireplace.

The barn is a huge T-shape, structurally sound and suitable for any farming enterprise, but needing some cosmetic work on the exterior. All the care and love have gone into redoing the house, thus far. Other outbuildings as well.

— THE OUTLOOK —

Perfect for the Gentleman Farmer, the Horselover, the Sportsman, or the Developer. The quality and beauty of the dwelling qualifies if for any purpose from Country Estate to Hunting Lodge. The conturs of the land lend themselves to several large subdivisions. No zoning in Perry Township. Snyder County planning/zoning is very liberal and helpful at this time. COntact Snyder County Planning Commission, Middleburg, PA.

— REASON FOR SELLING —

The owners will be joining their son in a dairy farming operation in another county.
